"Be My Valentine"

We see these words in many places this time of year. Children scribble them on construction paper, young adults search the drugstore for them on just the "right" card, and special boxes of candy say "Be My Valentine." It is easy to forget what the words really mean and what this day represents.

Valentine's Day is magic. It is the emotion of love expressing itself in words and actions. It is a happening, pulling together the frayed edges of our fast-track existence, making it easier to say the deep things of the heart.

Valentine's Day could become more than a day, more than a one-shot expression of love. It could become a way of life in which all our days become acts of love expressed in actions of kindness. Jesus said, "By this shall all men know that you are my disciples, if you love one another."

St. Valentine's Day could make SAINTS of us, that is if we allow "Be My Valentine" to become a daily event.

The Bible Speaks

By Lawrence W. Althouse

WHAT TO DO WHILE WAITING
February 15, 1998

Background Scripture:
2 Peter 3
Devotional Reading:
Jeremiah 17:5-10

Fifty years ago I read a book by the late Methodist Bishop Gerald Kennedy that was to have a profound affect upon my life and faith, both then and now. The name of the book was The Lion and The Lamb: Paradoxes of the Christian Faith (Abingdon-Cokesbury, 1950).

Actually, it saved my faith because it introduced me to the paradoxical nature of the Christian faith, for me a brand new idea. A paradox is the holding together in creative tension of two ideas which seem quite contradictory. Before reading this book, I was struggling with some of the more obvious contradictions in the Christian teachings. Despite the creeds and doctrines, I was finding that lots of Christian teachings did not fit together nicely. Addicted to logic, I thought contradiction was indicative of error.

Then I read Kennedy's book and I was impressed that, instead of denying the contradictory nature of some Christian teachings, he acknowledged it. In fact, he exalted it, presenting paradox as an asset to belief, rather than a liability. For life itself is paradoxical, full of seeming contradictions. "Christianity dares to go beyond logic," Kennedy wrote, "because life does...It is not afraid to state its truth in paradoxes, because life does."

APOCALYPTIC

In my mind—and I doubt that I am all alone in this—there is no Christian teaching more seemingly contradictory and paradoxical then the apocalyptic writings we find in the Bible, particularly in the Book of Revelation, I Thessalonians 4:13 to 5:2, Jude v. 9, Mark 13, and 2 Peter. Apocalyptic literature was a specialized type that arose in the Near East in about 150 BC and flourished for another 300 to 400 years. Some scholars believe the Jews were introduced to the apocalyptic during their exile in Persia.

It is a style of thinking and writing that focused on cosmic dualism (the universal forces of good vs. evil), superhuman beings (angels and demons), dream-like visions, the destruction of the world, a heavy code-like dependence upon symbols, and a pessimistic, fatalistic view of the present age. If you read 2 Peter 3, you get a glimpse of this apocalyptic concept. The writer is certain that the present age could not be redeemed or improved and therefore it must be brought to a calamitous end by divine intervention.

Now, the paradoxical aspect of the apocalyptic is that it appears to be quite contrary to the teachings of Jesus concerning the kingdom of God. These teachings, by contrast, seem optimistic or hopeful of what God can accomplish in the world. God has not given the earth up to Satan and the kingdom will come as we open ourselves up to it. Some Christians base their faith on the apocalyptic, while others base theirs on the kingdom of God.

CREATIVE TENSION

This is for me another Christian paradox. The ultimate truth is to be found in neither polarity, but in the creative tension between these two truths that to the limitation of human knowledge appear to be contradictory. There is value in both concepts, even if we don't know how to fit them together in one complete and harmonious picture.

So, whether you believe Jesus will return to destroy the world or look to his return in glory with the fulfillment of the kingdom, 2 Peter 3 has some good advice for all of us. Whether you believe that Jesus will come at the end of time or that his second coming is something we experience after we leave this earthly life, we can appreciate that what appears to be God's delay is merely the difference between time in God's sight and our own (3:8). Furthermore, "The Lord is...forbearing towards you, not wishing that any should perish, that all should reach repentance" (3:9).

In the meantime, we are not to spend our time speculating on when and how the kingdom will come. This is in God's hands and "the day of the Lord will come like a thief..." (3:10). Regardless how we view the destiny of the world, we can all "live lives of holiness and godliness" (3:11). We do not just impatiently "tread water" until that day. Instead, while we wait, we are to "grow in grace and knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

COVER STORY

Fred Rogers: a big career caring for the little things

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

Fred Rogers

The soft-spoken, cardigan-wearing gentleman who likes us all "just the way we are" is marking his 30th anniversary as the host and driving force behind PBS' Mister Rogers' Neighborhood in two ways.

First, Fred Rogers has prepared a new batch of Neighborhood episodes for his young viewers. The shows, on the theme of "Giving and Receiving," air daily beginning Monday, Feb. 16 (check local listings). In Monday's show, Mister Rogers visits author-illustrator Eric Carle, sends Trolley to the Neighborhood of Make-Believe and – of course – feeds his fish.

Next, Rogers has a message for adults, too, particularly the press, and he uses the occasion of a 30th-anniversary press conference to share his thoughts.

"More than 50 years ago," he reads from notes, "Adolf Hitler said, ' ... I want young people capable of violence – imperious, relentless, cruel.' "

In his customary thoughtful cadence, Rogers says, "I wonder what you might have written or broadcast the day that Hitler said that."

Rogers speaks of the 14-year-old West Paducah, Ky., boy who fatally shot three classmates. A few days before the incident, Rogers says, the boy had told people, "Something big is going to happen." The shooting, Rogers concludes, was his "something big."

"When I hear that story and others like it," Rogers says, "I wonder how much our society has encouraged children to idolize the big and the flashy and the loud.

"There have been and continue to be (TV) programs which encourage people to believe that big is best. That loud is necessary. And that violence and cruelty are the ways we human beings must solve our problems.

"You know, the most holy people of every tradition have always encouraged us to celebrate the good, the simple, the modest, the truthful, because that's what lasts forever.

"You and I must encourage the producers and purveyors of all mass media to help us raise children who will reject violence and cruelty. Reject it because they have become aware, at the deepest levels of their being, that they are lovable. Not because they're big and loud and noisy, but because they're one of a kind."

When asked how it feels to know that the first generation of his one-of-a-kind viewers is now raising the second, Rogers replies, "Wonderful."

"One of the greatest dividends of having done a program for so long (is) that the parents who are now offering the Neighborhood to their children have a chance of ... remembering what their own childhood was like."

Rogers' concern for his first viewers – now middle-aged baby boomers and Generation Xers – is unflagging. For them his message is the same: Celebrate the small and the quiet.

"There is so much more in this life than ever meets the eye," Rogers says. "We don't know why we're here today. We think that we're here because we have a job to do. Well, it's much more than that. Life is a great mystery."

GCC Activities Set By SGA For Spring Semester

Several student clubs at Garrett Community College have activities planned for spring semester, according to Evelyn Bittinger, president of the Student Government Association.

Throughout the basketball season, members of the Athletic Club have been conducting half-time activities for fans of all ages. These have included shoot outs and drawings.

The Golden Achievers club plans to bring the Hubcaps back for a return engagement in June, Bittinger noted.

As in previous years, the Wildlife Club will be traveling to Arizona during spring break. "While there students will observe a variety of habitats and ecosystems and perform environmental services as they travel to state and national parks and nature preserves," she said.

The SGA is planning to sponsor a talent show and the second annual Spring Fling during the spring semester.

Other officers of the SGA this year are: Nicola Swiger, vice-president, Debbie Bittinger, treasurer, Sarah Crouse, secretary, Matt D'Angelo, freshman representative, and Catherine Dixon and Beth Maroney, sophomore representatives.

Local Student Studying Abroad

Amber Close, a junior at Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N.Y., is spending the spring semester in England as a member of the King's program. In order to study abroad, a student must have a compelling academic rationale, as well as the strong support of his or her adviser and the department concerned, a good academic record, and a foreign language background.

The daughter of Eugene and Peggy Close, Accident, Amber is a graduate of Northern Garrett High School.

Founded in 1861 as a women's college by Matthew Vassar, a successful businessman and brewer of beer, Vassar is a residential, liberal arts college. Nearly 40 percent of the students today are men.

AARP Driving Course Offered By Area Agency

Community Action's Area Agency on Aging and the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) are working cooperatively to offer a classroom refresher course to help drivers 50 years of age or older improve their driving skills and prevent traffic accidents.

The two-session course will be held 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 25 and Thursday, Feb. 26 at the Mary Browning Senior Center, 104 E. Center St., Oakland. Each student must remit a fee of $8 the first day to cover the materials needed.

The 55 Alive Mature Driving course is designed to meet the specific needs of older drivers. It covers age-related physical changes, declining perceptual skills, rules of the road, local driving problems, and license renewal requirements. It is recommended that the course be taken by older persons every three years.

Volunteer instructors recruited and trained by AARP conduct the course, which is presented through a combination of slide presentations and group discussion. Betty Foy will be the instructor.

Several major auto insurance carriers in Maryland offer discounts to graduates of 55 Alive. Interested persons are advised to contact their carriers to see if such a discount is available.

For further information or to register for the class, persons may call 301-334-9431, ext. 142 or toll-free 1-888-887-8403. The deadline to register is February 18 at 4 p.m.

Fake Currency To Be Displayed At First United

Oakland residents will have an opportunity to test their skill at detecting counterfeit currency and view a coin display next week at First United National Bank & Trust in Oakland. The exhibits, obtained from the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, will be on display from February 16 until March 6.

Kathy Knotts, Oakland community office manager, stated, "Many people don't stop to look at their money. Although some bogus bills are very skillfully reproduced, many counterfeit notes are easy to spot."

Knotts cited several things to look for when trying to detect counterfeit money, the portrait in particular. The hairline and eyes may be slightly irregular in the portrait on a counterfeit note, and the screening around the portrait may not be well defined. Other tell-tale signs are irregular seri-al numbers, off-color numbers and seals, and absence of silk threads in the paper of the bill.

The public will also have a chance to view a coin exhibit, which will include a "Piece of Eight" and a Jackson "Hard Times" token in a collection of more than 120 coins.

"These are exhibits that everyone can appreciate and enjoy." Knotts said.

Project ACT Expanded Into Western Maryland

The Epilepsy Association of Maryland (EAM) recently expanded its Project All Children Together (ACT), a program dedicated to supporting the full inclusion of children with special needs into existing child care programs, into the Western Maryland region. Project ACT previously supported children and child care providers only in settings in or near Baltimore County and parts of Baltimore City.

Now beginning its third year and expanded through the financial support of the Child Care Administration's Early Child Care Development's Before and After School Child Care Program's grants, Project ACT will serve any child with a mental or physical disability who meets the eligibility requirements for the grants and who resides in or attends child care in the Western Maryland areas of Garrett, Washington, Allegany, and Frederick counties, as well as Baltimore City and Baltimore, Carroll, Howard, Harford, Frederick, and Prince George's counties. Additional funding is also being provided by Citicorp, USF&G, and the Community Foundation of Frederick County.

"A primary objective of Project ACT is to provide parents with the education tools and knowledge to become more self-sufficient and to open doors in advocating inclusion for their child with a disability," said Paula Boykin, EAM's director of Family & Children's Services. Boykin explains that two main goals of Project ACT are to: increase the availability of regulated child care opportunities to children with special needs, and enhance the ability of care givers to offer quality services to children with disabilities. Project ACT personnel work with child care providers to provide such services as: on-site support and assessment, training about specific disabilities, access to adaptive materials, and liaison to community agencies, services, and school systems.

Project ACT also educates caregivers (and provides them with on-site support) about how to offer quality services to children with disabilities. In its first two years, Project ACT served 224 children with disabilities (including ADHD, behavioral issues and psychological disorders, epilepsy, neurological disorders, developmental delay, hearing and visual impairment, mental retardation, and speech and language impairment) in 113 child care centers. Also, project coordinators provided 64 disability trainings.

Project ACT organizers are collaborating with Child Care Choices, the ARC of Frederick, and the Resources for Children and Families in Hagerstown.

Services are available, free of charge, to parents and licensed, year-round child care providers. For more information, persons may call Pam Pickert at 301-695-9505 or 800-394-9504.

EAM is a private, nonprofit organization that has been serving the 50,000 Marylanders with epilepsy for 32 years. Additionally, EAM provides services for persons with other neurological disabilities. Services include: counseling, information and referral, advocacy, employment assistance, housing and community living assistance, and public and professional education.

Safe Employee of the Quarter

Rich Lehmann, Frostburg, has received the Luke mill's John T. Summers Safe Employee of the Quarter award for 4th Quarter 1997.

As Chemical Preparation Supervisor in the company's Pulp Mill, Rich was actively involved in the design, installation, and start-up of the new chlorine dioxide generator. This facility is a major part of the elimination of elemental chlorine project at Luke. He has focused heavily on the safety aspects of this new system. The new generator is covered under Process Safety Management which is a system in which each piece of equipment is reviewed through a specific process to ensure the safety of the equipment, the operators, and the surrounding communities.

Rich, who has been employed by Westvaco for 11 years, has been heavily involved in the training process for the chlorine dioxide generator—including training each contractor who worked on the project and the employees who will be operating the new equipment.

Congratulations, Rich!

MOUNTAINTOP MAID SERVICE, providing more than just basic cleaning, has been started by Janet Tasker, pictured above. For information about services and cost, those interested may reach Tasker at 301-334-5709.

Let's Get MOUNTAINTOP MAID Service Down To Business!

This is a feature of The Republican to better acquaint our readers with various area business establishments.

Mountaintop Maid Service

Mountaintop Maid Service, created by Janet Tasker, is a new cleaning service based in Oakland. Tasker was previously employed at Bausch & Lomb for 22 years in the quality department. At Bausch & Lomb she dealt effectively with internal as well as external customers, and will bring this experience of providing quality customer service to her cleaning service. She has just completed a certificate course at Garrett Community College for Small Business Management.

Mountaintop Maid Service not only provides basic cleaning, it also provides spring cleaning, grocery shopping, light flower gardening and some decorating. Tasker felt it was important to expand beyond just the basic cleaning, with more and more women working today and having extremely busy lifestyles. Providing these extras will give women the precious commodity of time—time with their families, time for themselves.

In order to tailor services for each customer's needs, Tasker has developed client profile sheets which enable her to document specific needs. Checklists are used to maintain consistency for specific requests. She will also provide customer feedback sheets.

Tasker hopes that someday her business will grow in such a manner that she will be able to provide job opportunities, and adds, "Mountaintop Maid Service will evaluate your needs upon meeting with you in your home. Our service is insured and bonded, and the extra services mentioned will be provided at an additional cost." Tasker and Mountaintop Maid Service can be reached by calling 301-334-5709.

United Way To Address Quality Of Life Issues

County United Way volunteers recently met to begin a process they say will improve the quality of life for many members of the community.

The County United Way is in its first year of funding programs to address local social issues. The volunteers formed a committee to allocate funds contributed to the County United Way to regional human services organizations to implement the programs.

The County United Way surveyed donors in 1996 to identify social problems area residents wanted to solve. The severity of those problems was substantiated by government statistics. Local human services organizations were invited to develop programs to address the problems and request funding from the County United Way to implement their programs.

Individuals contributing to the County United Way in 1997 were offered the opportunity to direct their donations to specific social issues they wanted to address. The task of the Allocations Committee was to match donors' contributions to programs that will address issues campaign supporters chose.

The funded programs will be implemented in 1998 to reduce the negative impact of social problems on people's lives. The results of these efforts will be communicated to the community during the County United Way fall fund-raising drive.

"In this way," stated County United Way executive director Harry King, "the community is taking responsibility for its own social problems. We have human services organizations with the expertise to solve the problems that concern us. And the community has pooled its charitable financial resources through many individual contributions to support the organizations so they can do their work. Together, the organizations and the people who financially support their work, are collaborating to improve the quality of life for many of our neighbors and, thus, for all of us."

Human services organizations supported by the County United Way include AIDS Ailiance, American Red Cross, Associated Charities, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Boy Scouts, Burlington United Methodist Family Services, Family Crisis Center, Family Crisis Resource Center, Friends Aware, and Frostburg Village Adult Day Service.

LIONS HELP STUDENT - The Oakland-Mountain Lake Park Lions Club has given Shawn Cardiff some help with expanding his education. Shawn, a junior at Southern High School with a mid-term GPA of 93, has the opportunity to attend "A Presidential Classroom for Young Americans," a seminar to be held in Washington, D.C. The experience will offer him knowledge of the political process and help prepare him for the future. To help defray costs associated with attending the seminar, members of the Lions Club presented a check to the student for $100. Standing left to right are Lowell Leitzel, Lions secretary, Shawn Cardiff, and David Beard, Lions Club past president.

Men Turning 26 Are Advised Of SSS Requirement

Young men who will turn 26 in 1998 will be reaching an important milestone, according to the Selective Service System.

Beginning on January 1, 1998, men who were required to register with Selective Service in 1990 will be turning 26 and will no longer be eligible for induction should a draft be re-instituted. Selective Service does not have the authority to accept late registrations after a man reaches his 26th birthday.

Philip Sherman, Maryland Selective Service System state director, warned that with few exceptions, a man who fails to register before turning 26 will permanently forfeit his eligibility for certain benefits, such as federal student aid, job training, and most federal employment, in addition to facing possible prosecution as a felon.

Some states also require registration for state student aid entrance to state-supported colleges and universities, state employment, and permission to practice law.

Sherman points out that men age 18 through 25 who have not yet registered can avoid the risk of prosecution and loss of benefits by registering promptly at any local post office or on the internet (http://www.sss.gov). Failure to register is a felony punishable by a fine of up to $250,000, up to five years in prison, or both.

Over 12 million men age 18 through 25 are currently registered with Selective Service. Of those, 206,050 are from Maryland.

Q. I still have my Roy Rogers guitar from my childhood. It's brown with a picture of a cowboy and his horse by the campfire. It's missing a couple of strings, but still looks good. What's it worth?

A. Sears, Roebuck and Co. made two versions of the Roy Rogers Guitar in the 1950s.

The larger size measures 13 inches across the body and has a 36-inch long neck. In excellent condition, it's worth $350.

The smaller size is harder to find. It measures 11 inches across the body, and the neck is 33 inches long. Inside the guitar it is marked "Roy Rogers Enterprises." It sells for $375 in excellent condition.

Q. I have a highly decorated plate with a man and woman in the center and gold filigree around the edges. The back is marked with a crown over the initials "CM" in a shield, with "18" on one side and "14" on the other. Underneath are the words "Hutschenreuther Hohenberg Germany." What can you tell me about it?

A. The Porcelain Factory of C.M. Hutschenreuther worked in Hohenberg, Germany, in a part of Bavaria, from 1814 to 1969. It made household, hotel and decorative porcelain, figurines and gifts. The mark you describe was used between 1950 and 1963.

Home Tips

SHOWER MAGIC — Here is my tip for making clean-up on the shower walls easier.

Next time you clean the walls of your shower, rub on some car wax after they're clean. When dry, rub off. This makes water and soap roll off. I do this once a month.

Don't put wax on the bottom of the tub. It will get slippery. Molly S., Douglas, Ga.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This tip works well on glass shower stalls as well as tile.

EASY ZIP — I have read your column a few times now and I like it. I've got a tip for you.

Have you ever tried to put a dress on that has a zipper in the back by yourself? Try this:

Tie (hook) a piece of string onto a paper clip. Then hook the clip onto the zipper. Pull the string over the front of you and pull.

Finally, it's done without struggling, stretching, bending and twisting. Lynn P., Tonawanda, N.Y.

PHOTO ORGANIZATION — I number my prints as soon as I get them. I have all my pictures cataloged. Each album is numbered, then on a sheet of paper I have typed what is in each album — Christmas, Thanksgiving, Easter, Birthdays, Miscellaneous, etc., with the year, of course.

Then when I would like to show someone a particular picture, I can go right to my list and, bingo, there it is!

It no only saves me time, it just wows my friends. Gina Q., Omaha, Neb.

PUFF IT UP — Here's the perfect way to keep pouf valances puffy: I fill them with the plastic peanuts that come as a filler in packages. They never flatten out and work like a charm. Tess K., Houston, Texas

Michelle Kwan: Going for the Gold

Michelle Kwan understands the old axiom that it's easier to get to the top than it is to stay there. Kwan was just 15 when she won the women's figure skating National and World Championships in 1996. Renowned for her poise, artistry and athleticism, Kwan was favored to retain her titles last year, but lost to Tara Lipinski, a 14-year-old dynamo. Those defeats just might help Kwan better prepare for this month's Japan Winter Olympics.

Until last year, Kwan had been touted as a future Olympic champion since age 12. She began skating when she was 5, was 7 when she won her first competition, and 11 when she competed in the U.S. Junior Championships. Bored in the Juniors, she took the test enabling her to move up without telling her coach. Although he was initially furious, she moved up quickly in the Seniors. Her break-out performance at 15 came at Skate America, where she portrayed the temptress Salome. "The music was always in the background," she tells February's Biography magazine. "But this time around, I was the music." The judges agreed, and she won, going on to capture the '96 Worlds and National championships.

But somehow, without knowing why, Kwan lost her self- confidence. "I wasn't thinking 'I can do this,'" she relates. "I was thinking 'I don't want to fail'." When Olympian Scott Hamilton was diagnosed with testicular cancer, she regained her perspective, reminding herself that ultimately skating was about having fun. More relaxed, she bounced back, placing second in the Nationals. "Winning, standing on the podium, smiling — that's the easy part," she says. "Taking defeat and being able to pull yourself back together to try to be on the podium again is more difficult."

For the upcoming Olympics, Kwan aims to be standing on the center podium.

Bible Quizzing Tests Skills Of Mind And Body

For a Jeopardy type experience with a bit of a physical challenge, a person might want to check out the local Bible Quizzing Program. Coordinated by Janie Beitzel for Mountain Top Youth for Christ, the program challenges participants on their knowledge and the speed of their reactions.

An interdenominational group, the Bible Quiz Program deals only with factual references from scripture, Beitzel explained. The participants come from a variety of different church congregations, from Oakland to the Salisbury area of Pennsylvania.

"The program has two divisions. The junior division includes grades 5-8. The senior division includes grades 9-12," Beitzel said.

The Quizzing season runs basically through the winter months. At the start of the season all participants are given the section of scripture from which material for the quizzes will be taken. "They get work sheets with sample questions to study from. They are not the actual questions that will be in the quizzes," she emphasized.

Team members meet in their communities for regular practices with their coaches. These are the training sessions for the quiz meets that are scheduled throughout the season. "We have 80 kids on 19 different teams," Beitzel said. "They learn to work together and share the responsibility."

The meets challenge the team members on several levels. Knowledge of the material, effective interaction with teammates, and the coordination to trigger the electronic signal are all essential elements of a successful team.

Correct use of the signalling pad requires practice. One must sit forward on the chair, pressing down with the thigh muscles against the pad until the pressure point is reached. "It really is exercise for the mind and body. It has been called a sport," Beitzel said.

Team members are permitted to disagree with a ruling. "They are given the opportunity to question decisions. If they think there has been a bad call, they can raise the question," she said.

The meets, besides offering a challenge for team members, provide a social experience, Beitzel noted. Not only do the participants meet their peers from other areas and schools, but family members are invited to come along, bring snacks, and share the time. "The meets are always scheduled for Sunday afternoons to allow all family members to attend," she explained.

The quizzing season culminates in April with the Bible Quiz Camp, a two day meet in which everyone participates.

The Bible Quizzing program offers the young people involved an opportunity to become knowledgeable about scripture. But the participants can gain more than information. They can learn more about their abilities and strengths. The program also offers the chance for social interaction and an expanded group of friends.

The next Bible quiz meet is scheduled for March 1 at Faith Evangelical Free Church, Mtn. Lake Park, at 2 p.m. All churches or individuals are welcome to join the program, Beitzel said. Information is available through Mountain Top Youth for Christ at 1-800-798-7670.

Sierra Club To Host Maryland State Chairman

Chris Bedford, chairman of the Maryland Sierra Club, will be the guest speaker at a meeting/forum of the local group of the Sierra Club, slated for Tuesday, Feb. 17, at Frostburg State University.

According to Karen Krogh, a spokesman for the local group, Bedford will speak about environmental issues that are being debated in the current Maryland legislative session. "The forum is being held to give citizens in western Maryland an idea of what is going on in the legislature, to explain how the different bills might affect them, and to suggest ways that they can get involved," Krogh said.

Some of the issues being debated are: the governor's initiative to manage agricultural and household run-off (to control the fish disease pfiesteria), the de-regulation of the electric industry, the development of intercounty connector roads, parental notification of pesticide spraying in schools, and a bill that would require industries to make public a list of the chemicals they use in manufacturing.

"Mr. Bedford hopes to start a dialogue with citizens in western Maryland," Krogh said. "As he sees it, the quality of our environment continues to decline in spite of all the laws that are on the books. Simply passing laws hasn't worked."

The forum will be held in FSU's library, Room 237, beginning at 7:30 p.m. For more information, persons may telephone Krogh at 301-689-5975.

Workshops For Dairy Farmers Scheduled

Pro-farm workshops for dairy farm family members will be held March 5, 12, and 19 at the Garrett County Extension Service office. The workshops will run from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. those days. Titled "The Financial Ladder of Success—Which Rung Are You On?" most of the three-day workshop time will be devoted to farmers working on their own farm plans. It will be necessary to limit the group to 24 people because of the intensity of individual assistance. If more are interested, the program will be repeated March 6, 13, and 20.

Participants will need to bring their Schedule F income tax forms for 1995, 1996, and 1997, as well as a balance sheet for December 31, 1997. Extension agent Jim Simms will be available to assist anyone who needs help preparing a balance sheet.

Simms said that during the past year he has had several dairy farm families consult with him about the financial future of their dairy business. "For the most part, milk prices were on the downward side of the financial graph, making it so difficult for many dairy farmers to keep pace with the cost of operating their dairy business.

"Two or three years ago, the key phrase being passed around to the dairy farmer was, 'You Have To Be A Better Manager To Stay In Business.' Of course there is validity in that statement no matter what business one may be in;" said Simms, "however, I think this phrase has worn quite thin with most dairy managers and family members. We all realize that we are in a competitive industry and we must use all of our knowledge and skills to keep our business in a positive position.

"A couple of months ago, Dale Johnson, regional farm management specialist, and I were having a real 'brainstorming' session dealing with how we (University of Maryland agricultural faculty) should be positively addressing the major financial problems that many of our state dairy farmers were encountering. To us, it finally boiled down to a very simple statement: 'Let's help the dairy farm family make a sound decision on whether to stay in the business or to exit the business as efficiently as possible.' This is why we came up with the 'Ladder of Success—Which Rung Are You On?' title of our program offering."

Simms explains that he may be able to work with those on the middle rung of the ladder to help them climb one rung at a time. On the other hand, if the farmer is going down the ladder, Simms can work with him so he can land as safely as possible. "That is the intent of our program," Simms said.

Others assisting with the program and providing follow-up assistance are Dr. Wes Musser and Dr. Bob Peters.

On March 5, Day One of the program, the workshop will include:

· Procedures and methods of reviewing past farm performance.

· Using performance averages to compare with benchmark figures to determine how the business is doing.

On March 12, Day Two, the outline will be:

· Troubleshooting the problems identified on the farm from Day One. Focusing on areas of weakness and inefficiency.

· Determine what opportunities might be available for the farm.

· Develop objectives and SMART goals for dealing with these problems.

On the third day, March 19, the program will include:

· Developing a detailed cash flow to determine the future financial condition of the farm, considering the objectives and goals set on Day Two. This will help the dairyman understand the direction the farm is going financially.

Reservations are due by Feb. 19 by calling the Garrett County Extension Office at 301-334-6960. Interested dairymen with additional questions may call Simms at the same number.

Farming In Maryland.....

Governor Glendening Inducts Herbsts Into Md. Agricultural Hall Of Fame

Continuing to stress the importance of farming to the state's economy and quality of life, Governor Parris N. Glendening inducted the Herbst family of Washington County into the Maryland Agricultural Hall of Fame Feb. 5 at the annual Maryland Agriculture Dinner.

"The family we inducted into the Maryland Agricultural Hall of Fame really represents what Maryland is all about. My goal as Maryland's governor is to make Maryland a place where families like the Herbsts have room to thrive and prosper. I want to ensure a bright future for them and their children," Governor Glendening said.

"That is why we are working with farmers, watermen, representatives of the seafood and poultry industries, environmentalists and concerned citizens throughout Maryland to reduce the flow of nutrients into Maryland's streams, rivers and the Chesapeake Bay while at the same time expanding economic opportunities for all sectors of our state's agricultural industry," said Governor Glendening.

Organized in 1991, the Maryland Agricultural Hall of Fame honors farm families in the agricultural industry who exemplify high standards of achievement and commitment to the community.

Former Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley introduced the Herbst family to the governor, who then made the formal induction.

John, David and Betty Herbst operate Misty Meadow Farms in Washington County. It is a dairy operation with 130 Holsteins milked in a double six milking parlor built in the cow barn in 1989. All forages are produced on the farm, including corn silage, small grain silage, alfalfa and grasses. In addition, the farm produces virtually all of the grain needed to feed the dairy and heifer herd except for some protein and calf feed.

While operating a successful farm, the Herbsts' leadership in soil conservation efforts is renowned in Washington County. Their farm has been in a continually active conservation plan for almost 35 years, with numerous best management practices completed under the supervision of the Soil Conservation District. These include strip cropping, grassed waterways and diversions, and roof run-off management to provide water for livestock and protect water quality. No-till conservation tillage is used extensively and steep slopes are kept in grass. And, Misty Meadow Farm has had a nutrient management plan in place since 1990, greatly reducing nutrient runoff and the need for commercial fertilizers on the farm.

Equally as impressive as their commercial and environmental record is the involvement of the entire Herbst family in the community. John, David and Betty are leaders in agricultural organizations, including the Grange, the Washington County Soil Conservation District, Southern States Cooperative, 4-H, Future Farmers of America and more.

The Herbst family realizes that the relationship of agriculture to the rest of Washington County does not stop at the end of the farm lane. They are leaders in the Ringgold Church of Christ, the Girl Scouts, church choirs, and the PTA, just to name a few.

Above all, the Herbst family is committed to young people. For the past 15 years, they have dedicated two weeks in May to farm tours for some 1,200 or more youngsters, parents and teachers. Numerous other tour groups and farm day visits have centered on Misty Meadow Farm. Over the past eight years, Betsy's leadership in the Washington County Ag in the Classroom program has continued to grow into other avenues of teaching the community more about agricultural production, food quality and agriculture's environmental responsibilities.

With this induction, there are now 15 families in the Maryland Agricultural Hall of Fame. The Hall of Fame is housed at the Maryland Department of Agriculture's headquarters building, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway in Annapolis, where permanent plaques and photographs of the award-winning families are prominently showcased.

Feb. 9 Was Food Check-Out Day

Food in America is affordable. In fact, between Jan. 1 and Feb. 9, the average American earned enough income to pay for his or her family's entire 1998 food supply, according to the American Farm Bureau Federation.

As a result, AFBF celebrated Feb. 9 as Farm Bureau's second annual Food Check-Out Day. Last year, Food Check-Out Day fell on Feb. 10.

According to the latest statistics compiled by the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service, American families and individuals spend, on average, 10.9 percent of their disposable personal income for food. That means the average household will have earned enough disposable income—that portion of income available for spending or saving—to pay for the annual food supply in just 40 days, according to Linda Reinhardt, who chairs the AFB Women's Committee.

"The early occurrence of Food Check-Out Day is noteworthy," said Reinhardt, a Kansas cattle producer. "The fact that Americans only work 40 days to pay for their annual food supply speaks well of our nation's increasing standard of living. The affordable domestic food supply produced by America's farmers and ranchers helps make that possible."

In comparison to Food Check-Out Day, Tax Freedom Day, the day the average American had earned enough money to pay federal, state and local taxes, was May 9 last year, according to the Tax Foundation.

"It's truly amazing that people can pay for their yearly food supply three months earlier than it takes them to satisfy their tax burden," Reinhardt said. "Rather than being an economic burden, food remains a comparative bargain for shoppers. That's the way it should be."

That's not true for all of the world's citizens, according to Reinhardt. While Americans devote only 10.9 percent of their incomes to buying food, United Nations statistics indicate percentages for other nations are higher—in some cases considerably higher. In the United Kingdom, for example, the income percentage is 11.5. Other percentages include: Sweden, 14.5 percent; Australia, 14.6 percent; France, 15.2 percent; New Zealand, 15.7 percent; Italy, 17.6 percent; Germany, 17.7 percent; Japan, 17.8 percent; Israel, 21 percent; Spain, 21 percent; South Africa, 27 percent; Mexico, 33.2 percent; and India, 51.4 percent.

Reinhardt is hopeful that Americans will come to understand that affordable food in the United States is "a product of our successful food production and distribution system."

To mark the occasion at the national level, AFBF will donate $1,000 worth of food to the Chicago Ronald McDonald houses. The food will be used to help feed families staying at the houses. Many state Farm Bureaus also are donating food to local Ronald McDonald houses. Ronald McDonald houses provide a "home-away-from-home"for families of seriously ill children receiving medical treatment in local hospitals.

The percent of disposable personal income spent for food has declined over the last 25 years. In 1970, Food Check-Out Day would have been 11 days later—Feb. 20. Food is more affordable today due to a widening gap between growth in per-capita incomes and the amount of money spent for food, according to USDA.

This overall decrease is made more notable by the fact that trends indicate Americans are buying more expensive convenience food items for preparation at home, as well as more food away from home.

Antifungal Approved as OTC for Dandruff

Dandruff is a chronic condition of the scalp in which there is excessive scaling of scalp tissue. The condition first appears during puberty when many changes in the skin occur and tends to peak during the early aduit years. While there is no cure for dandruff, creams, shampoos, and other topical medicines have been used to reduce loose dandruff scales. Keratolytics, such as salicyclic acid, help remove flakes of skin from the scalp and hair. Coal tar products help reduce the number and size of scales produced. Antipruritics, such as menthol, phenol, and resorcinol, produce a cooling sensation which helps overcome itching associated with dandruff.

Antimicrobials are sometimes used for dandruff control based on the theory that microorganisms may be involved in producing dandruff. One type of antimicrobial that has been used is an antifungal. This type of medicine is used to eliminate a particular type of yeast on the scalp referred to as Pityrosporom.

A Reminder — Pro Farm Workshops for Dairy Families

"The Financial Ladder of Success - Which Rung Are You On?" workshops will be held on March 5, 12 & 19, 1998, from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. This is a series of workshops intended to assist dairy farmers in reviewing past farm business performance, establishing benchmark performances, trouble shooting problems, and determining the future objectives and goals of the business.

Dr. Wes Musser, farm management specialist; Dr. Bob Peters, diary specialist; and Dale Johnson, regional farm management specialist, will be part of the team that will be conducting the workshop. We have 24 seats available at the Extension Office, and I would like to have reservations by February 19 (301-334-6960).

Growing Vegetable Transplants

It's that time of the year that the seed catalogs start rolling in and the winter has given us the urge to plant some seeds. As a general observation, you would probably have better quality plants if you just forgot about trying to raise them and buy them at the local greenhouse. But what the "heck" — it's fun!

When should you start your seeds? Starting the seeds too early is the number one mistake of home gardeners. Keep in mind that frost is a common occurrence up until the first of June. The following are approximate times required from planting the seeds until transplants are ready to be set out in the garden:

*2-3 weeks: cucumber, muskmelon, pumpkin, squash, watermelon.

*5-7 weeks: tomato, head lettuse, broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts.

*6-8 weeks: pepper, eggplant.

Plenty of sunlight is needed to keep the plants from getting "leggy." Once the plants have emerged they need at least 6 hours of sunlight each day.

Registration Open For Conference On Nat. Resources Income Opportunities

Farmers, woodland owners, natural resources professionals and others interested in learning how to successfully choose and manage a private land income opportunity are invited to attend a conference being held April 5 to 7 in Hagerstown. The three-day Natural Resources Income Opportunities on Private Lands Conference is designed for individuals interested in developing an enterprise or hobby, and public and private sector professionals that work with landowners.

More than 35 speakers from Vermont to Arkansas—including landowners, consultants, foresters, and Cooperative Extension Service faculty from several states—will share their expertise on a variety of income-generating opportunities, including fishing, hunting, timber management, ecotourism, aquaculture, and the production and marketing of such products as maple syrup and ginseng. They also will explore issues involving finances, liability, insurance and environmental impact.

"Private landowners are becoming increasingly interested in income opportunities that allow them to use their land to generate some income while maintaining the character of the property. They need the best possible information to make wise decisions," says Jonathan Kays, regional natural resources specialist with the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. "This conference is designed to give them that information." Participants will qualify for 13 Society of American Foresters continuing education credits (category one).

The Natural Resources Income Opportunities on Private Lands Conference is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Services of the University of Maryland, Cornell University, Ohio State University, Pennsylvania State University, Virginia Tech, and West Virginia University, along with several federal, state and regional agencies and organizations. The registration fee is $95 if postmarked by March 16. After that, the cost increases to $115. The fee includes admission to all conference presentations and events, two lunches, two dinners, break refreshments, and a complete copy of the conference proceedings.

For a brochure and registration form, those interested may call their local Cooperative Extension Service office. In Garrett County, the number is 301-334-6960. Alternatively, they may call Cindy Mason at 301-432-2767, ext. 301, or send an e-mail message to ctll@umail.umd.edu.

Proposed 1999 Ag Budget Cuts Spending

President Clinton last week announced a $1.7 trillion budget for fiscal 1999, a proposal that brings revenues and spending into balance next year—ahead of the 2002 target set last year.

Agriculture Department spending will decrease from $55 billion to $54.4 billion, making USDA the only department to be funded with a lower amount than last year. The reduction, according to Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman, is due to favorable economic conditions, high loan repayment levels, further employee reduction, welfare reform and program cuts.

Thirty percent of USDA spending is for discretionary programs such as the Women, Infants and Children (WIC) program, rural development, research and technical assistance, soil and water conservation, forestry programs, and domestic and international marketing assistance. The remaining 70 percent is for mandatory programs such as food assistance, commodity programs and some conservation programs.

The budget proposal provides full funding for crop insurance programs by cutting funds for the export enhancement program and cotton marketing certificates. Farm Bureau supports crop insurance funding but opposes cutting EEP and marketing certificates to do so.

The budget provides up to $320 million for EEP in 1999, and USDA will propose legislation to authorize a multiyear program, at $1.2 billion for 1999 to 2003. Full funding for the market access program, supported by Farm Bureau, is proposed at $90 million. Money for agriculture research is increased by $32 million, but funding for the Cooperative State Research, Education and Extension Service is $9 million less than last year. Emphasis will be placed on two Farm Bureau priority issues, food genome research and food safety.

Research also is aimed at reducing greenhouse gases by studying ways to minimize the effects of agricultural production on climate, developing agricultural practices for carbon sequestration and increasing the production of biomass from agricultural crops, including ethanol.

The agriculture budget request proposes legislation to recover the full cost of meat, poultry and egg products inspection through user fees, estimated at $573 million in 1999. Farm Bureau opposes user fees for funding such inspections.

Additional funds are allocated for Farm Bureau-supported projects such as the Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Point program, the pesticide data program, emerging infectious diseases initiatives, alternatives for methyl bromide and National Research Initiative competitive research grants.

The budget authorizes funding for a total of 34 million conservation reserve program acres in 1999. Funding for the environmental quality incentives program (EQIP), supported by Farm Bureau, is increased to $300 million.

The proposal includes $20 million for a new community-based grant program geared toward food recovery and gleaning. Nearly $2 million is provided to implement recommendations for the secretary's advisory committee on agricultural concentration, including increased monitoring and enforcement of antitrust and regulatory policies.

"Deep Creek's Last Great Lakefront"
. . . but about the most trailblazing you'll be doing is finding your way from your back door to the tennis courts, enjoying an evening stroll down lovely wooded trails, or slipping over to your own private dock for some of the best boating in all of Maryland — skimming atop the tranquil, blue waters of Deep Creek Lake.
And though it may seem to be a world unto itself — with its peaceful setting and crisp, clean air — this little diamond in Garrett County's crown is literally just minutes from great shopping, two 18-hole golf courses, a movie theater, and all the fine dining that makes being on the mountain top so special.

Neubert Among Semifinalists For Merit Scholarship

Officials of National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC) have notified Eric Neubert, a senior at Northern High School, that he joins more than 15,000 academically talented high school seniors who have qualified as semifinalists in the 43rd annual Merit Scholarship competition. The semifinalists now have an opportunity to continue in the competition for approximately 7,400 Merit Scholarship awards that will be offered in the spring.

Neubert is among more than 1.1 million students in 20,000 U.S. high schools who entered the 1998 Merit Program as juniors by taking the 1996 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT), which served as an initial screen of program entrants. The highest scorers in each state were designated semifinalists, in numbers representing less than one percent of the state's high school graduating class.

Neubert was named both Northern's male Outstanding and Most Outstanding Student of the Year in the junior class last year and was selected for the National Honor Society membership. He also won the Bausch and Lomb Science Award and the Leadership Award, was third in the engineering category at the regional sci-ence fair, and placed second in a tri-state mathematics competition. He has placed first in mathematics for two years at the Regional Science Fair and has won overall second place at the event.

Neubert has been listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students for three consecutive years, has been named to the National Honor Roll, is a Maryland Distinguished Scholar, and has received a National Science Merit Award.

He is a member of Northern's competition marching band and the varsity soccer, basketball, and track teams. He is on Northern's Science and Academic Bowl teams and is a member of Northern's Sysop Club. Last summer, Neubert completed a one-week science seminar at the United States Air Force Academy and also an eight-week internship at California State University in Los Angeles working in a NASA (National Aeronautics and Space Administration) program. He is a member of the American Institute for Aeronautics and Astronautics and hopes to attend a national university where he will major in aerospace/astronautical engineering, computer science, international relations, or some combination of those areas.

Neubert resides in Grantsville and is the son of Cathy and John Neubert.

Women's Lecture Series Planned By Local Group

Over the last several months a group of Garrett County women have been meeting to discuss and plan a lecture series to focus on women and women's issues.

The program developed would offer a lecture-centered event each month featuring a guest speaker. Included among the topics selected for lectures are women's rights, women in politics, family violence, and harassment.

The idea for this lecture series grew out of efforts of a subcommittee of another group. Donna McClintock, a member of Garrett County Business and Professional Women (BPW), was involved in that effort. Donna Sites and McClintock, members of the legislative committee for BPW, were developing a program for that group. The subject was the anniversary of women winning the right to vote.

"We began contacting other women's groups to see if they wanted to work together on a big program. They all had something arranged already," McClintock explained.

Through the contacts made by Sites and McClintock, dialogue developed. Women from various organizations decided to work together on a joint project. The Women's Lecture Series Planning Committee resulted.

The women on the committee identified a shared goal. "We wanted to give women an idea of what might be available to them if they wanted to be involved in some organization," McClintock said.

Representatives from several groups form the committee. They include Gail Herman, Association of American University Women (AAUW) and Civic Club; Phyllis Trickett, Garrett County Commission on Women (GCCW) and BPW; Susan Athey-Oxford, GCCW; and Barbara Frey, Garrett Community College, New Horizons Program.

The first event in the series is titled Living the Legacy: Women's Rights Movement, 1848-1998. It is scheduled for March 25 at GCC.

Anyone who is interested in assisting with presentations or would like to share information may contact Donna McClintock at 301-334-8253.

Mental Health Group To Manage County Services

Anyone seeking information on mental health services in Garrett County will soon be able to make one call to have a variety of questions answered. Mountain Top Mental Health Associates Inc. will be setting up shop as the Core Service Agency (CSA) for the county.

The members of the board of directors for the agency have been appointed by the Garrett County Commissioners, and the operational requirements are currently being completed, according to Fred Tola, coordinator of the CSA.

The agency will be tasked with planning, managing, and budgeting for mental health services in the county, Tola explained. The services under its venue will include outpatient clinics, individual private offices, emergency/crisis services, short-stay and long-term hospital care, and rehabilitation programs.

"In addition the CSA will work closely with local human service agencies," Tola said. The agencies will provide the support services to allow consumers of mental health services to live as independently as possible in the community.

In the near future an executive director will be hired for the CSA, Tola said. "Soon Garrett County residents will have not just their questions answered on mental health but also a local agency to plan and advocate for those needed services," he concluded.

I would like to say thanks for all the concerned prayers, flowers, and visits from people while I was in the hospital for surgery. A special thanks to Dr. Walch for his excellent medical care and concerns. Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Harriett Buckel has been confined to her home for the past several weeks because of a broken ankle. Recent visitors of her were Annette Keller, Bob Legeer, Jane Sealing, Thelma Emory, Gene Brenneman, Ralph Buckel, Jim Glotfelty, Bill, Tina, Eric and Karla Buckel, and Ruth DiPaolo.

Saturday evening Kyle and Valeria Morrison, McHenry, entertained Rodney and Marci Glotfelty and family and Ruth DiPaolo with a delicious spaghetti dinner.

Ruth DiPaolo returned home from her vacation in Florida visiting Betty Sisk and Jimmie Woodie in Ft. Myers and along with them and three other friends sailed aboard the Enchantment of the Seas to the Bahamas, West Indies, and Virgin Islands. She was an overnight guest in Virginia of Betty and Ellis Sacra. Returning home to about 20 or more inches of snow on the ground was quite a shock.

Mary and Russ Conway, Huron, Ohio, returned again to visit Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Glotfelty and family over the weekend and took to the ski slopes again.

Gene Walsh, Ocean City, is spending a few days at the Rodney Glotfelty home and is taking in some skiing.

Jacob and Amy Moon, Finzel, were weekend guests of her grandmother, Beulah Moon. Eleven family members celebrated the 50th birthday of Larry Moon with a Sunday dinner at the home of his mother, Beulah Moon.

Ferne Beachy became a great-grandmother again with the birth of Wyatt Snyles Beachy, born to Brent and Kelly Beachy, Clarkston, Mich., on Tuesday, Feb. 3. David and Nancy Beachy, grandparents, spent several days visiting them in Clarkston.

Henry, Bonnie, Mary, and William Bowser, Harrisonburg, Va., spent the weekend with Kathryn Bowser.

Bill and Sheila Southerly were Tuesday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Resh.

Jane Avery, Oakland, presented a clinic about how to do public speaking to the Bittinger 4-H Club. The 4-H'ers are preparing their speeches, which will be given in the next few weeks.

Recent visitors of Margaret and Jim Wagner were his children, James Dale Wagner, Hilton Head, S.C., and Todd Wagner, Myrtle Beach, S.C., and Sheila Filsinger and her daughter, Halsi, Accident.

Emmanuel Lutheran Church Women will meet this Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Groundhog Day is over and now it is almost time for Lent to begin, and it must mean that it is almost spring. The Ash Wednesday Service for the Bittinger Parish, along with the Accident Parish, will be held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Accident. The March 4 service will be held at Emmanuel, Bittinger.

The spirit of the Winter Olympics hit in Bittinger on Sunday afternoon with Lloyd Sussman going "head to head" with Walter Haydel on a cross-country ski run. Walter, somewhat still hurting form a recent hernia operation, still was more than willing to make the best of last week's snow fall. Unfortunately, Walter did an imitation of the stunt of the mogul skier and, with some "good air," ended up in a pile at the bottom of the slope which and suddenly turned icy. He was not injured, but unfortunately his left ski broke beyond repair. Just down the road Sam and Ellen Housley, along with Jenny McNally and Rick Pullen, were skiing while the kids, Scott and Brent, did "hillybilly bobsledding on luge" with sleds and other devices to sled down the hill faster. Likewise, up the road, Blakely Glotfelty, Caitlin and Mere Sussman hit the slope with the sleds.

Carol Bass was an overnight guest of her brother, Barry Glotfelty, Frederick, on Sunday night and attended a legislation meeting in Washington on Monday.

Goldstein Stresses Care In Choosing Return Preparer

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said the recent charges of tax fraud, theft, and conspiracy against a Salisbury tax preparer point out the importance of knowing how to choose a professional preparer to help with one's income tax returns.

On January 30, 1998, Bruce White, 40, was charged with preparing and filing scores of fraudulent returns. The charges were announced by Attorney General J. Joseph Curran Jr. and State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein as a result of a lengthy investigation that involved the Attorney General's office, the State Comptroller's office, the Maryland State Police, and the Internal Revenue Service.

"About one-half of Maryland taxpayers use the services of a professional tax preparer to assist them in filing their federal and state income tax returns," Goldstein said. "You should use the same care in selecting a tax preparer that you do in choosing a doctor, lawyer, or any other professional service provider.

"While the vast majority of tax preparers do an excellent job, taxpayers should be sure that the preparer they select is reputable by seeking references from people they trust, and being sure that the preparer will be around after April 15, to assist if there are any questions or problems concerning their returns."

Goldstein noted that taxpayers should avoid preparers who: promise them a refund without ever seeing their tax records; ask them to sign a blank tax form; charge a fee that is a percentage of the refund; or ask that the refund be sent directly to the preparer rather than the taxpayer.

"These are 'red flags' for taxpayers to watch out for. We maintain an extensive tax fraud awareness program in our office, which led to the detection of Mr. White's questionable actions. However, the tax return is ultimately the taxpayer's responsibility, even if someone else prepares it. That is why it is important to choose wisely and to be sure that if someone else prepares your return, that person also signs the return," Goldstein said.

If convicted of the charges, White could be sentenced to 65 years in prison and fines totaling $27,000.

Tressler Lutheran Provides Update, Announces Plans

Garrett County residents were among the nearly 20,000 people served last year by Tressler Lutheran Services, a regional social service agency offering specialized programs in Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Delaware.

"Now more than 130 years old, Tressler continues to serve people in need, of all ages and in many circumstances," said the Rev. Dr. Thomas W. Huriocker, president of the Pennsylvania-based agency that operates Frostburg Village of Allegany County, which has program sites in Allegany and Garrett counties.

The Frostburg Village nursing care center served 182 people, while the Frostburg Heights apartment complex, which also offers a sheltered housing program, served 115.

Frostburg Village Adult Day Services provided daytime care to 56 people. Located in Midland, the center provides services and activities that allow older persons to remain active and with families or in their own homes for as long as possible. The village also operates Mountain Glade Adult Day Services in Oakland, which served 49 people. Volunteers contributed thousands of hours of service to village programs.

With the planned transfer of some of the village nursing care center's beds to the St. Vincent de Paul Nursing Care Center in Frostburg, which Tressler manages, agency staff are investigating new services for portions of the Frostburg nursing care center, including expanded care for those with cognitive impairments and assisted living.

Among other Tressler programs in Maryland are Ravenwood Lutheran Village in Hagerstown, Tressler Lutheran Community Ministries in Baltimore, Lutheran Employment Training Services, Tressler Discovery Centers, which offer children's day care, and adoption services for children with special needs, which serves the entire state.

Tressler is planning to open an additional adult day services center in Accident by this spring, and has announced plans to create an additional senior-housing campus in Hagerstown in conjunction with Washington County Health System Inc.

MAYOR AND TOWN COUNCIL OF LOCH LYNN HEIGHTS, MARYLAND
RESOLUTION NO. 1998-I
RESOLUTION TO ANNEX PROPERTY INTO THE TOWN OF LOCH LYNN HEIGHTS, MARYLAND

RECITALS

Garrett County, Maryland, Community Action Committee, inc. (Community Action) is the owner of 8.26 acres of land by virtue of a deed from Henry F. Moomau dated and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland in Liber 635 at folio 870 (the"Land"). This land is adjacent to the town. Community Action has constructed on a portion of the Land a rental housing project consisting of 24 single family dwelling units, a laundry facility, and an accessory office for the project in 6 separate buildings configured in such a manner so that approximately 10 of the units are Townhouses under the terms of the Loch Lynn Zoning Ordinance and approximately 14 of the units are Apartments under the Loch Lynn Heights Zoning Ordinance. The portion of the Land which is appropriated for the multi-family housing project is 95,173 square feet for the project, 46,433 square feel for the Storm Water Management site serving the project and 65,660 square feet making up the roadway on the Land. This construction is complete as of the date of this Resolution. The remainder of the Land is to be divided into iots for either Single Family Detached Dwellings or Twin Dwellings. All roads are lo be built to current Town Standards at the expense of Community Action. Community Action has requested that the Land be annexed into the Town of Loch Lynn Heights and has agreed in writing not to seek tax exempt status for such land if annexed into the Town of Loch Lynn Heights. More than 25% of the residents of the property to be annexed have requested annexation. The Mayor and Town Council has agreed to proceed with the process of annexation. Such annexation will require submission to the Town Planning Commission, compliance with the provisions of Article 23A, Section 11 et seq. with regard to the Charter Amendment; compliance with Article 23A, Section 19 with respect to Annexation and compliance with the provisions of the Loch Lynn Zoning Ordinance with respect to the required amendment to the Zoning Map of Loch Lynn Heights. If Annexation is successful all persons residing in the area to be annexed and their property shall be added to the corporate boundaries generally subject to the provisions of the Charter of the Town as the same may from time to time be amended. The Land will be annexed into the Town under the zoning classification of Town Residential. This classification allows Single and Two Family Detached Dwellings as Permitted Uses and Townhouse and Apartment dwellings as Special Exception Uses. In addition the Townhouse and Apartment Dwellings shall be annexed into the Town as a pre-existing special exception uses on pre-existing non conforming lot or lots. The Garrett County Planning and Zoning Office has certified that the above land uses are fully consistent with the plans and policies of the County Comprehensive Plan. This Resolution is introduced for the purpose of proceeding forward with the Annexation and the Amendment to the Zoning Map of Loch Lynn Heights, Maryland. The Charter Amendment is being addressed in a separate resolution.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED AS FOLLOWS:

1. That upon the request of Garrett County, Maryland, Community Action Committee, Inc., the owner of the Land, the Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Loch Lynn Heights propose to annex the land into the corporate limits of the Town.

2. The land to be annexed is described as follows:
Beginning at a corner fence post found at the end of the third line of Military Lot 917, and in the northeasterly line of the property owned now or formerly by Charles J. Martin (Liber 32 at folio 96), and at a point described as a concrete post at the original beginning of Military lots 880 and 919 in the description of the corporate boundaries in the Municipal Charter of Loch Lynn Heights; thence, with part of the said third line and part of the first line of Military Lot 919, and the outline of the limits of Loch Lynn Heights (North 27 degrees and 35 minutes East 1650 feet), a municipal corporation, North 23 degrees East, 450.00 feet to a set 5/8th inch by 36 inch iron rebar and plastic cap marked 126, hereinafter called " iron pin"; thence, leaving said Military lot line, and the outline of said municipal corporation, South 67 degrees East, 800 feet to a set iron pin; thence 23 degrees West 450 feet to an iron pin set in the fence line marking the fourth line of Military lot 917, thence with part of said fourth line, North 67 degrees West, 800 feet to the beginning, containing 8.26 acres, more or less.

3. Said land will be annexed by the Town under the zoning classification of Town Residential. Upon annexation the persons residing on the property to be annexed and their property shall be generally subject to the provisions of the Charter of the Town.

4. There is constructed on a portion of the land consisting of 95,173 square feet at the time of this resolution 24 dwelling units, an office and laundry facilities in 6 separate buildings. Under the Town Residential Zoning classification such use would require a Special Exception. In addition the number of single family attached units would require a variance with respect to density. However, since the construction is complete at the time of the annexation these uses and structures are being brought into the town as a pre-existing non-conforming lot and pre-existing use. Future development of the remainder of the land shall be in accordance with the Town Charter and ordinances.

5. All roads in the property will be constructed by Community Action, at its cost, to current Town standards. After annexation they shall be turned over to the Town and shall thereafter be maintained as Town Streets.

6. Upon annexation, the land shall be a part of the Town. All residents on the land annexed and their property shall be subject to the Charter and ordinances of the Town and shall be entitled to the rights and privileges of citizens of the Town in accordance with the provisions of the Town Charter.

7. That the Mayor shall cause to be published a public notice of this resolution in a newspaper of general circulation in the Town of Loch Lynn Heights and in the area proposed to be annexed not less than 4 times, at weekly intervals. This public notice shall briefly and accurately describe the proposed annexation and the conditions circumstances applicable. The publication of this Resolution and a map of the area to be annexed shall be sufficient for such purpose.

8. This public notice shall specify Monday, March 30, 1998 at 7:00 PM as the date and time and the Town Hall of Loch Lynn Heights located at 211 Bonnie Boulevard, Loch Lynn Heights, Maryland, as the place of a public hearing on the annexation of the land by the Town. This date is not less than 15 days after the date of the last publication described above.

9. Immediately upon the first publication of the public notice the Mayor shall cause a copy of the public notice to be sent to the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County, Maryland, to The Garrett County Planning and Zoning Office, to the Tri-County Council for Western Maryland, and to the Maryland Office of Planning.

10. The Mayor shall also cause to be prepared an amended zoning map for the Town which includes the annexed property shown under the classification of Town Residential.

11. The Mayor shall submit a copy of this Resolution and the related Charter Amendment Resolution to the Loch Lynn Planning Commission with a request that The Planning Commission review it and provide its comments to the Mayor and Town Council within 30 days.

12. The effective date of the annexation shall be in accordance with the provisions of Article 23A, Section 19 of the Annotated Code of Maryland.

DNR Attempting To Expand Bear Awareness Info

Patty Manown of the Department of Natural Resource's local office met with the Garrett County Commissioners this week to ask for their verbal support of a future bear awareness class.

"We have been reaching students in the local school system for years, but we have never really reached out to adults to educate them about living with the black bears," she said.

Manown told the commissioners that continued development in Western Maryland has caused the bears to "be on the move" and that sightings have increased steadily over the past few years. She said the DNR does not encourage persons to call authorities when they see a black bear on their properties.

"It happens a lot; they live here, too," she said.

However, Manown said DNR is sincerely concerned about persons who are experiencing damage from black bears and that legislation is in the works to further address that problem.

"People think we don't pay attention to them, but I want to say that we do care," she said. "As far as doing anything for a person who has a black bear in his yard, we can only do what we are authorized to do. We all choose to live here and bears are a natural part of our habitat."

Manown's purpose in meeting with the elected officials Tuesday was to ask for their support of a class slated to take place in April. It will be geared toward adults to provide information on what do to during black bear encounters.

The DNR has for several years been printing a brochure titled "Learning to Live with Black Bears" and has been distributing the publication to local brochure stands, hotels, and rental properties. Manown said they hope to expand the distribution.

"We have had a definite increase in nuisance complaints, but our statistics show that last year, about 54% of those calls came from around Deep Creek Lake. This says to us that several of these people are visitors and have no idea what to do when they encounter our natural wild-

NO, IT'S NOT PUFF, but this dragon created from clay by Garrett Community College art student Bill Teter is magical nonetheless. The dragon sculpture, a product of imagination and hands working in concert and meeting in ceramic, is one of the 125-plus student artworks currently on display at the Bausch & Lomb Gallery. The public is invited to a reception for all the GCC student artists in the show, which showcases over 125 original artworks, on Wednesday, Feb. 25, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the B&L Gallery. Attempted Second Degree Murder Charges Filed

Oakland Police filed charges in two counts of attempted second degree murder against a 20-year-old Oakland man on Saturday.

According to the report, arrest warrants were served on Eric S. Uphold as the result of an incident that occurred Friday evening around 7:15 p.m. for which charges had been filed by Amy D. Dick, 19, and Kristin R. Warnick, 19, both of Oakland.

The report said that Dick and Uphold had been arguing when Dick told Uphold to give her the keys to her car. Uphold refused and the two women reportedly began to walk to a store.

Uphold allegedly followed the women in Dick's car, told them to get in the vehicle, and when they refused he attempted to hit them with the car.

Police reported that Dick and Warnick ran to a gas station and hid in the bathroom. They were later taken to a friend's home by a third woman.

Oakland Police charged Uphold with two counts of attempted second degree murder, two counts of attempted first degree assault,

Over $1.7 Million Granted For New Deer Park Water System

The United States Department of Agriculture's Rural Development Administration announced this week that more than $1.7 million in federal grant and loan funding has been awarded to Garrett County for a new water distribution system in Deer Park.

An irony that has been publicized nationally is the fact that Deer Park, Maryland, is known for its water, as the Nestle company owns Deer Park Boiling Springs and sells bottled water all along the east coast of the country. However, the residents of the town do not have an adequate water supply, as there is no town system and the individual wells have become less and less productive over the past several years.

The funding formula is divided as follows: $1.2 million in grant funding and $573,200 in a 40-year loan.

"We are very appreciative of the Rural Development Administration's decision. This is the best funding we have ever received," said Wendell Beitzel, director of the Garrett County Sanitary District. He said the Maryland Department of the Environment was going to fund the project, but the entire amount was to be a loan. His office then applied for the federal grant (approximately two years ago). The $1.2 million in grant funds will greatly alleviate the cost to the residents and county.

Beitzel said the 40-year loan for the $573,200 will probably be paid for through a nominal ad valorem tax to the water customers.

"We haven't decided anything yet, as far as the loan repayment," he said. "We'll be talking with the residents there first."

Beitzel went on to say that his office and the Nestle company have discussed the possibility of the town system being hooked up to the Boiling Springs line. There is apparently plenty of water to continue serving the famous company and the 147 homes in Deer Park. Reportedly, the company currently uses less than half of the 165,000 gallons it is permitted to take daily from the spring.

"We haven't reached a final decision there, but it is looking positive," Beitzel said.

Sewer upgrades in Deer Park were recently completed by Beitzel's office through loan funding provided under the 1996 Safe Drinking Water Act.

Police Report Accidents On Local Roads

Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, reported several injuries resulting from accidents on Garrett County roadways.

Three-Car Mishap

An accident involving three vehicles occurred Sunday on Chestnut Ridge Road at the ramp from I-68.

According to the police report, Philip O. Fisher, 45, Grantsville, was northbound on Chestnut Ridge Road about 9:15 a.m. At the same time a vehicle, driven by a minor, failed to stop at the stop sign when exiting the ramp from I-68 to Chestnut Ridge Road, the report said. The juvenile's vehicle struck Fisher's vehicle broadside.

A third vehicle, also driven by a minor, had been following the vehicle exiting the ramp and struck the back of that vehicle as it impacted the Fisher car.

Fisher was taken to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released. The minors were charged in the incident.

The elected officials will review the legislative issues in which they are involved, chiefly dealing with Garrett County, but also those issues that affect the entire state. The men will give their reports and then will be available to answer questions from audience members.

Local Newlyweds Left Homeless By Monday Fire

A Finzel couple, who were just married on Saturday, lost their house and most of their possessions Monday evening when fire of undetermined origin leveled their two-story wood frame house, located at 221 West Finzel Road.

Volunteer fire fighters from the Eastern Garrett, Grantsville, Frostburg, Shaft, Clarysville, Midland, and Lonaconing fire departments were summoned to the residence of Tim and Melissa Savage at about 5:30 p.m., but were unable to save the structure, which was fully involved in flames upon their arrival. Icy roads hampered the fire fighters' efforts in getting to the scene.

According to a report from Deputy Chief Fire Marshal Charles M. Cronauer, the house was owned by Paul and Heidi Custer, and it was Mrs. Custer who discovered the fire. She told Cronauer that the Savages had left the house at 5:30 a.m. Monday for a honeymoon in Baltimore, and that she was tending a woodstove in the house while the Savages were away. Mrs. Custer put wood in the stove at about 3:30 p.m. and returned to her home, which is within sight of the Savage residence. At approximately 5:30 p.m., Custer noticed what appeared to be a chimney fire at the house and she called 911. She drove back to the house and saw flames coming out of the windows.

While the cause of the fire may be linked to the woodstove, Cronauer had not yet made a determination as of Tuesday. He did not have an estimate of the loss, but said that the owners had insurance on the property.

Fire units remained on the scene for over two hours. Also responding was

GOLD MEDALIST HAS GARRETT COUNTY ROOTS - One of the few gold medals won so far by the United States in the 1998 Winter Olympic Games was captured by freestyle skier Jonny Moseley, who happens to have a connection to Garrett County. Moseley's great-grandfather was Henry F. Kahl, who was born and reared in Accident. According to Randall Kahl, Deer Park, Henry Kahl moved to Johnstown, Pa., after high school and married the former Mamie Thomas of Meyeradale. They had a son, Richard V. Kahl, whose daughter Barbara Ann, currently a resident of Tiburon, Calif., is Jonny Moseley's mother. Randall's father Peter was a brother to Henry Kahl and thus, Randall is a first cousin, twice removed, of Jonny. The Olympic champion is related to all of the Kahls in the county, since all are descendants of Henry F. Kahl's father, who came to Accident from Appenrod, Germany, in the 1800s.

Commissioners To Take Stance On Community Block Grant Application

The Garrett County Commissioners will meet today to make their final decision on whether or not to endorse an application for a Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) to help establish the Simon Pearce Inc. glassblowing company. The commissioners held a public hearing Tuesday on the issue, as is required by law.

James Hinebaugh, the director of the county's economic development office, presented the issue to those present Tuesday, explaining that the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) provides funds to each of the states to use in community revitalization, economic development, and the improvement of community facilities, services, and projects. The money provided through CDBGs is grant funding, not a loan to be repaid to the state or federal governments.

Simon Pearce has committed to expand his glassblowing business in Garrett County at the former Bausch & Lomb facility. Pearce is putting up approximately $539,238 of the needed $2,539,238 to acquire the necessary machinery and equipment, and to make renovations to the facility.

The arrangement to assist Pearce, formulated by Hinebaugh's office and members of the Garrett County Economic Development Corporation (GCEDC), is as follows:

IT WAS A HAPPY DAY in Friendsville last Thursday when the ribbon was cut to officially open the Garrett Medical Group Friendsville Clinic. A number of persons, representing local and county government, health care providers, and the staff of the clinic, participated in the ceremony. The town has gone for many months without the availability of local health care since the previous practice in the same location had to be closed by Garrett County Memorial Hospital for financial reasons. Pictured from left in the above photo are: Gay Rodeheaver, receptionist; Kip Boone, comptroller for the Garrett Medical Group; Patty Sines, LPN, staff member; Friendsville Mayor Spencer Schlosnagle; Garrett County Commissioner Wayne Johnson; Dr. Margaret Kaiser, adult preceptor for the clinic; Commissioner Wayne Wilt; Jackie Snelson, nurse practitioner and head clinician; Commissioner Gary Fratz; Ian Tucker, medical student; Jerry Wolford, Friendsville pharmacist; and Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator. Not present for the photo were Dr. Karl Schwaim, children and OB preceptor; Cathy McClintock, LPN; and Dr. Rex Archer, county health officer. The clinic is open Monday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, and appointments may be made by calling 301-746-4160.

VACANT HOUSE DESTROYED - Little remained of a vacant house along Lake Shore Drive, Deep Creek Lake, after a fire of undetermined origin erupted early Monday morning. Volunteers from the Deep Creek, Oakland, Deer Park, and Accident fire departments were summoned to the house, owned by Michael N. Kennedy, at 5:40 a.m. and found the wood structure fully involved in flames. Neighbors discovered the fire and called for assistance. According to a release from the state fire marshal's office, Kennedy had contracted for the demolition of the house and work had already begun. Workmen had left the dwelling on Sunday at about 7:30 p.m. and told fire investigators that they had left a fire smoldering in one of the fireplaces, but it has not yet been determined if that was the cause of the blaze. The loss was estimated to be $15,000. Approximately 30 fire fighters brought the fire under control in about 30 minutes. Also responding was the Southern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

Amanda is the daughter of Brad and Patsy Stewart, Oakland.

Swanton Man Gets PBJ For CDS Violation

A Swanton man was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ) after he pleaded guilty to three drug violations in last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings.

John Charles Newton, 41, faced charges of marijuana possession, removing the prescription label from a prescription medication, and driving while under the influence of a drug.

Newton had been arrested in October by Maryland State Police troopers investigating a one-vehicle accident. Troopers found Newton sitting at the wheel of his Chevrolet Blazer which had run off New Germany Road into a ditch just north of Recovery Road. Newton was uninjured, but failed field sobriety tests and was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated (DWI), which was later revised to reflect the driving while under the influence of a drug. Following his arrest, a search uncovered several prescription bottles in his pockets and in the vehicle. The bottles contained pills and the prescription labels had been removed. A quantity of suspected marijuana was also recovered during the search.

The PBJ ruling means that Newton's case will not reflect a criminal conviction if he complies with all terms of his two years of supervised probation. Judge Ralph M. Burnett also handed Newton a 150-day suspended sentence, and ordered him to pay $300 in restitution to the Friendsville Pharmacy.

In other district court news, after pleading not guilty to his charges, David Edington Jr., 18, Mtn. Lake Park, was convicted of malicious destruction of property and exonerated of a second-degree assault charge. In December Edington was arrested by Garrett County Sheriff's deputies after a Loch Lynn altercation in which he reportedly kicked and broke Amanda Spiker's car window. The judge handed Edington a 30-day suspended sentence, fined him $50 fine, placed him on six months of supervised probation, and ordered a $143 restitution payment to Spiker.

Charges of second-degree assault and fourth-degree burglary faced by Michael Paul Bittinger, 22, Bruceton Mills, W.Va., were placed on the stet docket. The charges stemmed from Bittinger's September arrest by the state police after he allegedly assaulted David Bicker of Grantsville in a dispute over a domestic situation involving Bittinger's sister. The stet ruling means that the state's attorney's office can recall the case for trial within the next 365 days if it deems necessary. Bittinger is to have no contact with Bicker, the stet stipulates.

A charge of spotlighting while having a weapon in his possession faced by Timothy Alan Reed Jr., 19, Princeton, W.Va., was placed on the stet docket with the stipulation that he complete 20 hours of community service. Reed had been cited in November by Department of Natural Resources Police, who had apprehended him in a field off Mosser Road.

Walter Allen Tasker, 33, Oakland, and John Edward Sweitzer, 28, Mtn. Lake Park, were both found not guilty of second-degree assault, with the requirement that each complete 20 hours of community service.

Paul Thomas Turner, 30, Lonaconing, was found not guilty after facing charges of disorderly conduct and endangering himself via consumption of alcohol.

Several driving while intoxicated hearings were conducted in district court recently.

Chad Everett Fike, 24, Friendsville, pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $355, handed a 60-day sentence of which all but seven days were suspended, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Bernice Joyce Crawford, 40, McHenry, pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, fined $255, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Michael Robert Scovitch, 21, Laurel, pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, fined $100, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

Jeffrey David Lumley, 21, Cleveland, Ohio, pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, fined $100, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on six months of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

SINCELL PUBLISHING SUPPORTS FOUNDATION - For the fifth consecutive year, the Sincell Publishing Company, publisher of The Republican newspaper, has supported the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation's George W. Loar Circle, a designation that recognizes businesses and civic organizations that support the foundation through annual gifts of $1,000 or more. "A community hospital is one of the few entities that at some point touches every single life in the community, and it is important that good quality health care be immediately available," said Donald W. Sincell, co-owner of Sincell Publishing and editor of The Republican. To date the publishing company's total contributions to the hospital foundation amount to $15,000. Sincell Publishing was a primary donor of the foundation's initial fund-raising effort, known as the Capital Campaign, having contributed $10,000. Above, Sincell presents William B. Grant, chairperson of the George Loar Circle Committee, right, with a check in the amount of $1,000. The Republican, established in 1877, provides weekly news coverage for over 30,000 readers in Garrett County, as well as surrounding areas in West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

County Building Code Information Meeting Slated

The Garrett County Building Code will be the topic of discussion at a meeting slated for Thursday, Feb. 26, at 6:30 p.m. in Room 304 of the Garrett County Courthouse. The informational session will be geared toward contractors, homeowners, and any other individuals interested in the building codes system.

The meeting will be an open forum for discussion about the building code, which went into effect in August of last year.

For more information, persons may call the Garrett County Office of Building Permits and Inspections at 301-334-1920.

State's Attorney Representative To Be In Grantsville

State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch announced this week that a representative from her office will be available at the Grantsville Town Hall every Thursday, 1-6 p.m. This action is part of and funded by the grant program for "HotSpot" communities, she said.

Citizens from northern Garrett County are encouraged to use this opportunity to present their concerns to the state's attorney's office. Those persons already involved as victims or witnesses in pending criminal cases may stop in to ask questions about their cases or to discuss restitution or other evidence.

"We have seen the frustration of those from Grantsville and the surrounding area when we ask witnesses to come to our office to be interviewed or we ask victims to bring to us repair estimates or photos of damages or injuries," Welch said. "This is our attempt to make the criminal justice system more 'victim and witness friendly.'

"We also feel people have questions or concerns that need to be addressed face-to-face and not over the telephone in a long-distance call. There will be a better flow of information if we can provide it directly to the concerned citizens," she concluded.

WKHJ Radio Frequency To Change Tuesday

Radio Station WKHJ-FM, Loch Lynn, which has been broadcasting on 98.9 FM since its debut in July 1990, will move to 104.5 FM early next week. The move has been ordered by the Federal Communications Commission to accommodate a power increase for another radio station.

"The bright side of this is that it also allows us to increase our power from 3,000 to 6,000 watts," said Roger Ruff, president of Southern Highlands Incorporated, owner of WKHJ. "Although we won't know for sure until the move is completed, we suspect this will help our overall signal strength in some valleys and it should improve reception on the fringes of our current coverage area."

Weather permitting, the move is scheduled to take place after the morning show on Tuesday, Feb. 24. The process is expected to be completed before the end of the day, and the station plans to hold a contest for listeners who make the switch and maintain a vigil through the down time, Ruff said.

"We thought it would be nice to give a loyal listener $104.50 for making the change and listening for our debut at 104.5 FM," said radio veteran Terry King, WKHJ operations manager. "We'll be letting the cat out of the bag on how to win the money in the days leading up to the change."

The frequency move marks another major change in Garrett County's licensed radio stations. WKHJ is co-owned with stations WWHC-FM and WMSG-AM. The three stations formed Western Maryland's first duopoly and share studio facilities in Loch Lynn Heights.

Changing frequencies is becoming more common in today's world of radio consolidation, Ruff explained, but the switch of WKHJ from 98.9 to 104.5 FM is believed to be the first in Western Maryland since the early 1950s.

Cannon Seeks Fourth Term As Councilman

As the town of Oakland's municipal election approaches, Harold "Moose" Cannon has decided to seek another term on the Oakland Town Council. He has served three two-year terms to date, and said he would like the opportunity to serve the residents of Oakland for another term.

He said there are some projects he feels strongly about and wants to help see them become reality. He feels these projects will enhance the business community as well as be good for the residents of Oakland.

Over the last six years, Cannon has obtained a good working knowledge of town government, he said.

"I feel the present council and mayor work well together and we have made many strides over the past years, by not only resolving today's problems, but also planning for the future," he said. "I feel if I am re-elected, I can help the mayor and council move forward on some existing issues and address problems that will arise in the future. As chairman of the town's parks and recreation department, I hope to help the town continue to improve Broadford Recreation Area for the enjoyment of everyone."

Cannon and his wife Peggy are life-long Garrett County residents, and have resided on Pythian Avenue in Oakland for the past eight years. The candidate has been a member of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department for the past 20 years, and was a local business owner for six years.

"A working man's point of view and common sense are two things I bring to the table to help serve the business owners, residents, and taxpayers of Oakland," he said. "If re-elected, I will contribute all I can to keep Oakland a viable community for families and businesses, both old and new. I would appreciate your support in the upcoming election on March 9."

GCMH Slates Blood Screening For Next Month

Garrett County Memorial Hospital's Wellness program will conduct its annual March Blood Chemistry Screening on Tuesdays, March 10, 17, 24, and 31, in the hospital's Community Services Center from 6:30 to 9:30 a.m.

According to Debora Nichols, CHES, Wellness coordinator at Garrett Memorial, the screening includes a comprehensive metabolic profile, lipid profile, a thyroid blood test, and complete blood count without differential. An optional PSA (prostate cancer blood screening) will also be available for men over age 50 upon request.

"The annual March blood screening is a very resourceful way for individuals to become current on their overall health status at a reasonable cost," said Ms. Nichols. "Because of the popularity of this program, we encourage appointments to be scheduled as early as possible."

The screening cost is $30 and an additional $12 for the PSA test. Participants must fast for 12 hours to ensure accuracy of test results and their physician must take part in the program.

MARCH BLOOD SCREENING by Garrett County Memorial Hospital will be held March 10, 17, 24, and 31 in the hospital's Community Services Center. Appointments must be made in advance by calling 301-334-2155, ext. 408. A 12-hour fast is required. Above, phlebotomist Francy Clark draws a blood sample from screening participant Betsy Felten.

To schedule an appointment or for further details, persons may call 301-334-2155, ext. 408.

Workshop Set To Share Info On County Resources

A special workshop titled "Garrett County Resources" will be presented at Garrett Community College on Thursday, Feb. 26. The program will begin at 1 p.m. in Room 305 of the Continuing Education Building. This workshop is free and open to the public.

Susan Athey-Oxford of the Garrett County Office for Children, Youth, and Families will offer an overview of the information available in the Garrett County Family Services Directory. Published in January 1997, the directory includes specific information about more than 300 support resources available to residents of Garrett County. In addition to the name, address, and phone number of each organization, the specific services offered, eligibility requirements, contact person, hours of service, fees, and other useful information are included for each resource. A limited number of these resource books will be available to participants in this workshop.

According to a GCC spokesman, Ms. Athey-Oxford brings experience, education, and commitment to her work at the Garrett County Office for Children, Youth, and Families. Through participation in the Common Market Program, she completed her graduate studies at West Virginia University in rural social work. Her work now involves a variety of responsibilities. It was under her guidance that the Garrett Information Center produced the Family Services Directory, which will be featured in this workshop. She also works directly with clients in both the Infants and Toddlers Program and the Return/Diversion program. Ms. Athey-Oxford will be available for questions about any of these services during her presentation.

The workshop is sponsored by the New Dimensions Program, the New Horizons Program, and The Caring Connection Program of Garrett Community College under the direction of Barbara Frey. For additional information or to register, interested persons may contact Barbara at 301-387-3071 or Virginia Jeffrey, intake/counselor specialist for the New Dimensions and The Caring Connection programs at 301-387-3103.

The New Horizons program is jointly funded by the Maryland State Department of Education and Garrett Community College. Grant funds in the amount of $45,000 are made available to the New Horizons Program through the Division of Career Technology and Adult Learning, which is approximately 90% of the total program budget, with GCC contributing an additional $5,300 which is approximately 10% of the total budget. The Caring Connection is 100% funded by the Maryland State Department of Education in the amount of $20,000. The New Dimensions Program is 100% funded by the Department of Human Resources.

Oakland Man Held On Burglary, Theft Charges; $25K Bond

An Oakland man is being held in the Garrett County jail on a $25,000 bond following his arrest this week for allegedly stealing $370 in cash from a co-worker's home.

David Allen Ridenour, 34, Oakland, faces charges of first-degree burglary and felony theft stemming from the incident that occurred in the 1600 block of Crellin Underwood Road Sunday afternoon. Upon returning home from a short outing, the residents discovered that the house had been entered and several hiding places where currency and coins were kept had been looted. A knife that the residents suspected belonged to Ridenour was found at the scene next to a small metal bank that had been pried open. Deputies from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office apprehended and arrested Ridenour nearby shortly after the incident was reported.

In other sheriff's news, a domestic assault resulted in the arrest of William Sachs, 37, Deer Park, on a charge of second-degree assault. Sachs reportedly became violent during an argument with his wife Cheryl over his drinking habits. During the course of the ensuing altercation Sachs allegedly slapped his wife, threw her to the floor, kicked her, and commenced beating her with a vacuum cleaner. The victim displayed bruises, bumps, and cuts to the investigating deputies, although she did not require medical treatment. Sachs is currently being held on a $20,000 bond.

A theft from the Grantsville American Legion Post 214 of an envelope containing over $100 in cash was reported over the weekend. The management suspects the theft occurred sometime between Thursday, Feb. 5, and Saturday, Feb. 7.

The incident is still under investigation, and persons with information about this or any other criminal activity are encouraged to call the Crime Solvers number at 301-334-1975. Anonymity is guaranteed.

Both Strawderman and a passenger, Roland D. Gomer Jr., 25, Cumberland, were taken to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released.

GCC Student Art Show Puts Area Talent On Display

Over 125 artworks by students at Garrett Community College (GCC) are currently on display in the college's Bausch & Lomb Art Gallery. The show includes drawings, oil paintings, watercolors, pottery, sculpture, etchings, and block prints that were made by art students during the spring and fall semesters of 1997. A variety of images and styles are presented, as well as class exercises, experiments, and individual projects.

The exhibit is open during regular college hours, and will close with a public reception honoring the student artists on Wednesday, Feb. 25, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. There will be light refreshments and various items such as college catalogs and back issues of art magazines free for the taking. Many of the artworks are on sale as well.

This event is made possible in part by a grant from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council.

Arrest Made In Case Of School Property Damage

An arrest has been made following an investigation into a case of property damage to two Garrett County schools.

Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, reported the arrest of a minor on charges stemming from an incident last month in which damage to school property was estimated at $1,350.

As reported in the Jan. 8 edition of The Republican, state police said that sometime late Jan. 3 or early Jan. 4 unknown suspects had driven a 4-wheel drive vehicle across fields at Northern High School and Accident Elementary School. The vehicle damaged about 50 yards of grass and destroyed five trees.

Local Group To Identify, Mark Historic Sites

A group of local business people have initiated a project that will result in placing markers at historic sites in the Grantsville area. Members of the Greater Grantsville Business Association (GGBA) have taken the first steps that will increase the focus on some of the culturally important places in the area.

They have decided to pursue the project of identifying as many sites as possible and then finding the means to install permanent signs or plaques. "This would not just be for visitors to the area. It would help all us share with our children some of the rich culture of the area, and heighten their awareness of the history," said Candy Fetterly, president of GGBA.

The group has held discussions and is planning a strategy. Two resource people have been contacted by group members. "We have met with Maxine Broadwater, a local historian, to get information. We have also met with Al Feldstein of the State Office of Planning," she noted.

Fetterly said the project is not limited to members of GGBA and that the group would appreciate assistance from anyone who would like to help. "We are still in the early stages on this project," Fetterly said.

Anyone interested in joining this effort may contact Candy Fetterly at 301-895-4248 or Lindy Moebs at 301-895-3826.

No to Gambling...

So far during the current legislative session it appears that the various proposals for the legalization of gambling in the state of Maryland are not making much headway. Sufficient support simply is not there, and even if the legislature were to pass a bill which would permit some form of gambling, Governor Glendening has vowed to veto all such proposals.

We are pleased that our governor and the majority of our elected officials apparently know the dark side of gambling and are not being swayed by big business to soften their stand. Because Garrett County is a resort area, it would be a prime location for those with gambling interests, and no doubt gambling operations here would be highly successful. Droves of people make their way to Atlantic City and Las Vegas on a regular basis primarily to gamble, and such activity would surely attract more people — and more money — to Garrett County.

But the negatives of gambling far outweigh the positives, and we hope that elected officials in the future will continue to oppose it. While the additional flow of money into the area would be an initial boon to our economy, the side effects that would follow shortly thereafter would be extremely costly, both in monetary terms and, more importantly, in terms of the quality of life. Gambling breeds all kinds of illegal, unwholesome behavior and attracts individuals whom, frankly, we would rather not host in our county. The cost of dealing with all the negatives would soon eradicate the financial gains, and the quality of life that we enjoy would take a major step backward.

We appreciate the work of former State Senator John Bambacus, now the mayor of neighboring Frostburg, who is taking a courageous stand to ward off any potential threat of the establishment of gambling in his community. It was disappointing, though, that two members of his council did not have the same courage to support his zoning proposal that would have assured that Frostburg would be off-limits to gambling. The vote was 2-2, so it did not pass.

While this newspaper supported the proposal for limited Sunday sales of alcohol, the majority of voters in the county, once again, rejected it. Regardless of one's feeling on that issue, there must be a certain level of admiration of our residents for their steadfastness on an issue and their courage to not approve something just because everyone else allows it. We believe that a similar stand will be taken against gambling if and when it threatens to invade Garrett County's borders.

The Kindness Of Strangers
by Peggy Santamaria

It was with a flutter of anxiety that I entered the classroom at Southern High School to interview the students visiting from France. I decided as I drove toward the school that I would do it — I would conduct the interview in French and ask them to respond in English.

How many years had passed since I studied French? It would be easier to count them in decades. But I mustn't let myself think about it. After all, I reasoned, these young people had left their homes, crossed the Atlantic, and moved into the homes of strangers in a strange land for three weeks. If they could handle this challenge, surely I could risk 30 minutes of humiliation.

I frantically searched the chaotic storage files in my memory banks. "Bon jour," I stammered. So far so good. After that, I think I told them that I was a newspaper. No matter, they smiled politely and nodded with kind understanding. They were still in their seats and they were not holding their sides laughing, so I felt perhaps things were going okay. I charged ahead.

The students agreed to the suggestion of French questions and English answers. And so we began. I faltered with long forgotten grammar and stumbled over words hoping I wasn't inadvertently saying something rude or insulting. They helped me find the words and phrases I needed to put together my awkward questions. And they answered in beautifully spoken English.

I felt continually more comfortable with these students and was really glad to be sharing this experience with them. They were the visitors but they were making me feel more comfortable and I am thankful for that.

I left the classroom babbling "Merci, merci." I was feeling like Blanche DuBois in A Streetcar Named Desire, relying "on the kindness of strangers." And they were very kind.

Did I ever mention that I was baptized Margaret Blanche?

The newspaper has published thanks to those who donated money and those who volunteered their time. We would like to express our thanks to The Republican for the efforts of employees and the willingness of management to dedicate time and funds to the project.

To the Editor:

The letter to the editor that supports no tax money to support the arts was great. I agree, "down with the arts" and wasting tax money. Letters like that are interesting and needed. Jobs coming back into the old B&L plant is good, but will they hire people from Garrett Co.? When B&L was open, over half of the employees were from West Virginia, which wasn't right and didn't help the Garrett Co. residents. Only Garrett Co. people should be hired. A lot of the blame for B&L closing can be put on our elected county officials.

A big waste of tax dollars was the ridiculous cost per acre paid for swamp ground for the new school. There's plenty of ground and better locations plus cheaper ground, all over, for the new school. But consider who sold the property. Poor judgment of our county officials.

Something else strange is our phone book, Preston & Garrett counties. Hey, I live in Maryland. It should be Garrett and Allegany counties support our state, not W.Va. I support the 4 lane highway through Garrett Co. It's needed and will bring some industry and better paying jobs. Those opposing it don't want people having good-paying jobs and making their lives better. This pitiful handful of people want to control the county and its people. We also need the bypass around Oakland now, not 10 years from now. Edwards' proposal of the road issue, putting it close to Keyser and helping Mineral County with Maryland's tax dollars, is crazy. Why help W.Va.? Garrett County needs to grow, and a train station isn't going to do it, nor GOBA.

Speaking of roads, we definitely need ours upgraded. Our road supervisors, administrators, and other state and county officials need replaced maybe. We have roads not wide enough for two vehicles, roads not maintained by county or state, but people still have to pay property taxes. A lot of roads are still gravel or dirt. We have county and state maintained roads with improper elevation of roads and berms which let water run out all over the roads, which is pure stupidity with all the equipment they have. You wash your car, drive five miles, and it's filthy because of water running out of people's driveways and the result of no berms and ditches and improper elevation. State and county should pay part of our car payments. Also, too many of our roads have utility poles and guardrails right on the edge of the road.

One final interesting note is our address system. Oakland goes all the way down to Deep Creek Lake, which shouldn't be. It all should be McHenry. I live two miles from McHenry, six miles from Friendsville and have a Friendsville address. It should be McHenry. Seems to me people are trying to do away with McHenry and this shouldn't be. We have a messed up county.

To the Editor:

I have lost my good feelings about many people in this county. My reason? Animal abuse. Some farm people leave animals out in blizzards and bitter cold. Dogs are tied to dog boxes, not dog houses, with no bedding and insulation. They do not provide sufficient food, water, veterinarian care, and space—what the annotated law of Maryland requires. Many die. We just had a small animal die of possible parvo. Their excuse—"We couldn't afford a vet." If you can't afford a veterinarian, don't have an animal.

Several months ago someone abandoned a small dog on I-68, left to die. Fortunately some caring people found the dog, took it for medical care, and many caring people in the county provided funds to save the little dog. She was fortunate. (In this newspaper there is a list of people who paid her expenses.)

Two weeks ago I got a call from a lady from a restaurant in Oakland stating someone had abandoned a little dog who was very pregnant. The weather was bitter cold and it was snowing. I called Nancy Helbig, our Humane Society president, who picked up the little dog. Three days later she presented us with seven puppies! So, we do not need a spay/neuter program. Why shouldn't people drop off dogs and cats to fend for themselves? Animals do not have feelings; it is all right for them to starve, maybe die. It is all right for the puppies and kittens to freeze to death because the mother cannot find shelter for the babies. This is the opinion of some people.

Why is so much money budgeted for killing the unwanted animals and nothing budgeted to save them?

We have 17 dogs at our home, including a 150 pound Rottweiler, but if I can't find an excellent home for her, she will live out her life with us.

What is wrong with people? Not only in Garrett County, but everywhere? How many more animals are out there that cannot make it to someone for help? Dying, starving, cold and in pain.

I get cursed, threatened (even to have my brains blown out and my head blown off my shoulders), lied about and you name it, but as long as I live and am able, I will defend the animals in the state of Maryland.

The Humane Society does not get any county, state, or federal funds. Think of the amount of money, budgeted to kill the innocent animals that would not be here if we had a spay/neuter program. We are desperate for help—all kinds—financial, foster homes, investigative officers, reports of abuse, and most of all, prayers.

It is sad to know that human beings lower themselves to abuse the elderly, children, and animals.

Anyone interested in adopting one of our seven cocker spaniel mix puppies is asked to call 301-746-5725 or 301-334-2401. They will be available in six more weeks.

Again, we must stress our appreciation to the law enforcement officers and staff in Garrett County, Town of Oakland, Maryland State Police and Sheriff's Office. They are always there for us.

Manown said a fairly new housing development in the Rock Lodge Road area has been built directly on land where numerous bear dens were once located.

"It's not surprising that there are a lot of sightings in that area," she said. "That's where they used to live."

She told the commissioners that when people call, they are often put off by the advice given by DNR, such as to get rid of birdfeeders or to better dispose of garbage.

"If we could just educate the public more completely about the animal, we believe the calls would lessen and people would be less fearful," she said.

She was critical of those individuals who purposely feed the bears or other wildlife.

"We cannot lose sight of the fact that we are dealing with wild animals. It is not fair to them to provide a temporary food source, and it is dangerous to the people engaging in this," she said. She did note, in answer to a commissioner's question, that no report has ever been received about anyone being hurt by a black bear in Garrett County.

The information class in April will be taught by DNR's Steve Bittner, Manown said. She asked the commissioners if they would allow their names to be included in the promotion of the class in an effort to reach a wider audience. The commissioners agreed to the suggestion.

More information about the class will be publicized as definite plans are made.

BILL CLINTON AND PRESIDENTS' DAY

It borders on blasphemy to talk about Bill Clinton between the birthdays of two presidents, one who "could not tell a lie" and the other who walked miles to repay a mistake in giving change.

Clinton is our president, nonetheless, and it is that time of year when we take stock of the present incumbent in light of the two greatest American presidents, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

I hear the argument that "it's only sex." There are two kinds of comments that ought to be made (and which I have seen little of in the countless news reports I have read and heard over the past few weeks).

The first comment is that Bill Clinton's sexual dilemma reflects the contradiction of two distinct national trends. The one trend is that "anything goes." Not only, "What any two adults do behind closed doors is nobody's business," but also, "What any two adults do anywhere is nobody's business."

The other trend, contradicting the first, is the standard of sexual harassment and abuse which has been raised year by year. It is unreasonable to expect a high level of circumspection with regard to harassment and abuse in a general climate of sexual immorality. As a practical matter, telling people they must be moral in one narrow area of sexual behavior while telling them they can do anything they like otherwise simply does not work.

The second kind of comment which needs making is that Clinton's alleged wrongdoing relates to sex only as—what psychologists call—the presenting issue. What Clinton's alleged wrongdoing really has to with is the abuse of power.

If Clinton did have sexual relations, of any kind at any level, with a 21-year-old White House intern, then he used his public office for personal purposes, which is unethical and illegal.

The principle is a simple one. Whatever a public official does in office must relate to the public nature of the office. The application of the principle is more complicated, because life is complicated. So a second principle is added to the first: a public official may do something that benefits himself if and only if it benefits him as a member of a class of people.

For example, when public officials vote to cut taxes, then that benefits them only as it benefits everybody else. When a public official buys land which he or she has proprietary knowledge will be purchased subsequently by the state to build a road, then that is an abuse of power.

A third principle is that the greater the position of power (and therefore also of trust), the lower the threshold is for abuse of power. In other words, the greater good or harm that a public official can legally do, the more accountable she or he must be held. That is why people holding high offices can and should be dismissed from office and even sent to jail for relatively minor offenses. The greater the trust held, the lower the threshold for wrongdoing.

These principles have been little discussed because they are little understood, often—tragically—by public officials themselves. Bill Clinton, however, has had five years of admonition—political, legal, and journalistic.

One would think that the continuous investigations of Clinton would lead him to become circumspect in ways that he was not before. That often happens to public officials. The mistakes they make out of inexperience are corrected as they mature in office.

Clinton, instead of becoming more careful about his conduct, has become more brazen. He appears to think he can get away with anything. I hope he is wrong, but that is yet to be seen.

CARPET KINGDOM OPENS NEW LOCATION - Andrew Gamber, manager and owner of Carpet Kingdom, has expanded his business by opening a new location in the LaVale Plaza on National Highway. The company also has a Keyser, W.Va., store that is located at 30 N. Mineral St.

Let's Get CK Down To Business!

Carpet Kingdom

Carpet Kingdom has expanded its business with a new location in the LaVale Plaza at 1313 National Highway in LaVale. Andrew Gamber, manager and owner of the business, said "We just simply outgrew our other location."

Now in the newest location, customers entering the business are greeted by a huge wall of carpet remnants. In addition to providing quality products to the homeowner, Carpet Kingdom also serves the commercial user.

The new store offers 7,000 square feet of space and Gamber says Carpet Kingdom can do a better job of storing, handling and cutting carpet.

The business opened in 1995 with Gamber as the lone staff person. Now there are seven full-time workers and Gamber. Although he does not have plans to add to the staff immediately, Gamber expects to expand the staff as the customer base grows.

Carpet Kingdom shows carpets from most of the major mills, as well as sheet vinyl.

The store is open from 9 a.m to 8 p.m. during the week and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday. The LaVale store can be reached by calling 301-729-7847. The business also has a Keyser, W.Va., location at 30 N. Mineral St. and can be contacted at 301-788-RUGS.

Other officers are Robert Huebner, vice president; Ann Hill, secretary; and Frank Custer, secretary.

Other members are Kenton Bender, Skip Case, Virginia Grove, Ida Maust, Edmund Hill, Duane Yoder, and Art Naylor.

with a CDBG of $1,500,000 from the state, the county will negotiate a Sub-Recipient Agreement with the GCEDC, which will in turn lend the CDBG funds to Simon Pearce. The county government is disallowed by law to lend funds to a private company, but the GCEDC is private and has the function of assisting in the establishment and growth of local businesses.

With the funds from Pearce and the CDBG, the remainder of the money will come from the state's "Sunny Day Fund," which will be in the amount of $500,000. This money comes to the company in the form of a loan initially, with the condition that Pearce hire a certain number of individuals over time. If the company maintains a prescribed rate of growth and hirings over the first few years, the money then converts to grant funds.

Hinebaugh explained that another local company, Wood Products, has taken advantage of similar state funds and has been able to hire several individuals through the arrangement.

The repayment of the money lent to Simon Pearce by the GCEDC will accumulate in a "revolving loan fund" that will be available for other economic development projects, such as business expansion, Hinebaugh explained.

The commissioners were then urged by Hinebaugh to endorse the application for the CDBG.

"This is an urgent issue," Hinebaugh said. "Other places competed with us to get this company and we don't want to derail anything at this point. Mr. Pearce cannot purchase the equipment needed for the local facility until the CDBG is approved, so the quicker we apply for it, the better."

In his presentation, Hinebaugh noted that Pearce has promised that at least 51% of those employed by his company will be individuals who currently have moderate to low incomes. He also has stated that at least 150 people will be hired, and most of those will be put on the payroll in the first two to three years of operation.

David Moe of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce spoke in support of the grant application, as did Wendell Beitzel, director of the Garrett County Sanitary District. Cristine Kepple Sweitzer of the GCEDC said the corporation "stands ready" to assume the financial arrangement because it is an "appropriate investment." She also noted that the revolving loan fund will benefit from such an investment.

One individual who stood to support the CDBG application was a former B&L employee.

"This is a new beginning for the county," he said. "Please support this grant application."

One voice of dissention came from George Falter, a McHenry resident who was at the meeting representing G.C./CARE (Garrett County Conservative Action for a Rural Environment). Falter expressed his concern that the public was not adequately informed of the financial arrangement and that the commissioners "should not be in the business of banking." He said the venture was "too costly" and that there are "too many other needs" in the county. Falter also criticized the rules of the public hearing, which allow persons five minutes each to speak about the issue. However, Falter spoke for at least 13 minutes, according to Commissioner Chairman Wayne Wiit.

Falter was asked if G.C./CARE supported the grant application resolution, and he said the organization does not because there has not been enough information made public. Falter said he was making his statements on behalf of concerned Garrett Countians. Commissioner Wayne Johnson finally asked him how many people are actually in G.C./CARES for whom he was speaking, and Falter said he did not know.

The commissioners are to make a decision this afternoon whether or not to support the grant application.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

Warnick Promoted To Sergeant E5

The Maryland Army National Guard, Detachment 2, 243rd unit, Oakland, has announced the promotion of Gary R. Warnick to sergeant E5.

Sgt. Warnick was enlisted in the local National Guard from 1985 until 1989, when he enlisted for active duty with the United States Army. He served until his discharge in 1992 and returned to the local guard unit. During active duty, Warnick was stationed in Korea and in the state of Colorado.

He has been assigned as a heavy equipment operator with the local unit. In his civilian employment, he is a truck driver for Savage Industries in Oakland.

He and his wife live in Mountain Lake Park.

Persons interested in joining the local National Guard unit may contact Sfc. Tom Bittinger at 301-334-9794.

Group Seeks Equipment For Exercise Room

Striving toward a healthier lifestyle, a local group is seeking donations and assistance in acquiring additional exercise equipment. The items being sought will be used by those attending Garrett County Lighthouse, a community rehabilitation program for adults with mental illness.

The project to acquire the fitness equipment was initiated by Howard Gerard, a member of the board of directors of Mountain Top Mental Health Associates and AMI (Alliance for the Mentally Ill), a mental health advocate, and a consumer of services at Lighthouse. "We have had several donations already," Gerard said. "We have three stationary bicycles and a tread mill. But the tread mill we have is short and can't accommodate a long stride," he explained.

Increasing physical health through exercise can offer improved mental health, Gerard said. It is his hope, he said, to obtain enough equipment to set up a full exercise room at Lighthouse where the program members can work-out.

"What we could really use is a motorized tread mill and some hand weights," he stated.

Anyone who has equipment that is not being used and would donate it to the fitness room project may contact Howard Gerard at Lighthouse, 301-334-9126.

Lakers Rout Charles, Taking 18-8 Record To JUCO Tourney

Six Garrett Community College players scored in double figures Saturday night, as the Lakers rolled over visiting Charles Community College, 101-73, in their final home game of the season. The Lakers finished the regular season with an 18-8 overall mark and an 8-5 record in the Maryland JUCO Conference, which makes them the seventh seeded team going into today's JUCO Tournament in Baltimore.

In Saturday's win over Charles, the Lakers held a commanding 56-20 lead at halftime, but allowed the visitors to come back in the second half and knot the score with 9:49 left in the game. Then Garrett went on a 5-0 run and eventually built the lead back to 36 points, 94-58, with just under four minutes remaining.

James Washington led the Lakers for the first time this year in scoring, as he finished with 14 points. Michael Fields and Rob Wheeler each netted 12 points, Timmy Pitcher and Jerome Adams each hit 11, and Lionell Sewell scored 10, while Eric Papcun pulled down a team-high 11 rebounds. Ten of the Lakers' 30 field goals were from three-point range.

Adams and Pitcher also each had five assists, while Fields and Ricky Berkley recorded five steals apiece.

Leading Charles CC with a game-high 23 points was T.J. Riley, who also pulled down 20 rebounds. Mike Wilson scored 19 points and Mike Munson netted 10 points and had three steals.

It was the final home game for Lakers Adams, Berkley, Lance Loya, and Jimmy Pamepinto.

"There was a great crowd on hand to see these guys play their last home game," stated Laker coach Dennis Gibson. "It was also nice to be able to play everyone in the game."

The Lakers will meet 10th seeded Frederick today and, if victorious, will meet the winner of the contest between second-seeded Rockville and 15th ranked Takoma Park in a Friday 6 p.m. game. The semi-final games will be played Saturday at 6 and 8 p.m. and the JUCO championship contest will be played Sunday at 2 p.m.

Baltimore City CC is the top seeded team with a 13-1 JUCO record, followed by Rockville (11-3), Germantown (10-4), Catonsville (10-4), Cecil (10-4), Prince George's (9-5), and Garrett. The Lakers are followed by Dundalk (8-5), Essex (6-8), Frederick (6-8), Chesapeake (4-10), Harford (4-10), Charles (3-11), Howard (2-12), and Takoma Park (1-13).

Laker Women To Host JUCO BB Tournament

The Maryland JUCO Women's Basketball Tournament will get underway this evening and will be hosted by the Garrett Community College women, who will enter the tourney as the sixth-seeded team with an overall record of 14-7. The Lakers upped their regular season record with an extremely easy, 2-0 win Saturday night when Montgomery-Takoma Park forfeited. They still have a make-up game with Potomac State College, slated for March 3.

Action on the Lakers' floor this evening will pit Allegany College, seeded 10th, against seventh-seeded Catonsville at 6 p.m., and Anne Arundel, seeded eighth, against Cecil, the ninth seed, in the 8 p.m. game. Takoma Park, seeded fourth, will meet fifth-seeded Prince George's at 1 p.m. Friday, followed by second-seeded Baltimore against the winner of the Allegany-Catonsville game at 3 p.m., top-seeded Hagerstown Junior College against the winner of the Anne Arundel-Cecil game at 6 p.m., and the GCC Lakers against third-seeded Frederick at 8 p.m.

The semi-final games will be played at 6 and 8 p.m. Saturday, and the championship contest will be played Sunday at 2 p.m.

Scofield Top Ski Racer In Allegheny Conf.

Garrett Community College's E.J. Scofield finished the regular season of skiing competition this past weekend as the top racer in the Allegheny Conference, an organization that involves 136 racers from nine colleges and universities.

As a team, the Lakers finished fifth in the conference and will compete again this weekend in the regionals at Vernon Valley, N.J. The nationals will be held in March at Loons, N.H.

In action the weekend of Feb. 7-8, Scofield placed second in the giant slalom and eighth in the slalom at a race at Timberline Resort, W.Va., while Bobby Gray finished 10th in giant slalom and 21st in slalom, and Scott Doolan was 19th in the slalom and did not finish in the giant slalom.

Penn State won the race, followed by Buckneli, West Virginia University, the University of Pennsylvania, GCC, University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown, Navy, University of Maryland, and West Chester College.

Other Garrett County racers involved in the competition were Stephenie and Rachael Gosneli, who are members of the Naval Academy's women's A team. Stephenie finished eighth in the giant slalom and 18th in the slalom, while Rachael placed 14th and 21st. The women's team is currently in third place in the conference.

In the Allegheny Conference Championships this past weekend at Seven Springs Resort, Pa., the Lakers placed third as a team in the giant slalom and fifth in the slalom. Scofield again paced GCC with a second place in the GS and a fifth in the slalom.

Bobby Gray was ninth in GS and 14th in slalom, Scott Doolan placed 20th and 17th, and Mike Sassano was 29th in the GS and did not ski in the slalom.

In the final individual standings in the conference, Scofield finished first, Gray was 12th, Doolan placed 21st, and Sassano was 47th out of 136 places.

The Gosnell sisters again raced for the U.S. Naval Academy, with Stephenie placing 14th in the GS and losing a ski in the slalom, and Rachael placing 16th in the GS and 14th in slalom.

Rams Mauled By Lions Before Defeating Huskies And Knights

'Two out of three ain't bad,' the Southern High girls' basketball team can say with legitimacy this week, as it took two straight victories against Northern and Preston after opening the week with a loss to West Virginia's Tucker High, a true powerhouse. The seventh-ranked Rams record stands at 10-10 as they close their season tonight at Beall.

In the 88-31 defeat at Tucker Thursday night, Southern took to the home court of a team that is well on its way to a potential AA class state championship. The Rams kept it close in the first half, down only 25-21 with 3:30 remaining, when standouts Liz Paesani went out with a sprained ankle and Jessica Saturday and Bridget Miller lost due to foul trouble. The loss of three starters crippled the Rams, and Tucker went on a run that gave it a 39-21 halftime lead.

Southern was led by Jennifer Teagarden's 10 points, Michelle Teter added six points, and Miller tallied five. Alicia McCune paced Tucker's balanced offense with 21 points, Sarah Hamrick contributed 18 points, Sunny Arnold scored 10 points, and Sarah Paul and Tiffany Beaver each had nine points.

Tucker's junior varsity duplicated the varsity win by downing the Rams 56-30 behind Melinda Teets's 14 points. Joy Jackson led Southern scoring with 10 points.

A match-up of Garrett County's high school girls pitted Southern versus Northern in Accident Saturday, and the Rams took the bragging rights with a 47-38 win. The two teams battled throughout the contest, as Southern built a seven-point lead in the first half before Northern stormed back to close the gap to three at the half, 22-19. By the close of the third quarter the Huskies had taken a three-point lead, 33-30, but the final period saw the Rams outscore the Huskies 17-5 to snatch the win.

Southern's offense was led by Saturday's 20 points and Miller's 19, nine of which came in the crucial fourth quarter comeback. Brooke Brenneman scored 19 points for Northern, and Jill Speicher handed out six assists.

The Rams' jayvee downed the Huskies' junior varsity as well, 28-26, behind Charlena Reeves's 15 points. Heather Nugent scored 14 for Northern.

Last night the Rams evened their record with a 52-43 win over Preston at Southern. The Rams led by seven points in the second quarter before Preston cut the margin to basket at the half, 25-23. The Rams came out breathing fire in the second half, going on a 14-5 run in the third quarter to take a 39-28 lead at the opening of the final stanza.

Saturday's 17 points led all scorers, and Miller and Teter added 11 points apiece for the Rams. Amber Riley scored 12 points for Preston, and Mindy Sypolt added 10 points.

The Rams were nipped in the junior varsity contest 36-34. Morgan White had 10 points for victorious Preston, while Jackson led all scorers with 13 for Southern.

RAMS TOP PRESTON - The Southern High girls' varsity played its final regular-season game last night and evened its record at 10-10 by defeating Preston County, 52-43. At left, Southern's Bridget Miller drives around a Preston defender en route to scoring a pair of her game total of 11 points. Rams Nipped By Top-Ranked Tucker, Then Stop Sentinels

It was another strong week for the Southern High School boys' varsity, despite the fact that the team went a modest 1-1, because the loss sustained by the Rams Friday night was a three-point, 49-46 heartbreaker to visiting Tucker County, the top-ranked Class AA team in the state of West Virginia, and the win recorded by the Rams was a big 50-45 Western Maryland Interscholastic League defeat of a strong Fort Hill team Tuesday night, also in Oakland. The split left the Rams with 13-7 overall record and a 10-2 mark in the WMIL.

The win over Fort Hill also guarantees the Rams at least a share of the WMIL title, with Fort Hill and Allegany being the other teams that could still win a piece of the championship.

After three quarters of play Friday night against Tucker County, it appeared that the Rams were destined to pull off the upset, as they held a 40-33 lead. But the Mountain Lions chipped away at the Rams' advantage throughout the fourth quarter to pull out the win. The teams were tied at 11-11 at the end of the first period and Tucker was up by one, 22-21, at halftime.

The fourth quarter also featured a number of controversial calls, and no-calls, by the referees.

It was a free throw by Tucker County's Derrick Simmons with just 1:51 left in the game that put the Lions up by one, 45-44. A bucket by Wes Lambert with less than a minute to play put Tucker on top, 47-46.

The outcome also may have been different if the Rams had been at full strength; however, starters Nathan DiSimone and Mike Pamepinto did not play.

John Andrews had one of his best performances for the Rams, as he scored 23 points. Mike Paesani added eight.

Leading Tucker County were Simmons with 14 points, and Wes Rumor and Jim Aliff with 11 each.

The Southern junior varsity won the first game by a 46-42 score to up its record to 14-3. Justin Stephens led the Rams with a game-high 24 points, and Dave Lambert paced the Tucker County jayvees with 17 points.

The Rams started strong Tuesday night against Fort Hill, came somewhat unraveled in the second quarter, and then put it together in the third and fourth stanzas to win. After Southern built an 11-6 lead in the first period, the Sentinels went on a 24-11 run to take a 30-22 lead into the locker room at intermission. Southern cut Fort Hill's advantage to just three points by the end of the third quarter, 39-36, and then out-scored the 12-7 visitors in the final period by a 14-6 margin to record the win.

It was a jumper by Nathan DiSimone with 3:06 remaining that put the Rams up for good, 46-45. Mike Paesani then added a pair of insurance field goals, while the Ram defense kept the Sentinels scoreless the rest of the way.

Once again the Rams had to play without one of its top starters, as John Andrews was unable to play, but Mike Paesani stepped up to take charge by scoring 22 points, grabbing 10 rebounds, and recording three steals. DiSimone added six points and five assists, and Mike Pamepinto also scored six points for Coach Tom Bosley's team.

Leading the Sentinels was Josh Page with 18 points, while Jamie Kline also reached double figures with 10.

The Southern jayvees were also victorious in the preliminary game, 54-44, behind a 21-point performance by Justin Stephens. Jeremy Snyder scored 13 to lead the Sentinels. The victory upped Southern's mark to 15-3 and, like the varsity, guaranteed at least a share of the junior varsity WMIL title.

The Southern teams have two remaining regular season match-ups, both at home. They will entertain Keyser this Friday and host Preston County next Tuesday.

Ram Freshmen Finish Regular Season At 13-5

The freshman boys' basketball team of Southern High School wrapped up its regular season this past week by crushing Northern, 42-15, last Thursday and then avenging an earlier loss to South Preston on Saturday, 43-28. The pair of victories gave Coach Jon Hegeman and the Rams a 13-5 record, which they took into the Westmar Invitational Freshman Tournament last night at Lonaconing (see separate story).

The Rams started slowly against the Northern Huskies last Tuesday and were up by only four points, 8-4, at the end of the first quarter. They stretched their advantage to 16-6 by halftime.

Jamie Bosley and Ryan Ewing led the Southern offense with a combined total of 21 points, while Justin DiSimone, Keith Steyer, and Michael Saturday excelled defensively.

"Our defense was the best it's been all year," Coach Hegeman stated, "and our offensive execution was excellent."

In Saturday's win over South Preston, the Rams held a lead of 9-6 after one quarter and were on top 26-15 at halftime. Preston made a run in the third quarter, but could get no closer than eight points.

Bryan Panther led the Rams' scoring with 14 points. Steve Eiswert and Josh Sharon were Southern's leaders in rebounds.

Huskies Topped By Rams, Wildcats, Then Crush Aggies

After a slow start in a week-long home stand in which they dropped their first two games to Southern 47-38 (see Southern coverage for the game's details) and Westmar 43-33, the Huskies of Northern High's girls basketball team bounced back with a big win over Flintstone last night, 62-35. The Huskies' record stands at 11-9 with two games to go in the regular season, and they are ranked number eight in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League.

The Huskies got in gear just a little too late against the Wildcats Monday night, for after trailing 12-7 at the end of the first quarter and 22-10 at the half, they outscored Westmar 23-21 during the second half of the contest. Although they showed a lot of heart, the Huskies were never able to close the gap to less than 10 points.

Brooke Brenneman led Northern with 16 points, and Heidi Frazee contributed nine points. Helene Duncan's 16 points paced the Wildcats to victory, with help from Lauren Warnick and Jenn Fazenbaker, who added eight points each.

Westmar won the junior varsity match-up as well, although details were not available.

Brenneman delighted the home fans last night as she powered her way to 26 points, 15 rebounds, and nabbed nine steals in leading the Huskies to a 27-point demolition of Flintstone. Northern dominated the evening, leading 15-6 at the close of the first quarter, 36-12 at the half, and 49-23 at the opening of the fourth quarter.

As she put together her stellar performance, Brenneman hit 11 field goals and four free throws to lead all scorers. Kathy Arnold added 12 points and Laurel Wolf and Frazee added eight points apiece. Flintstone was led by Brandy Heimick's 25 points that came on 11 field goals and three free throws.

Flintstone's jayvee faired better than their elders, defeating the Huskies 25-21. Heather Nugent's 15 points for Northern led all scorers, while Cory Reed's 14 points led Flintstone to victory.

Northern hosts Bishop Walsh tonight in a final home game at the Igloo for the seniors, then the regular season will draw to a close with a visit to Hancock Monday night.

THESE HUSKIES TOOK IT TO THE HOOP in Monday night's contest with Westmar, but it wasn't enough as Northern fell to the Wildcats 43-33. Above, power forward Brooke Brenneman lays in two of her 15 points from close range as the home crowd in the Igloo looks on. Guard Heidi Frazee, #24, trails the action as she gets into rebounding position. In the photo at the right, Frazee delivers a basket just off the key in almost the exact same spot from which Brenneman hit a pair. Frazee scored nine points on the night. Northern's girls close their home season tonight against Bishop Walsh.

Huskies Whip Salisbury Before Being Defeated By Spartans

A 72-53 win over visiting Salisbury Friday evening was followed by a 73-45 loss to host Bishop Walsh for the Northern High School boys' varsity, a split that left the Huskies with a 6-14 record.

Dustin Long paced Coach Mike Friend's team against Salisbury, as he pumped in 26 points and helped pull his team from a first-quarter deficit of 21-14. The Huskies out-scored the Elks in the second quarter by a 21-10 margin to take a 35-31 advantage into the locker room at halftime. They stretched their lead to 54-39 by the end of the third stanza.

Also reaching double figures for the Huskies was Craig Kamp with 16 points. Long and Rob Dozier each pulled down a dozen rebounds and Matt Houser dished out five assists.

Leading the Elks with 15 points was Jesse Hoover, while Nick McKenzie and Justin Livengood each finished with nine points.

The Huskies played a strong first half against Bishop Walsh Tuesday evening in Cumberland, as they trailed by just eight points, 36-28, at halftime after being down 20-10 at the end of the first quarter. But the Spartans outscored the Huskies in the third stanza by a 17-6 margin to take a commanding 53-34 advantage into the final period.

Joe Rowan led the Spartans with a game-high 24 points, Nelson Guerin finished with 14, and Brett Blanco added 13. It was the 13th win in 21 games for Bishop Walsh.

Long again led the Huskies in scoring with 16 points.

The Northern junior varsity was also stopped in the preliminary game, 45-34, behind a 14-point effort by BW's Dustin Freas and a 13-point showing by Christian Barmoy. Craig Zollner had 10 points for the Spartans, while Jeremy Rice led the Huskies with 10 points.

The Northern teams will play again this Friday at Beall and then conclude their regular seasons next Wednesday at home against Fort Hill.

NHS Freshmen Top Frankfort

The freshman boys' basketball team of Northern High School improved its record to 3-7 last Thursday evening by defeating the Frankfort freshmen, 61-47.

Jeremy Frazee netted 20 points to pace the Little Huskies, while Denny Thorpe and A.J. Thomas each finished with 14. Leading the Falcons were Brandon Trentor with 13 points and Justin Llewellyn with 11.

The Huskies played again last night in the Westmar Freshman Tournament, which will continue through Saturday (see separate story).

Injuries To Senior Huskies Lead To First Loss Of Season

After building a 15-0 mark in dual meets during the 1997-98 season, the Northern High School wrestling team was finally stopped last Wednesday night by North Hagerstown in the Maryland West Region 2A/1A Championships, which were hosted by the Huskies.

Northern was topped by a 39-28 score after defeating Francis Scott Key, 35-30, and avenging their last loss in dual meets — to FSK last year. The Huskies had to take the mats without three of their senior starters, who were sidelined with injuries. They included: Jimmy Warnick, who placed third in the state last season; Jimmy Green, who was a sixth place finisher in the state tourney last year; and Josh Boyd, a transfer student who earned a spot in the state 3A/4A tourney the past two years when he was a student at Chesapeake High School.

"Obviously the loss of these three boys hurt us," stated Coach Scott Stough, whose teams have amassed an impressive 90-12 record over the past six years, "but even without them, we were very competitive, even though we only had one senior participating."

In the win over Francis Scott Key, pins were recorded by Huskies Brandon Stein in the 112-pound division, Matt Kauffman in the 160-pound bout, and Ryan Brenneman in the 171-pound clash. Earning decision victories for Northern were Jesse Shimrock (140), Mark Wolf (145), and Nate Kauffman (152). Seth Huber was awarded a forfeit win in the 119-pound division.

Clint Day (125), Matt Yinger (135), and Greg Frech (275) won on pins for FSK.

In the loss to North Hagerstown, Roy Holliday won the 103-pound division on a pin, and Stein (112) and Matt Kauffman (160) each recorded his second pin of the day. Winning on points for the Huskies were Shimrock and Wolf, while Nate Kauffman won by default.

Earning pins for North Hagerstown were Rob Wells (119), Aaron Eckle (125), Vincent Mulieri (130), Seth Staley (140), and Jeff Seidman (275).

North Hagerstown earned a spot in the finals against the Huskies by edging Williamsport, 27-26, in the other semi-final.

"We've had a great season in duals, and our next goal is to repeat as Bi-County champions," Coach Stough said.

The Huskies will defend their Bi-County title this Saturday at Southern High School, with wrestling in that event slated to get underway at 10 a.m.

More Trophies Won By Local Youth Matmen

Members of the Southern Mat Club youth wrestling team competed in a pair of tournaments this past weekend, with eight members traveling to an event in Lewis County, W.Va., on Saturday and five participating in a tourney in Berkeley County, W.Va., on Sunday. Seven of the eight at Lewis County won trophies, while three of five brought home awards from Berkeley County.

First-place winners included Scott Wildesen (age 9-10/80 pounds) and Jason Weeks (11-12/95) at Lewis County and Sean Sisler (7-under/unlimited) at Berkeley County. Earning second places were: Nick Tressler (7-8/45) and Geoff Tressler (13-15/110) at Lewis County and Jeremy Gregory (8-9/75) at Berkeley County.

Bringing home third-place trophies were Justin Ratliff (7-8/60) and David Ratliff (9-10/70), both from Lewis County, while fourth places were won by Mitchell Tas-ker (7-8/50) at Lewis Coun-ty and Scott Wildesen (10-11/80) at Berkeley County. Also competing were Daniel Carr (7-8/60) and Ryan Gregory (12-13/110).

The team will be on the road for competition again this weekend. For more information about the SMC, persons may visit the club's website at www.gcnet.net/SMC.

South," the third-year coach said. "Chip Stoner, Keith Bennett, Jason Lottman, and Josh Stephens all did a great job in helping us get ready. The win was a total team effort."

The 13 victories is the most in recent years for a Southern freshman team.

THE FIRST DEER ever taken by 9-year-old Tara Lee Devine was bigger than she is. Devine, the daughter of Ray and Tina Devine of Accident, bagged her catch in the Cove area on the recent youth hunting day.

DNR Schedules Lakes, Streams Trout Stocking

Almost 500,000 brown and rainbow trout will be stocked in lakes and streams across the state this spring, Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Secretary John R. Griffin announced this week.

"Our trout stocking program is committed to improving the recreational opportunity of Maryland's streams and rivers by providing first-class fishing opportunities across the state," Griffin said.

Since 1990 trout stocking for the "put-and-take" program has risen from 255,100 to 486,650 this year. These numbers do not include trout which will be stocked this fall after waters cool enough to support trout. During the last eight years, an additional 30 sites have been added to the stocking schedule.

"I'm very proud of the results of our efforts to increase stocking and I hope anglers will enjoy the increase in available fishing locations and numbers," said Griffin.

A stocking schedule, including a list of rivers, streams, and lakes that will be stocked, the number of trout to be stocked, and the weeks in which stocking will take place, will soon be available at DNR Regional Service Centers, area fishery offices, and from licensing agents. Information regarding stream closures so that officials can stock and trout can acclimate is included in the schedule.

Inclusion in the "put-and-take" trout (stocking) areas means that an angler with a freshwater fishing license and a trout stamp may keep up to five trout per day (except where noted), instead of the general state-wide limit of two trout per day.

DNR's trout stocking program is funded entirely by the sale of freshwater fishing licenses and trout stamps and federal Sport-fish Restoration Program (Wallop-Breaux) funds, which are generated by anglers' and boaters' tax dollars.

DNR Seeks Input On New Seasons And Bag Limits

Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Secretary John R. Griffin recently announced proposed hunting and trapping season dates and bag limits for resident game species and upland migratory species for both the 1998-99 and 1999-2000 hunting license years.

"In response to hunters' concerns about predictability of hunting season dates, and to allow for better data analysis for wildlife management decisions, DNR now sets hunting regulations on a two-year cycle," Secretary Griffin said.

This year's proposed regulation package has been approved by the Wildlife Advisory Commission, which serves as a liaison with the general public, conservation organizations, and the sportsmen and women of Maryland on wildlife-related issues.

Highlights of proposed changes are as follows:

Liberal Deer Bag Limits

Liberal deer bag limits have been proposed to address increasing deer populations. Current deer populations throughout most of the state are at an all-time high, with an upward trend continuing. Only in portions of rural Maryland, such as Garrett County, is the deer population relatively stable. Liberal bag limits have been proposed to facilitate first a stabilization of the deer populations across the state, then gradually adjust populations (in most cases down) to an acceptable range for the social and environmental conditions of a given area.

Deer Management Regions

DNR proposes the creation of four "Deer Management Regions," a significant change to Maryland's deer hunting regulations. Independent deer bag limits are proposed for each deer management region, although the potential number of deer that a hunter may take in one region will not affect the same hunter's bag limit in another region. The creation of separate bag limits for different geographic areas will enhance efforts to tailor deer management for the needs of local communities. The creation of independent regional bag limits is also designed to simplify the understanding of deer regulations.

$5 Antlerless Permit Fee

Antlerless deer permits are a key component of Maryland's deer management program in Western Maryland, including Garrett County, and have traditionally been administered by DNR at no additional charge to hunters. A $5 application fee for antlerless deer permits is proposed in order to offset the

Garrett County Outdoors

By Robert Yonke

Winter came back to Garrett County earlier this month and winter sports fans were quick to take advantage of it. Now, in addition to the downhill skiers, who were getting by on machine-made snow, cross-country skiers, hikers, and snowshoers were able to get out and enjoy our winter trails. Are there any places more beautiful than Garrett County on a sunny day with a fresh blanket of snow?

CAUTION

Ice fishermen and snowmobilers beware—even though there may appear to be a solid ice cover on parts of Deep Creek Lake, the thickness of the ice has been spotty (as of this writing) and extreme caution is warranted before anyone should venture out. In the coves where ice has been strong enough to support the weight of fishermen, walleye and perch have been hitting both maggots and minnows. Remember, check that ice before going out.

LETS TALK ABOUT...BOATS?

And, as the snow covers the ground in Garrett County, the 1998 boat show season is in full swing. If you need to feel just a touch of summer, there's no better place to get a taste than at a boat show. Ken Sisler and his gang from Bill's Marine had a spectacular display at the recent Pittsburgh Boat Show, as did the Caney Valley Marine folks from Markleysburg, Pa.

It may be a bit premature for waterskiers to be prepping their equipment, but fishing craft will be going in a lot sooner, and fishermen should start thinking about spring maintenance and new equipment that will enhance the coming season's performance. If you have indoor workspace, now is the time to do some clean-up, repack trailer wheel bearings, and lube steering cables, pivot points, and other areas prone to friction.

INDOOR ARCHERY LEAGUES

While some have been enjoying the outdoors recently, local archers have been active in the indoor, electronic target leagues. The leagues are still in their early stages of competition without any clear signs of dominance by any individual or teams. We do want to say that in the Appalachian Mountain Craft league Gordon has been hot, as reported by Larry Iden of AMC.

Over at D&B Sport Shop, Dan Milavec reports that the team of Don McKenzie, Lonnie Artice, and John Sines has wrested the lead from Jamie Streets, Mike Dropplemman, and Ricky Jones.

SPRING CREEK OUTFITTERS MOVING

Spring Creek Outfitters is moving their operation from their downtown Oakland location to new headquarters on Deep Creek Lake. Allen Noland said that they expect to open the new store by mid March. In addition to their current services, they will be adding guide services on the lake and adding accommodations as part of their guided fishing and hunting trip packages.

NATIONAL WILD TURKEY FEDERATION SILVER ANNIVERSARY

This year marks the 25th anniversary of the National Wild Turkey Federation (NWTF), the group most responsible for the resurgence of our turkey population. In addition to aiding in propagation through relocation of birds and improving habitat, the NWTF has teamed up with state game agencies to combat poaching. Over the past decade, the NWTF has helped fund reward programs to assist in the arrest of poachers targeting wild turkeys. To date, the NWTF's "Super Fund" has contributed more than $186,000 to reward informants, produce posters and signs, and provide surveillance equipment.

The NWTF Annual Convention and Sport Show takes place in Indianapolis from February 26 through March 1. The event includes the wild turkey art, carving, and taxidermy championships and the Grand National Decorative Turkey Call competition.

A GREAT READ

On the first Saturday of March, a cadre of hearty dog sled enthusiasts (known in the game as mushers) leave Anchorage, Alaska, embarking on a 1,200-plus mile race over ice, snow, tundra, and mountain called the Iditarod. This race, held for the first time in 1973, commemorates a heroic trek by mushers to carry serum to Nome, Alaska, besieged by a diphtheria epidemic at the time. The serum was relayed from Nenana, some 675 miles, in just about 28 hours. That was 1925.

Today's Iditarod is a real test of both mushers and dogs. The most intimidating factor is the extreme weather if one isn't cowed by attacking moose and stalking wolves. Temperatures can range from +45 degrees to -60 degrees Fahrenheit. Winds, blinding snow, soft ice on frozen rivers, and tundra blown clear of snow pose real challenges.

You can live the Iditarod vicariously through the eyes of Gary Paulsen and his outstanding book Winterdance, The Fine Madness of Running The Iditarod. This is great reading for anyone with a taste for adventure and/or a soft spot for dogs. If you would like to ride along next year, the Iditarod Trail Committee auctions off opportunities to ride along for the first eight miles of the race to the highest bidders. The auction begins around the first of November with a headline for bids being the end of January. The minimum bid is $500. Bidders have a choice of bidding for the right to ride with a specific musher or into the general category. Information is available by calling 1-800-IDITAROD.

Wildlife photo enthusiasts will be glad to know that the Delmarva Birding Weekend, held annually in conjunction with the Ward World Championship Waterfowl Carving Championship in Ocean City, will include a photographic competition this year themed "Birds of the World." The competition will award cash prizes in categories that include professional, amateur adult, and amateur youth.

The entries must be of any wild bird(s) in an outdoor setting, without humans or domesticated animals in view. Entries are limited to no more than two per person and 8x10 or larger for professionals and 8x10 only for amateurs. It would be nice if one of our Garrett County species came out on top. To receive contest rules, call 1-800-852-0335.

The Early Literacy Program at Aurora has reportedly had a very busy first semester. The 4-year-olds in the program have been meeting with Mrs. Diann Zuchowski in their homes on a weekly basis. This program requires parent participation in extending pre-reading and language experiences for the child in preparation for a successful entry into kindergarten, according to Zuchowski.

Throughout the semester each child also visited the school to participate in beginning computer skill experiences, to become familiar with faculty and staff, and to experience lunch in the school cafeteria. Spring plans include visits with the kindergarten class.

The children and their parents have participated in numerous activities throughout the year, including an Autumn Harvest Party in October, which included a performance of "The Pied Piper" presented by the WVU Puppet Mobile; a trip to Kingwood in November to meet "Clifford," the big red dog; a Christmas party and a trip to Morgantown with other Aurora students in December to see "Cinderella"; a Healthy Eating/Snacks workshop for parents and children hosted at Rowlesburg school in January; and special Valentine activities.

Persons who live in the Aurora School area and are interested in enrolling children in this program for the 1998-99 school year may call the Aurora School at 735-3781 for further information.

First grader Adam Shaffer and his grandmother, Kay Shaffer, were awarded a certificate for 500 Campbell labels from Oakland Food Lion, a participating merchant in the Campbell Soup Company Labels for Education program. The certificate was then presented to the Aurora School.

Mrs. Hayes announced that seven second graders have met a challenge to score three perfect weekly Math Fact results in a row. The facts are timed tests and the achievers are Stephanie Bittinger, Jonathan Dillsworth, Joseph Hinton, Laura Morris, Aaron Shaffer, Brittany Stemple, and Danielle Massey.

Second grade class members have made and sent cards to one of their classmates, Aaron Shaffer, who was injured February 9 when a basketball hit his cornea. They expressed their hope that Aaron will be able to return from Monongalia General Hospital to his Mt. Grove home very soon.

The class also expresses its appreciation for complimentary copies of the Dominion Post sent to them for a week, along with slides showing their operations and facilities, to accompany the study of "Deadline, From News to Newspaper" on production of a daily newspaper.

Students From France Visiting Southern High

Sixteen students from Vannes, France, recently made the long trip to the United States to spend three weeks visiting students at Southern High School. Through a long-established exchange program, the young people stay in the homes of host families and attend school with the host students.

The visitors, who live in the French province of Brittany, range in age from 15 to 18 and have studied English in school from as little as three years to a maximum of eight years. Two teachers also accompanied the group.

This is the first visit to the United States for all of the students. As they settled into the homes of the host families, they would have a new language, new schedule, and new friends to become familiar with.

Getting to know a different culture is one of purposes for exchange programs such as this one. Living with Maryland families and attending a county school offers the visiting students the opportunity to see life in the United States from the inside.

The students found many differences and similarities between daily life in Oakland, Maryland, and daily life in Vannes, France. They were willing to share their thoughts and findings.

The students assembled in the classroom of Lowell Leitzel, the French teacher responsible for organizing this student exchange, as he has for a number of years. They were chatting among themselves about the dance scheduled for the weekend and what they would wear for the occasion.

The conversation died away and the students sat attentively, prepared to answer questions about their current visit.

What differences had they found between the schools in France and those in Garrett County? "We have much more freedom in our schools," one student stated and all the others nodded in agreement.

They then described the types of freedom they were referring to. "We are able to leave the school during the day," one young woman responded. "We have a two-hour lunch and we can go home," another student added.

Speaking of meal times brought up the subject of school lunches. The American school lunches were also seen as different from those served at their school in Vannes. They described a midday school meal in France, that included a salad, fresh fruit, and cheese.

"And we don't have that," a student said, pointing to the public address system as a message crackled from the speaker on the wall.

Coffee was described by all as a much stronger beverage in their own country than what was generally served here. It was explained to the visitors that some people in the United States do prefer coffee made stronger than what is often served in many restaurants. The staff at The Republican, for instance, likes coffee that is "trés fort," this reporter said.

The clothing worn by the students at Southern High School was noted as different by all the French visitors. In what way? "We don't have those wide jeans," a girl said, as she held up her hands about two feet apart. A ripple of agreement went around the room.

On the subject of clothing, one young woman spoke of a disappointment. "We wanted to buy good, American Levis while we were here, but we can't find any." All the members of the group joined in this lament. Some remedies, including a shopping trip, were suggested. After traveling all that distance, it was agreed, the guests should not return home sans Levis.

And how about finding new friends in Garrett County? "Oh, yes," was the response all around the room. "Americans are so friendly," one said. "Everyone is so nice," another echoed. This was going well and it was enjoyable, was the general consensus.

The interview concluded with smiles and thanks and goodbyes. Actually it was "au revoir."

The host families that have opened their homes to the visiting French students are: Jim and Charlotte Garner, Jeff and Liz Gilbert, Mikal McCartney, Michael and Melissa Goodfellow, Al and Jean Coviello, Charles and Jane Nolan, Bob and Amy Rudy, Dan and Birgitta Jonson, Butch and Mandie Upole, Mark and Judith Ferguson, Greg and Mary Sines, Phil and Cynthia Green, David and Brenda Betz, Dave and Pam Spurrier, Doug and Rebecca McClive, David and Mary Teter, Paul and Virginia Chorpenning, and Richard and Christina Palmer.

Taxpayers Filing Returns Slower Than Last Year

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says that while taxpayers are slower filing their state and local income tax returns this year, an increasing number are choosing electronic filing instead of using paper forms. "We have received a total of 327,000 tax returns so far this year, about 11 percent fewer than at this time last year," Goldstein said. "However the number of those returns coming in electronically has already surpassed 102,000, or 24 percent more than at this time last year."

The comptroller said that taxpayers filing now can expect quick refunds because of the lack of backlogs in the processing cycle in Annapolis.

Taxpayers who choose to file electronically using a professional tax preparer may also elect to have their refunds deposited directly into their bank accounts. More than 11,500 taxpayers have already chosen the direct deposit option, which gets refunds into taxpayers' bank accounts within two or three days. The average direct deposit refund is $640, compared with an average $448 for returns filed on paper. "Taxpayers due larger refunds are obviously electing direct deposit as the quickest possible way to receive their refund," Goldstein said. More than 70 percent of Maryland's 2.25 million income tax returns generate refunds.

"Taxpayers who owe additional tax are also taking advantage of the electronic filing option because they can file now and not pay until April 15," Goldstein said. Nearly 3,000 taxpayers have already filed electronic returns and will submit their payment with a voucher (Form 502V) provided by the tax preparer. These taxpayers benefit from the acknowledgment that their return was received and the assurance that the amount they owe is accurate, eliminating the fear that a mistake will result in additional tax, penalty, and interest charges after April 15.

"We don't know why taxpayers aren't filing as quickly this year," Goldstein said. "The lack of a snowy weekend that keeps people inside may be one reason. Another possibility is the new federal Schedule D, which must be completed by taxpayers with capital gains to report. The complexity of this federal form may be delaying taxpayers who have to deal with the form."

Taxpayers with questions or needing forms can get help at the comptroller's website www.comp.state.md.us or by e-mail at taxhelp@comp.state.md.us. Telephone help is available from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, at 410-974-3981 in Central Maryland or 1-800-MD TAXES from elsewhere. Forms are available by e-mail at forms@comp.state.md.us or through the Forms-by-Fax system at 410-974-3299, as well as in local libraries and many post offices.

"If you bring your completed federal return and your W-2 statements to any of our 20 taxpayer service offices listed on the back of the Maryland tax booklet, we'll even prepare your Maryland income tax return for you, free of charge," said Goldstein. Taxpayer service is available Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Church To Hold Bible Quiz Meet, Fellowship Time

The Faith Evangelical Free Church, Mountain Lake Park, will host a Bible Quizzing Meet on Sunday, March 1, beginning at 2 p.m.

An activity of the Mountain Top Youth for Christ group, the Bible quizzing events feature teams of students from the western Maryland region. They compete in their knowledge of scripture and coordination of response.

The subject matter on which these young people will be tested will be taken from the New Testament, the book of Matthew, chapters 12 and 13. Members of both the junior and senior divisions will test their skill and information.

Food For Thought

Jumbo steakhouse "fries" aren't fries at all. Cut long russet potatoes into quarters lengthwise and toss with olive oil. Arrange flat-sides-down on a baking sheet. Bake at 400 for 30 minutes; turn onto other flat sides and bake 30 minutes more.

Canned chicken soup is the base for wonderful at-home treats. We like it simmered a while with ginger match sticks and chopped cilantro. Or add thin-sliced mushrooms, spinach leaves and cubes of tofu, seasoned with soy sauce, sesame oil, garlic and ginger.

Probably every bride since 1931 has depended on The Joy of Cooking, originally written and published by Irma S. Rombauer. Now a new revision has been updated for the '90's and beyond.

Party starter: tangy dip made of cream cheese softened with sour cream and flavored with mango chutney, chopped, and lots of curry powder, plus ground coriander, cumin, and ginger. Let flavors blend a day or two before serving.

Bring your party to McClives. Everyone has a good time, and we do the dishes!

KUNDUN

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 2:08

Since Jean-Jacques Annaud's Seven Years In Tibet was just released last fall, this movie can't look like much but a re-telling of the same story without Brad Pitt. And that is too bad, because this one, directed by Martin Scorsese, is better in some ways. One is that it provides more history of the "peaceful liberation" of Tibet by the Red Chinese in the 1950s. The Communist (atheist) takeover of a deeply religious nation is brought more into focus.

When you look at a map of China, the entire southwestern portion is the plateau of Tibet. China ruled it in the 1800s, but Tibet won its independence in 1911. It was then ruled by the Dalai Lama, the Buddhist leader who is believed to have been reincarnated over and over throughout history. Then, after 40 years, China reasserted its dominance under Mao Tse-Tung's leadership. The struggle continued throughout the '50s, and finally the Dalai Lama fled to India for asylum, where he remains to this day. This movie, written by Melissa Mathison, is the story of his life until he left Tibet.

In this film the 14th Dalai Lama, named Kundun, is played by several actors since his life is traced from age 2. All the actors in this role [Tenzin Yeshi Paichang (age 2), Tulku Jamyang Kunga Tenzin (age 5), Gyurme Tethong (age 10), and Tenzin Thuthob Tsarong (adult)] capably show the transformation of a child who relishes the attention and power he gets from being chosen as the leader of his country to the immense burden of responsibility brought on by that position. The rest of the cast is also impeccable; all are real Tibetans, proud and intent on telling their nation's sad story. Kundun's teacher, Ling Rimpoche, is played with love and reverence by Tenzin Trinley, as is his Lord Chamberlain (Gyatso Lukhang), and Reting Rinpoche (Sonam Phuntsok), his friend who brings him to the attention of the religious leaders.

Scorsese's direction is a little fragmented at times, as is Mathison's screenplay. The story has periods where it seems muddled in symbolism, but the nightmares and hallucinations seen by the boy are striking, thanks in no small part to the breathtaking cinematography by Roger Deakins. Also effective is the destruction of the intricate sand art by Kundun's own hand, symbolic of all that is Tibetan being destroyed by its leader's forced departure.

All in all, Kundun is beautifully produced and honestly acted. It's unfortuate for Scorsese that after Seven Years In Tibet, his effort looks like an echo. One difference may be noted in the credits: Scorsese thanks the Dalai Lama himself for his help, suggesting that this story is told from the, er, Lama's mouth. Sorry. ★★★★½

THE WEDDING SINGER

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 1:35

As a spokesman for anyone who came of age in the 1980s, Adam Sandler is well cast in The Wedding Singer. Despite a simplistic plot by Tim Herlihy, Sandler hilariously conveys the angst-ridden sensibilities of the late-baby boomers in the middle of the Reagan years.

Sandler is Robby, a kid who planned to be a rock star but had to pay the bills. Now (1985) he's in his late twenties, singing current top-40 tunes at weddings. He hasn't exactly fulfilled his dreams, but he's happy because he himself is to be married next week. But when his fiancée Linda (Angela Featherstone) stands him up at the altar, his whole outlook changes. He decides to quit singing at weddings after a hilarious sequence where he tries to sing Madonna's "Holiday" while on the verge of tears. The trouble is, his friend Julia (Drew Barrymore), who is also about to wed, wants him to sing at her nuptials. But when her intended, Glenn (Matthew Glave), starts to show that he is an arrogant jerk, the two friends fall for each other. Like I said, simple.

By far the most enjoyable aspect of this movie is playing "spot the '80s reference." The film is loaded with them, and in fact goes a little too far. The clothing and hair styles, cars, music, and pastimes are enough, but it is a little tiresome when the characters keep "predicting" things that we know turned out differently. Another problem is that this '80s flashback may only be really effective on a small section of the population. Any audience member over 40 probably wouldn't have any emotional connection to 1985, and those under 25 wouldn't remember anything but what toys they played with.

The relationship between Robby and Julia is cute but too sugary. Barrymore's smile is engaging, but the fact that she can't stop smirking through the entire movie takes away from that. Sandler is not equipped to portray a serious love affair, but reasonably well-suited for a light romance such as this. Mostly he's funny when performing his act. And another nod must go to Boy George impersonator Alexis Arquette, who sings backup for Robby. His interpretation is right on, but again, anyone not too familiar with Boy George wouldn't get many of the jokes.

This movie is great for a few laughs, especially if you fall into the right age category. But don't expect it to change your life. ★★★

Dinosaurs Come To Life Through Family Project

Computerized dinosaurs took form on tables where children worked with parents, following formats and assembly parts. These creatures, upon completion, would be mobile. Sixty people were involved in building these prehistoric giants as well as other structures. Several options were available to participants in the recent building activity offered to families of Rt. 40 Elementary School as part of the Circles Family Program.

The basic materials for each of these construction projects were Legos that could be hooked-up to computers. "They aren't regular Legos," said Chuck Trautwein, computer specialist for the Garrett County Board of Education. "They are called Lego Dactas. They are educational materials," he noted. Trautwein helped to facilitate the evening's project, which was part of the six-week Circles program sponsored by Garrett County schools.

Debbie Brenneman, coordinator of the program at Rt. 40 School, said the sessions bring together the families of all students who are interested in participating. "The idea is that the teachers are only here to facilitate the projects. It is the parents who work with the children," she said.

The Circle activities, which are structured and educational, are developed from ideas submitted by the families. "Before the program begins, I send out a survey to each family asking what dates and times would be best for them and what activities they would enjoy," Brenneman stated.

Parental involvement and input are central to Circle. "We try too let the parents rule this program. They are a part of what we're doing and that makes it all the more interesting for them," Brenneman said. The parents have a positive response, according to her. "They love it," she said without hesitation. "You can hear a lot of laughter as parents and children work on projects," she added. The Lego Dacta project involved about 60 people.

Several sessions remain that will explore theories of multiple intelligence, examine stress, nutrition, and weight management, and star gazing at the Frostburg State University planetarium. A multi-cultural night will let families demonstrate food, costumes, and customs of other places. A culminating activity will take place in Washington D.C., with visits to the Air and Space Museum and other sites.

Justice Dept. Grants $5 Million To Crime Victims

U.S. Senators Barbara A. Mikulski and Paul S. Sarbanes this week announced that the U.S. Department of Justice has awarded $5 million to Maryland crime victims. The federal Crime Victims Fund money will be distributed by community-based organizations to support state victim compensation and assistance services for victims and survivors of domestic violence, sexual assault, child abuse, drunk driving, and other crimes, according to the officials. Crime Victims Fund uses no tax dollars, they said. The money is derived from fines and penalties collected from convicted federal offenders.

"Too often, crime victims feel like they've been abused twice, first by the crime and then by the system," said Mikulski. "We can't undo the mugging or bring back a loved one, but we can help victims and their families recover. Crime victims compensation offers help when and where it is most needed."

The Crime Victims Funds was established by the 1984 Victims of Crime Act (VOCA). VOCA funds that are awarded to states reportedly support more than 2,300 community-based organizations that serve crime victims.

DNR Seeks Input

associated costs of administering this program.

Sights for Muzzleloaders

Telescopic sights are legal for use during the late segment of the muzzleloader deer season. DNR proposes allowing the use of telescopic sights on muzzleloaders during the early segment of the season as well.

Wild Turkey Fall Season

Maryland has traditionally held a six-day (Monday through Saturday) fall turkey season in early November. In response to hunter interest for a longer fall season DNR is proposing to add an additional Saturday to the fall season.

Rabbit Season

Rabbit season in far western Maryland has traditionally opened one week earlier than the rest of the state. To provide increased recreational opportunities DNR is proposing a statewide season with an earlier opening date.

Public Input Sought

Copies of the full regulation package may be obtained from the local Mt. Nebo Wildlife Division office by calling 301-334-4255. The package may also be viewed at the department's website at http://www.dnr.state.md.us.

Citizens with an interest in these proposals are invited by DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Division to review the proposals and make comments or recommendations at one of the upcoming informational meetings. Comments may also be submitted by mail to Michael Slattery, Director, DNR Wildlife and Heritage Division, Tawes State Office Building E-1, Annapolis, MD 21401, or via e-mail to the department's website. The deadline for written comments is March 30.

Overall Public Meeting

DNR will hold a single public informational meeting in Annapolis on Saturday, March 21, at 1 p.m. to provide an opportunity for interested persons to comment on each of this year's regulation proposals.

The agenda for this meeting will include presentations by DNR wildlife biologists regarding proposed hunting and trapping regulations for deer, resident and migratory upland game, forest game, furbearers, and resident geese. Biologists will discuss the status of game populations, ongoing research activities, and future management considerations. An update will be given regarding the status of migratory Canada geese in the Atlantic Flyway.

The exact location for this public meeting will be announced in March.

Deer Regulations Meetings

Because of the significance of proposed changes relative to deer hunting regulations, DNR has scheduled four additional public meetings throughout the state to provide deer hunters, landowners, and other interested individuals an opportunity to comment and make recommendations regarding the proposed deer hunting regulations only.

The agenda for these meetings will include presentations by DNR wildlife biologists regarding the implications of DNR's new deer management plan relative to hunting, the status of deer populations, deer harvest summaries, and proposed deer hunting regulations for both the 1998-99 and 1999-2000 hunting seasons.

The deer hunting regulations meeting closest to Garrett County will be held in the cafeteria of South Hagerstown High School in Hagerstown on Thursday, March 19, at 7 p.m. To reach the school take Exit 29 off Interstate 70 and proceed north on Md. Route 65 (Sharpsburg Pike) for approximately one mile. The school will be on the left.

Productivity Class Will Focus On Building Teamwork

"Building Productivity Through Teamwork," a class designed to help supervisors and managers strengthen the productivity of their workforce, will be starting in March at Garrett Community College.

According to Julie Yoder, program coordinator, the class focuses on developing leadership skills that will enable each participant to transform his or her workforce into a highly productive coordinated team. Supervisors and managers will learn: the dynamics of effective leadership; how to build commitment; how to use low-cost incentives; delegation skills; ways to empower employees to take responsibility; how to give meaningful feedback and measure results; how to get others to direct and motivate themselves; and ways to build confidence and self-esteem.

"Operating successful businesses and organizations in today's highly competitive environment presents many new challenges," stated Sandy Major, business programs coordinator at GCC. "Conventional ways of managing are no longer effective. Today's leaders need to be doing all the right things 'right' in order to enable performance that attracts, delights, and keeps customers. Companies and organizations that succeed have managers and supervisors who have skills in the areas of enabling change, empowering employees, and achieving positive outcomes. This team building class is designed to strengthen the skills of managers and supervisors in each of these areas."

The class will meet on three consecutive Wednesdays, March 4, 11, and 18, from 6:30 to 9:45 p.m. Those interested in the class should register immediately. To obtain information on this class or other business classes, persons may call Cathy Fazenbaker, Alyce McDowell, or Julie Yoder at the GCC Small Business Development Center at 301-387-3089 or 301-387-3080.

Medical Language Specialist Program Marks Milestone

The 11 students in the pioneer class of the Medical Language Specialist (MLS) program at Garrett Community College were recently honored at a luncheon marking the completion of the first trimester in their intensive nine-month program of studies. The luncheon was hosted by The Accuracy Center (TAC), which was formed for this program to provide a transition to the workplace environment for the students when they graduate.

Debbie Bishop, founder, director, and lead instructor of the MLS program, commended the students' progress and thanked GCC's administration for giving the program its full support. "We have had tremendous cooperation," she said. "We want to thank especially GCC's president, Steve Herman, for believing it could happen and making it happen, MLS program associate director Tom Kierstead for solving many problems and for setting up the computer lab which is now our new classroom, and Lowell Bender for his concern and support." Chief Executive Officer of TAC Ken Bishop was also noted at the luncheon.

The new computer lab that Kierstead was credited with setting up is equipped with the latest technology in medical transcription, including Microsoft Word 97 and Narratek Voice Scribe software that enables students to control and play back word-activated (wav) files with precision. Using the Voice Scribe software students can control the speed of playback, rewind and fast-forward intervals to the second, and pause and resume the wav file while listening to the dictation through their headphones.

The students who began the program last October are now moving to a new phase of their training. In the first three months, according to Bishop, they have added about 10,000 new medical terms to their vocabularies, completed seven textbooks, increased their typing speed, spent 378 hours in the classroom, and toured one of the nation's premier pharmaceutical operations. They have also learned to identify and locate body parts through their acquaintance with Sam/Samantha, a full-size anatomical replica of the human body.

During the final three months of training, the students will be serving an internship and doing live transcription. Upon the training's completion, they will be employed by TAC for at least one year to gain certification. In many cases, medical language transcriptionists are able to work out of their own homes upon certification.

A second MLS class will begin at GCC in September. For further information about the program, interested persons may call the college's Continuing Education and Training Division at 301-387-3069.

New Class of Blood Pressure Medicines

At a recent meeting of the American Society of Hypertension, the benefits of a new class of medicines for the treatment of high blood pressure were highlighted. This relatively new group of drugs is called "ARBs"—a short name for the antiotensin II receptor blockers. The blocking of antictensin II production prevents an increase in blood pressure. Since the actual generic name of these drugs ends in sartan, some individuals refer to all of these as the "sartans." Regardless of the specific name used, these drugs are catching the attention of many physicians, who have found them useful for certain high blood pressure patients. Two important advantages of this group include:
1. Excellent ability to lower blood pressure without producing harmful drug interactions.
2. Low incidence of side effects. One of the troubling side effects of one group of antihypertensives is cough. The ARBS/sartans tend to be free of this effect. In addition, these medicines do not produce excessively low blood pressure experienced with some medicines.

Ethnic Dinners Are Scheduled At Senior Sites

Community Action's Area Agency on Aging will be hosting two Eastern European fee-for-service dinners in March, according to a spokesperson from the agency.

"We would like to be able to provide a service for those who do not take advantage of our regular nutrition program, which operates on a contribution basis," the spokesman said. "The agency is sponsoring ethnic dinners at a reasonable price in the hopes of attracting senior citizens (55+) who do not need nor desire our traditional services. Area Agency on Aging wishes to dispel the idea that its programs are merely for low-income individuals."

The menu for the Sunday, Mar. 22, dinner, to be served from 12:30 to 3 p.m. at Mary Browning Senior Center, will include Uborka Salata (Hungarian cucumber salad), Borscht (Ukrainian beet soup), Golumki (Polish-style cabbage rolls), Kluski (Polish potato dumplings), Zoldbab (Hungarian green beans), roll, Rhamkuchen (German cheese cake) and coffee and/or iced tea.

CUPPETT AND WEEKS QUEEN AND KING held court at the recent Valentine's Day celebrations at the Oakland home. Cecelia O'Heaver, 96, and Claude Lee, 86, were crowned by AmeriCorps after-school program participants Joe Graham and Holly Holler. Fifty volunteers from the youth group at Grace Methodist Church in Elk Garden, W.Va., Lillian Rebekah Lodge #58, and the AmeriCorps after-school program at Southern Middle School celebrated the occasion with the residents of Cuppett and Weeks.

On Friday, Mar. 27, from 5 to 7 p.m., Grantsville Senior Center will be serving Cekla Salata (Hungarian beet salad), Pushka (Slovanian wedding soup), Golumki (Polish-style cabbage rolls), Noodles Romanoff, Zoldbab (Hungarian green beans), roll, Kuchen (German apple cake) and coffee and/or iced tea.

The not-for-profit dinners are offered at a cost of $8.95 per person, which includes beverage and dessert. Gratuities will not be accepted. The agency emphasizes that all persons age 55+ are welcome to attend one or both dinners, but must purchase tickets in advance. Persons may come at any time during the interval set for each dinner.

Tickets are available at Mary Browning Senior Center, Oakland; Grantsville Senior Center, Grantsville; and the agency office at 104 E. Center Street, Oakland. To order tickets by phone, persons may call 301-334-9431 or toll free, 1-888-877-8403, ext. 142.

No tickets will be sold at the door. The agency is stressing that the deadline for purchase of tickets is Wednesday, Mar. 18, at noon.

GC Arts Council Grant Application Deadline Mar. 21

March 21 is the deadline for non-profit organizations to submit applications to the Garrett County Arts Council requesting funding support of $500 or more for arts programs or projects scheduled between July 1, 1998, and June 30, 1999. Requests for funding support must be submitted on approved application forms available by calling the GCAC office at 301-387-3121.

With primary funding from the Maryland State Arts Council, the Garrett County Arts Council awards grants to non-profit organizations presenting arts programs or projects to the public in Garrett County or for the benefit of Garrett County citizens. Recipients must supply a cash match for all programs and projects awarded grant funding support. In addition, funded programs and projects must meet specific eligibility criteria, including accessibility to persons with disabilities.

Applications are reviewed according to established criteria for artistic merit, significance for intended audience and participating artists, organizational effectiveness, service to the community, and financial feasibility.

Following the 1997 annual application deadline, the Garrett County Arts Council awarded a total of $22,405 to 13 organizations requesting grant funding support. Funded programs included concerts, festivals, shows, recitals, and a student arts camp.

Qualifying organizations may apply for funding support for any type of public visual or performing arts activity, including music, dance, creative writing and poetry, drama, storytelling, painting and exhibitions, and other arts events.

The Garrett County Arts Council encourages organizations requesting less than $500 in annual funding support to apply throughout the year for mini-grant consideration. Requests for mini-grant funding support may be submitted at any time, but must be submitted at least 45 days prior to the program or project for which funding support is requested.

For further information and complete grant guidelines, persons may call the Garrett County Arts Council office at 301-387-3121 or write to GCAC at P.O. Box 930, McHenry, MD 21541.

Gas Prices Reach Lowest Point Since December

Gasoline prices in Maryland are at the lowest point since December 1995 when gas was $1.108 per gallon, reports AAA. Regular, self-serve unleaded averaged $1.118 in this month's AAA survey. This price is 3.3 cents lower than last month and 16.9 cents lower than last February's price.

The continuing drop in gasoline prices is largely attributed to oil prices dropping to a four-year low of $16.15 a barrel as of January 21, healthy oil inventories, and lower (winter) demand.

Highway Map Now Available

The Maryland Department of Transportation's State Highway Administration (SHA) has officially released the new tourist highway map. The new map highlights Maryland's tourist attractions, historical sites, museums, and highway routes.

Additionally, the map shows limited information regarding transportation services and resources, as well as a map of the Baltimore/Washington International Airport, rail transit locations, and other resource phone numbers.

For a copy of the new tourist highway map, persons may call SHA's Mapping Section at 410-545-8747, the Office of Communications at 1-800-323-6742 or by e-mail at mmcneill@sha.state.md.us.

SHA reminds motorists to buckle up all passengers, obey posted speed limits, stay alert, and use caution while driving.

"In Order to Form a More Perfect Union..."

Each February as we remember great leaders in our history, these words from the Constitution come to mind,... "to form a more perfect union" through freedom from oppression.

George Washington realized our need of freedom from British tyranny. A century later, Abraham Lincoln saw the need for freedom and equality within our own nation in order to form a more humane society. In God's word we read, "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free...for you are all one" (Galatians 3:28).

Throughout history our leaders have understood not only our advanced needs for equality, but the role we as a nation play in forming a better world through upholding freedom. Exercise your freedom of religion and worship in your chosen church or synagogue. Pray for our leaders and for "a more perfect union."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

PERVERTING GOD'S GRACE
February 22, 1998

Background Scripture:
Jude 3-4,17-25
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 55:6-13

A few months ago, my wife, Valere, and I led a tour to Turkey, following in the footsteps of the Apostles Paul and John. In preparation, I did some research on the history of the Byzantine Empire and its capital, Constantinople, today's Istanbul. For more than 1,000 years Constantinople was the capital not only of the empire, but also Eastern Orthodox Christianity. It was here that Christianity first became a legal religion. One of the greatest Christian churches, Hagia Sophia, also known as St. Sophia, was built as the mother church for Orthodox Christianity.

I was shocked to find that when Constantinople first fell to a foreign army in 1202, it was not to the Islamics, as I had assumed, but an army of Christian Crusaders. The Fourth Crusade was organized with the goal of recapturing the Holy Land and invading Egypt, but once launched, the Crusaders from Western Europe decided that Christian Constantinople was a far more lucrative prize—which, unfortunately, is what the crusades were mostly about.

Worst of all, I discovered that their sack of Constantinople is virtually without parallel. The Crusaders stormed into St. Sophia, looting, pillaging and seriously damaging it. Seizing the sacred vessels, they pried the valuable stones from them and used the vessels in their drunken orgy. They even forced a prostitute to dance lewdly before the altar. They so weakened the city that two centuries later it was unable to withstand the forces of the Islamic Ottoman Empire. History records that the Ottomans were much less rapacious than the Christian armies of Crusaders.

BELYING OUR FAITH

So, what does all of that have to do with the Epistle of Jude and the perversion of God's grace? Answer: it is simply a historic illustration that professing Christians have often grossly perverted the grace of God, giving themselves over to a licentiousness which belied their Christian profession. It can lead us to examine ourselves and our society to determine how the grace of God might still be perverted by people who claim to follow Christ.

Jude, the writer of this oft-forgotten New Testament letter, penned to warn Christians against "false teachers" whose blatant immorality was leading many astray and corrupting some churches. In their midst, he is saying, there are "ungodly persons who pervert the grace of our God into licentiousness and deny our only Master and Lord, Jesus Christ" (v. 4b).

What did he mean by "pervert the grace of our God"? We do not know exactly who these "ungodly persons" were. We do know that during this period there were some who believed that Jesus was not really human, but just appeared to be. If Jesus was not really human, it was assumed that he had little to do with the earthly lives that we lead. Therefore, you could believe in Christ but still live as if he has little or no significance for the way that we live on earth. So these people could claim Christ for their spirits without involving him in their minds and bodies.

DEPRAVED LIVES

They thus claimed allegiance to Christ, but lived depraved lives in sexual, drunken and violent debauchery—a virtual rejection of the Good News of Jesus Christ. We do not know if the "ungodly persons" consciously and vocally denied Christ, but, even if not, the lives they led denied the true meaning of our Lord.

I suspect that the "ungodly persons" did not recognize themselves in Jude's letter. They probably considered themselves "good Christians," strong supporters of the church and perfectly in step with the morals of the times—just as the Crusaders would centuries later. Despite the depredations they committed, they were greatly admired by Western society and honored by the churches. These people whose lives denied what they professed concerning Christ were more harmful to the gospel than those who openly and publicly denied Christ.

The late theologian Emil Brunner, has written: The scandal of Christianity exists as a scandal only so long as we are full of ourselves. To believe in the cross of Christ is no scandal for those who have seen how perverted is their own wisdom...It is the very corrective for this perversion of our sight, it makes us look straight again, who by sin have become cross-eyed. Nothing is more insidious, nothing perverts more the grace of God than when talking Christianity becomes a substitute for living it.

Employment Skills Training Students At GCC Work Their Way Back To Work

by Julie Yoder

In mid September, 12 individuals set out on a journey. These individuals came from a variety of backgrounds but shared a common goal: to make a fresh start and become gainfully employed. They all chose the Employment Skills Training Program at Garret Community College to help them achieve their respective goals. Those goals have become reality as each of those individuals received certificates of completion recently during a celebration luncheon held at the Traders' Cafe.

Employment Skills Training (EST) is a program designed for non-traditional students to enable them to re-enter the workforce with the skills and knowledge necessary to succeed in a chosen field. The program requires a 600-hour time commitment over a period of 19 weeks and includes three training components: specialty, core, and worksite.

EST program participants may choose from specialties including: Certified Nursing Assistant, Small Business Management, and Office Skills. In addition to specialty training, all students have core classes in math, language, computers, interpersonal skills, customer service, fitness and problem solving. The specialty and core classes, combined with a lengthy internship period, provide a well rounded learning experience. Many students secure employment before the end of the training due to their outstanding performance on the worksite.

Of the 12 students, eight are former Bausch & Lomb employees. Realizing that manufacturing jobs are few and far between, these individuals decided to make a major life change. For them, what had been a way of life for many years was no longer an option; however, self-pity is not a trait held by any members of this group. They rallied around one another and, along with the four other students, quickly became a cohesive group — a family.

RESOLVED NOT TO TAKE JOB LOSS LYING DOWN, certified nursing assistant (CNA) students Kathy Paugh, left, and Kenny Goodrich, right, assist their "patient" Alice Madigan as part of their hands-on training included in the Employment Skills Training Program at Garrett Community College. The CNA course is one of the program's several offerings that assist adults seeking to re-entry into the job market. Shown below are the recent graduates of the four-month program. In the front row, left to right, are Rhonda Kifer, Elizabeth Kelly, Tawnya Richard, Goodrich, Madigan, Carrie Friend, and Naomi Tichinel. In the back row are Janet Tasker, Paugh, Virginia Tichnell, Harvey Bittinger, and Reva Waybright. A new EST program is slated to begin in early March, and persons interested in participating are encouraged to inquire with the college. See story.

One member of the group, Alice Madigan, had this to say about the program: "The instructors and staff at GCC deserve a round of applause for their support and encouragement during a difficult time in my career. With B&L closing for good, my 17 years of experience suddenly became useless because there was no place else to use it. GCC gave me an entirely new direction to go in with its Certified Nursing Assistant (CNA) course.

"I feel new hope for the future," Madigan continued, "and thank GCC's EST program for the opportunity to start over with confidence. Receiving my CNA certificate was a high point in my life. I wish to thank the instructors for their extra effort and encouragement while I relearned the learning process and entered a career I can be proud of," she said.

Janet Tasker, who completed the Small Business Management specialty, added, "After 22 years of service at B&L, I faced starting over. I'm thankful for the Small Business Management program at GCC, because I now feel confident to go back into the workplace and start my own business. I would recommend this course for anyone thinking of starting a business of their own." Janet is the owner/operator of Mountaintop Maid, a cleaning and personalized service business.

The opportunity exists for others to realize their goals as well. A new Employment Skills Training program will begin on Monday, March 9. For more information, or to register for an orientation/information session, interested persons may call GCC's Small Business Development Center at 301-387-3080.

Edgar Allan Poe "In Person And Myth" at FSU

Writer/Poet Doug Boulter will present an impersonation of Edgar Allan Poe at 7 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 22, in the Pealer Recital Hall of the Performing Arts Center at Frostburg State University. The event, sponsored by the FSU Faculty Development Subcommittee, is free and open to the public.

Boulter's performance will include presentations of Poe's most popular poetry ("The Raven" and "Annabel Lee"), a reconstructed lecture about the 19th century lack of an international copyright treaty, comments on American higher education in the mid-19th century, and a dramatic reading of "The Masque of the Red Death." He will entertain questions from the audience both in and out of character.

Boulter has previously appeared at Garrett Community College as part of Chautauqua, '97. He will discuss the creation of Chautauqua characters at an informal session and workshop at 11 a.m. on Monday, Feb. 23, in Lewis J. Ort Library Room 237.

"It's really humbling to hear trees snapping in the forest when you're thinking about sleeping out there in a tent. The places where Adventuresports participants go are humbling, magnificent, and beautiful, and we need to approach them humbly. They give us perspective from our day to day lives and help us see what is really important." — Steve Tomb, Adventuresports professor at Garrett Community College.

While most college students across the country spent Christmas break at home visiting with family and friends, 11 Adventuresports (AVS) majors and three instructors were sequestered for two days in early January in a GCC classroom studying winter camping techniques. These intrepid outdoorsmen and women had begun a mountaineering course titled "Adirondack Expedition," which became as a much of a journey into what lies within themselves as it was into the woods around them.

On Jan. 7 the group boarded a van for an 11-hour drive to the Keene Valley of upstate New York's Adirondack State Park in upstate New York, over 250 miles due north and a world away from New York City. When they arrived, the Adventuresports class stepped into a world seemingly closer to the North Pole than the Big Apple, as "the ice storm of the century" began wreaking its El Niño-driven havoc on the northeastern United States and Canada.

"It was raining when we got to Chapel Ponds (in the Adirondacks)," AVS professor Steve Tomb recalled, "and we spent the first night camping out close to the van just as we had planned; however, after that first night, everything changed because of the weather. It got so bad so fast, with severe icing conditions and trees snapping under close to an inch of ice, that it became too dangerous to camp out. We spent the next two nights in lean-tos instead," he said.

The severe weather conditions changed the trip's itinerary, as the original plan of setting up base camps in the woods from which to attack the surrounding 5,000-foot peaks was shelved. While staying at the lean-tos the group weighed their options and decided to make the expedition a long, looping route through the forest, setting up camp in a new spot each night and breaking camp each morning to move on to a new site. This was agreed upon even though it would mean that every member of the team would have to carry more weight each day.

The decision not to tackle the back country over those first two full days is an example of the group's thorough preparation for the trip, and for their eventual careers. "It was risk management decision," said student Janet Amelio. "We were taught to look at potential circumstances of our actions, and see if it's something you can risk and still be prepared for whatever can come up. Risk management is a really important aspect of AVS, especially if you're going to be leading an outing," the sophomore said.

On Friday morning the group split up into three teams, each taking a different 10-mile trek into the woods on snowshoes to find the best route for the whole expedition to reach the summit of Mt. Marcy. Regrouping around the campfire that night to discuss what had been found, the teams came to a mutual decision on the next day's route.

"The reconnaissance expeditions and the subsequent discussions were a example of how AVS can bring traditional learning-style students and non-traditional learning-style students together in a non-traditional environment to share ideas and invent solutions," Tomb said. "It takes hands-on teamwork, a trademark of the AVS program, which is based on experiential education."

The attack on Mt. Marcy began Saturday, as the group hiked from the lean-tos and camped above the Marcy Dam at 2,800 feet. Sunday dawned frigid and overcast with blasts of wind that took the day's 10-degree high down to windchill temperatures of 30-below zero. After snowshoeing to a 4,500-foot elevation to set up camp above the treeline, the group trudged on to the summit that afternoon. "It came down to a matter of looking only at the person directly in front of you," sophomore Gordon Machay said. "All I could think was 'pick up your left foot, put it down, pick up your right foot, put it down, left foot, right foot, etc'."

Making the 5,344-foot summit that day was an accomplishment to be proud of. "On top of Marcey I felt that we could do anything in the world," Machay said. "The conditions were so bad with the constant wind and no visibility, that to talk to someone else you had to stand right next to them and yell."

Back at camp that night the wind died down and the sky cleared, revealing countless stars and constellations dotting the crystal clear sky. The AVS group's piece of the earth was stripped of its insulating blanket of clouds and the air temperature plunged to 15-below zero, which gave a whole new aspect to the ice-encased wilderness. As the temperature plummetted, the moisture content of both the air and the snow cover on the ground dropped markedly, changing the texture of the snow and even its sound. "Before that extremely cold night the snow had a granular, crushing sound when you stepped on it," Tomb observed. "Then as it got colder and drier it sounded more the squeaking sound a styrofoam cup makes when you twist it in your hands," he said.

"It was really cold at the camp," Machay commented, "but it was very comforting to have changed into dry clothes, have food in your stomach and a hot drink in your hand. Then we would sit around a campstove boiling water, and call it 'partying.' It really wasn't bad at all." Clark Lanthier agreed, adding that "it was interesting to use our own body heat to dry our clothing. We took our socks off and put them against our shoulders to dry them out, we also slept with our hiking boots stuffed into our sleeping bags with us. It gave me a whole new appreciation for synthetic clothing," he stated.

On Monday the students split into three groups and began bushwacked down off Mt. Marcy, rendevouzing at the van Tuesday evening. They voted to spend that night in a nearby bunkhouse, as the temperature continued its downward spiral, bottoming out at 20 degrees below zero that night with a 60-degree below windchill.

The next day the group practiced ice climbing techniques in preparation for a day of ice climbing on Thursday. During the climbs, most of the group worked a 'single-pitch' climb, using one 90-foot length of rope, but the more experienced pair of Machay and Jason Powell conducted a 'multi-pitch' climb of 300 feet, using several 90-foot sections of rope. Over a foot of snow fell that day, and the climbers were constantly buffetted head-on by whirling, wind-driven spindrifts of snow.

The expedition ended Friday with exit interviews and the drive home to Garrett County. It was then that the party learned the extent of the havoc wreaked throughout New York, New England, and eastern Canada by the same winter weather system that they had been camping in. "It was very strange to find out that 12 people had died in their homes while we were outside living in the woods," freshman Jeff Kupstas said.

The venture gained the students a new appreciation for nature and their own capabilities. "It was a tough course academically," said Lanthier, commenting on the requirements of utilizing three textbooks, producing a 4-page reaction paper, and making a presentation to the rest of the class. "At some points I thought we should get an 'A' just to survive," he laughed.

"I felt I learned more about myself than about the other things," Amelio shared. "I found myself spending a lot of time thinking about what to do after graduation."

Tomb summarized the purpose of the journey by pointing to the journey itself. "Adventuresports is about humbly interacting with nature; that's why we take people to wild places. People want and need the wilderness, for after a hard day's hike you can sit down, watch the stars and feel the wind bite at your skin — it lets you know you're alive."

Maps and globes made in the 18th and 19th centuries are becoming more popular with collectors. Perhaps it is because the boundaries for so many countries have changed.

The first printed maps in England were made in 1573 by Christopher Saxton. He produced an atlas with 37 county maps and a large country map. The maps were sold as a set in an atlas or as single sheets.

During the past 150 years, most of the atlases were cut apart so the individual maps could be framed and sold. Therefore, a complete original atlas is now worth more than $500,000.

The maps were reissued several times. Experts can date the copies by the minor changes in dates, name and details.

Early maps often were embellished with decorative borders and pictures that add to collector interest.

World globes were used in England by the 16th century but they were not fashionable until the 18th century. Many globes were made in pairs: a terrestrial one showing the countries and oceans, and a celestial one showing the position of the stars.

An interesting and rare pocket globe recently was sold at Skinner's Auction Gallery in Boston. The 3-inch-diameter globe came with an imitation fish-skin case. It was made in the 19th century, but the globe was based on a 1731 example by R. Cashee. It sold for $2,990.

If 19th century globes are too expensive for you, look for the metal or plastic globes made in the 1930s, '40s and '50s. Shops sell ordinary metal globes for about $50 to $400. Those with internal lights usually sell for more.

A & E Network Biography®

BAT MASTERSON: MAN OF MANY (DERBY) HATS

If the name Bat Masterson conjures up only images of a Western dandy traversing the dusty streets of cowboy towns (and '50s TV screens) with cane and derby hat, consider this: The real Bat was a plainsman and deadly gunman, a boomtown sheriff and, of all things, a New York sportswriter.

According to February's Biography magazine, he also palled around with Theodore Roosevelt and Damon Runyon, inspiring one of Runyon's best-known characters — Sky Masterson, from the story, "The Idyll of Miss Sarah Brown," that became "Guys and Dolls." Actor Gene Barry may have created the urbane, cultivated character we think of as Bat, but the real man was far more multi-faceted (and, yes, he did wear a derby).

Born in Canada in 1853, he came with his parents and six siblings as a pioneer to America. At 18, he headed to Kansas to hunt buffalo. During one of the Indians' unsuccessful attempts to rid the ranges of the hated white hunters, he gained fame as the youngest and one of the most valuable defenders of the Texan trading post, Adobe Walls. Bat clinched his reputation as a deadly marksman when he shot in self-defense a jealous corporal who tried to gun him down over a dance-hall girl. He took a bullet through the hip, adopting his trademark cane while recovering.

In 1877, he was elected sheriff of Ford County, including Dodge City, and worked with Wyatt Earp. When he lost a second election, he became an itinerant gambler. He also became involved in the growing sport of professional boxing, sometimes acting as referee or purse-holder. In 1902, he headed to New York and became a sportswriter. In the end, Bat died not with his boots on, but at his newspaper desk, expiring from a heart attack in 1921 at the age of 67.

Farming In Maryland.....

Protecting The Environment: Partnerships Are The Key

Farmers, ranchers and environmentalists are beginning to recognize the importance of forming partnerships that will protect the future of agriculture and the environment.

"Agriculture can really take full control of its environmental destiny," said Thomas Hebert, deputy undersecretary of the agriculture department's Natural Resources Conservation Service.

"When we began to develop conservation provisions for the farm bill, we recognized that agriculture does not get the credit it deserves on conservation issues," said Hebert. "We asked ourselves what USDA could do to eliminate this problem."

In an effort to get farmers and ranchers more involved in local conservation efforts and to win public support, USDA developed the Locally Led Conservation Initiative. The initiative focuses on developing programs that address environmental problems in practical, voluntary ways.

Several factors are key if locally led conservation efforts are to succeed, explained Hebert. Agriculture must establish long-term goals that will improve environmental quality, and also must be able to measure the success of conservation programs.

"We have to be able to evaluate and report our progress so that the public sees the benefit of funding these voluntary programs with their money," Hebert said.

Perhaps the biggest key to the success of local efforts will be broadening the base of participants. Community involvement is crucial.

"We have to include as many people in the community as possible, including environmentalists," said Hebert. "This will help add to the credibility of agriculture and build a base of allies so that when these issues make it to the national level, we don't end up in gridlock."

Farmers in California have developed the Non-Point Source Initiative and Strategy 2000 to address non-point source pollution in 16 California rivers. A central component of the plan is to extend partnerships to local community stewardship groups to assist in obtaining voluntary compliance for the control of NPS pollution.

"We saw the need to help our members address these problems to head off regulations by state and federal agencies," said Theresa Dennis, an attorney for the California Farm Bureau. "We recognized the importance of involving others in the community in the process. We created landowner working groups to develop plans that defined the role of agriculture in improving water quality in these areas."

Farmers in North Carolina have also taken the lead in conservation efforts. Partnerships have played a key role in their success.

"We would not have been able to address these problems if it had not been for a strong locally led effort," explained Anne Coan of the North Carolina Farm Bureau.

In the Tar Heel state, the biggest challenge facing agriculture has been the management of animal waste. Coan explained that technical assistance, cost-share programs and partnerships between agriculture, local, state and national agencies are helping farmers successfully address waste management problems.

"We are growing more and more concerned about mandatory compliance," said Coan. "If we don't work with agriculture to solve these problems, some of these farms are going to turn into housing developments. I think we are seeing a trend toward partnerships."

Local Producers To Be Interviewed For Joint Study

The National Agricultural Statistics Service (USDA-NASS) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture now has responsibility to conduct the 1997 Census of Agriculture. Within the same time frame that the census encompasses, NASS will also field the Agricultural Resource Management Study (ARMS).

NASS has designed a questionnaire that combines these two important studies. This combined study will take considerable less time than it would to complete the surveys separately. Both the ARMS and the Census of Agriculture are comprehensive studies which ask detailed information about agricultural operations in order to provide valuable information that producers, policy makers, and analysts depend on to make well-informed decisions for the agricultural community.

In Maryland and Delaware, a combined total of 193 producers will have input into those decisions through the integrated Agricultural Resource Management Study conducted during February and March. Information obtained from these producers will help show how agriculture is doing as a whole, how the various types of enterprises within agriculture are performing, and whether some sectors are more financially vulnerable than others. Only through information gathered from local farm operators can reliable, objective facts be merged into data used in many ways that benefit the local, state, and national agricultural sector.

Producers selected to participate are being notified by letter. Interviewers representing the Maryland and Delaware Agricultural Statistics Service will then visit them, at the farm operators' convenience, to complete their reports.

"This survey is the only barometer available that each year measures the economic well being of our farms and ranches. It is very important to measure these changes that take place in production and prices because the situation in agriculture changes so rapidly. A farmer or rancher should participate in this study so the actual agricultural balance sheet is available to those that make decisions affecting agriculture," said Ray Garibay, Maryland state statistician. The Agricultural Resource Management Study is the only study used to examine the changing role of farm and off-farm employment among family farms and ranches. The study will also help evaluate the impact of adverse weather in 1997 on producers' net income and cash flow.

Farm Nutrient Training Program Set For March 18

The Maryland Department of Agriculture's Nutrient Management Program will present "Nutrient Management in Animal, Crop and Soil Systems" on March 18 at its headquarters building, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis. Certified consultants attending the course will receive continuing education credits. For more information, those interested may contact the Maryland Department of Agriculture at 410-841-5863.

The Chesapeake Bay Program has announced that it will now be easier for nutrient management consultants in Bay jurisdictions to become certified in more than one state. According to Fred Samadani, director of Maryland's Nutrient Management Program, Maryland and Virginia have signed an agreement which will enable consultants in the field to continue their work across state borders, and a similar agreement with Pennsylvania is expected this spring.

Ag Fairs & Shows Judging School Set For April

The Maryland Association of Agricultural Fairs and Shows will be conducting a judging school on Saturday, April 18, from 9:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. at the Department of Agriculture, Truman Parkway, Annapolis, Maryland.

Topics to be covered include: breads, cakes, pies, cookies, and brownies; canning---fruits, vegetables, meats, jams, jellies, and pickles; crafts, photography, woodwork; china and ceramics; farm and garden products; and flowers, herbs and herb vinegars.

For a registration form those interested may contact the Garrett County Extension Office at 301-334-6960.

According to Alice Hevner, Extension agent for 4-H, "this is a great opportunity to learn what the judges are looking for but also how to be a judge yourself."

Number Of Farms Decrease Across United States

USDA estimated the number of farms in the United States at 2.06 million for 1997. That number is down less than 1 percent from 1996 numbers.

Total land in farms was 968 million acres, which was also down less than 1 percent from 1996. The average farm in 1996 was 471 acres.

Ag Enumerators Hired For Farm Data Collection

Carolyn J. Ganoe, NASDA field supervisor, has announced the employment of two field enumerators for Garrett County and one for Allegany County to collect agricultural data for the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service, a division of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture.

Jodi McClintock, Devil's Half Acre Road, will serve mostly in the northern area of the county and Leland Hargrove, Loch Lynn, will serve in the southern area.

A training seminar was held Monday at the Casselman Inn with information on the follow-up calling for the census survey. Census forms were to be returned by mail by Feb. 2. The agricultural census is conducted every five years and this is the first year the statistics service has been involved with the reporting. Area farmers can look forward to receiving telephone calls or personal interviews with one of the enumerators. All enumerators will have department identification and badges to verify employment.

Robert Heavner, Bedford Road, is serving as field enumerator for Allegany County. Heavner has been collecting agricultural data since last August. He is also involved in the Agricultural Resource Management Study III (ARMS) report. He and Ganoe attended the state training session on the ARMS III survey held in Bowie on Feb. 11 to 13.

Ganoe has served the Garrett and Allegany agricultural community for the past eight years and will continue to be directly involved with collection of data. At present, Ganoe is conducting the ARMS III "Costs and Returns Report" for Garrett County. A selected few of the agricultural community have been chosen for this report. "On behalf of our team, Ganoe said, "we thank the farmers for their participation in our ag surveys."

Money Available To Md. Farmers For Farm Conservation

The USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service has announced the availability of $1.8 million in conservation funding under the USDA Environmental Quality Incentives program (EQIP). EQIP funds are used to help farmers install best management practices to conserve and improve agricultural land and other natural resources.

The funds are used to help farmers address a range of natural resource concerns, including soil erosion, water quality, riparian areas, wildlife habitat and grazing lands. Interested farmers should contact their local soil conservation district office or call Carol Hollingsworth at 410-757-0861, ext. 313. The application deadline is May 15.

Research is Changing Our Perception About Phosphorus

Until recently we didn't think much about phosphorus being an element that would leave our soil by run-off. For years phosphorus showed up as the most limiting major element on our Garrett County soil tests. We knew very well that plants needed phosphorus, so we never gave much thought about over supplying the soil. Now, all the fingers are pointing at phosphorus being the element causing pollution problems in the water. Scientists tell us there are some myths about phosphorus: Myth—"Soils have an unlimited capacity to tie up phosphorus." Reality—"Soils can become saturated with phosphorus." Myth—"Phosphorus doesn't leach, it stays where it is applied." Reality—"Once a soil saturated, the additional phosphorus is more readily soluble and may leach down the soil profile. Soluble phosphorus may reach the water table." Myth—"Phosphorus losses from runoff can be eliminated if erosion is controlled." Reality—"Although erosion control will limit most phosphorus loss, soluble phosphorus may be carried in run-off. If residues, fertilizers and manure are unincorporated, loss of soluble phosphorus in run-off is more likely."

How Long Will It Take You to Reduce Phosphorus Levels?

If you have fields where the phosphorus soil test levels are in the "excessive" range, how long will it take for the levels to be reduced? Soil scientists in North Carolina investigated the Portsmouth soil in the Coastal Plain region of the state in which soil test phosphorus levels had been raised to an excessive level (400 pounds/acre) by high rates of commercial fertilizer. Even with annual crop harvest, 14 years elapsed before soil test levels dropped to the point where phosphorus application would again be recommended.

Do some crops remove more phosporus from soils than others? If so, can these crops be used as a means of reducing soil phosphorus test levels? The concentration of phosphorus in adequately nourished plants is similar across species. Crops which produce more plant material (biomass) per acre will therefore remove more phosphorus from a soil. However, the amount actually removed from the field will depend upon how much of this biomass is harvested. For example, alfalfa removes more phosphorus per acre than corn and corn removes more than soybeans, primarily because the amount of harvested crop removed from the field. My advise is to monitor the phosphorus contents in your fields. If you have fields that are approaching excessive, now is the time to take steps to reduce or maintain the phosphorus level.

Floriculture Program Planned To Assist Growers

Penn State Cooperative Extension has announced a new program designed to assist growers interested in producing fall potted plants. "Fall Floriculture Plants for Profit" will be held on Tuesday, March 31, at the Arena Restaurant in Bedford, Pa., from 8:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

This program will provide growers with the tools to successfully grow profitable, fall-blooming potted plants. Whether producers have grown these crops in the past or are just getting started, this program will give them the information they need to grow the best fall plants around. While early spring may seem to be a little early to start thinking about fall plants, mum cuttings are set in June and need to be ordered very soon. Producers are invited to join Penn State Cooperative Extension for what should prove to be a very interested program.

Preregistration is required as class size is limited and program materials need to be ordered. The cost of the program is $20 per person and includes all program materials, lunch, and morning beverages. For information and registration, those interested may call Steve Bogash, Blair County, Pa., Extension agent/horticulture, at 814-693-3265. Registration brochures will also be available at Bedford, Cambria, and Somerset Cooperative Extension offices.

Fresh Vegetable Production Report Given

The 1997 growing season was highlighted by large doses of rain and cool spring weather. Summer temperatures were cooler than normal with light precipitation. Prices were up substantially for strawberries, spinach, cucumbers and turnips but were down substantially for green peas, cabbage and cantaloupes.

Maryland Fruit Production Up

Maryland peach growers produced 9.7 million pound of peaches in 1997, up 4% from the 9.3 million for 1996. Utilized production totaled 9.0 million pounds for 1997, up 5% from the 8.6 million pounds for 1996. The season average price for the 1997 peach crop was 43 cents per pound compared with 40 cents for the 1996 crop. The value of the utilized production totaled $3.87 million, up 13% from the $3.44 million for 1996.

Maryland fruit growers produced 35 million pounds of apples in 1997, 21% more than the 29 million pounds produced in 1996. Utilized production totaled 33.5 million pounds, 22% above 1996's 27.5 million pounds. The season average price for utilized production was 16.8 cents per pound, 1.2 cents above the 15.6 cents per pound in 1996. The value of Maryland's utilized production for 1997 was $5.6 million compared with $4.3 million in 1996.

Fruit Production Down Across U.S.

Utilized apple production for 1997 was estimated at 10.2 billion pounds, 2% less than the last 2 years. Production increases in California, Michigan, and New York were not enough to offset an 11% drop in production in Washington. Michigan's production was up 50% from 1996's drought-reduced crop.

Washington's drop in production in 1997 was due primarily to smaller-sized fruit. Utilized peach production was set at 2.52 billion pounds, up 23% from last year and 15% above 1995. The California crop, accounting for 73% of the U.S. peach crop, was down from 83% in 1996. Production in Georgia and South Carolina rebounded to more normal levels after 1996's freeze-damaged crops.

COVER STORY

Dr. Quinn returns – literally – with a bang

Jane Seymour

Two months after being sent out to pasture, the CBS Western drama series Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman saddles up again.

Welcome back, Dr. Mike (Jane Seymour), and here's a bullet for your troubles.

Yes, the beloved and much-missed title heroine gets shot when the series returns Saturday, Feb. 28, with "Point Blank."

Following the death of his wife, a crazed man (Jon Simmons) vows revenge on the medical profession and goes gunning for Dr. Mike at the clinic. After the man opens fire and badly injures her, Andrew (Brandon Douglas) must save her life.

Dr. Mike survives surgery but faces an even greater challenge: The shooting haunts her and prevents her from returning to the clinic.

While the story line might sound like a drastic departure for the show, Executive Producer Carl Binder says it simply exemplifies the qualities of Dr. Quinn. It also gives Seymour a chance to really shine.

"What it allows Jane is to do some of the finest work she has ever done on the show as far as her acting," he says. "It really takes her character to the bottom and (has her) having to work back up emotionally."

While Dr. Mike has overcome many obstacles in her life, the shooting might be the biggest one yet.

"(The episode explores) her emotional recovery from (the shooting) and how it ... becomes worse to the point where she becomes phobic," Binder explains.

"At first, it's a fear of going back to the clinic, because that's where this horrible event happened ... and it gradually evolves to a point where she can't even leave the house, actually considering giving up her career as a doctor."

As Dr. Mike struggles through the ordeal, her husband, Sully (Joe Lando), is there to support her. Since the series' debut, their marriage has been strong enough to get them through some tough times.

At the beginning of this season, however, it appeared as if the marriage was strained when Sully became an outlaw.

But their love remained strong, and Sully isn't going anywhere.

"We just reached an agreement with Joe to take down his workload to allow him to go off and pursue other things," Binder says. "He'll be back for next year."

If there is a next year. Even though the show is a ratings winner for CBS, the network pulled the it in January to test the new series The Magnificent Seven. The sudden disappearance of Dr. Quinn caused much speculation about its fate.

"We were surprised by it, but CBS assured us – and we have no reason to think otherwise – that the reason they chose to try out The Magnificent Seven in our time slot is because we have a very loyal fan base that watches our show regularly," Binder says.

But the series may be under the gun.

"We have every intention of coming back (for another season), but a lot of it is going to be on the audience," he says.

Robert Stack

Q: What happened to Unsolved Mysteries? Has Robert Stack retired? –Linda Ridinger, Kent, Ohio.

A: NBC canceled Mysteries last season, but CBS picked it up as a midseason replacement. It will return in the near future, possibly by the time this column is printed.

Q: Was Dr. Quinn: Medicine Woman canceled? If not, when will it return? –Dozens of concerned fans.

A: Jane Seymour returns as Dr. Quinn on Saturday, Feb. 28, as CBS had planned.

As networks always do this time of the year, CBS pulled Quinn for a few weeks to give a new series, The Magnificent Seven, a trial run. No word as to the fate of that series.

Q: I am a huge fan of the British comedy series Red Dwarf. Is it true that there will be a series VIII? Is there going to be a Red Dwarf movie? –Jason MacLeod, Truro, Nova Scotia, Canada.

A: An eighth series of Red Dwarf, cast intact, begins filming at Shepperton Studios in June for a British TV premiere in 1998. Canadian viewers may see it soon after that, American fans at a later date on PBS.

I haven't found any evidence that a movie is in the works yet, but I suggest you check out Red Dwarf World (www.geocities.com/TelevisionCity/2139/), a news Website updated every month.

Red Dwarf will be filming some of its new episodes before a live studio audience, and Red Dwarf World will provide ticket information as it becomes available. You also will find useful fan convention information there.

Q: Now that e-mail allows us to communicate worldwide, why don't the TV networks ask us to send our opinions on TV programs directly to them instead of relying on the small number of people in the Nielsen ratings? –Troy McElfresh via e-mail.

A: For the same reason you can't volunteer to become one of the Nielsen participants, who are randomly selected from the population at large and, according to research, are representative of the population in terms of age, economic level and other demographics.

Letter writing, however, tends to be done by viewers who either love or hate a show, and their comments don't reflect a clear larger picture.

Advertisers don't simply want to know how many people are watching a show; they want to know who is watching it to determine whether the audience is a likely candidate to consume their products. Still, letters and e-mails are welcome and can make a difference as to the fate of a show.

Send questions of general interest to TV Pipeline, TVData Features Syndicate, Northway Plaza, Queensbury, NY 12804, or e-mail to tvpipeline@tvdata.com. Only questions selected for this column will be answered. Personal replies cannot be sent.

GCC Wildlife Club Raising Funds For Spring Activities

The Wildlife Club of Garrett Community College (GCC) has begun the new year by going to work raising funds for several planned spring semester activities, including a 10-day spring break trip to southeastern Arizona. Led by club advisors Dana Shimrock and Kevin Dodge, this expedition will feature hands-on experience in the study of a diverse habitat. Two ventures are in progress to generate funds to cover the transportation, camping, and food expenses that the trip will entail.

Club members are currently selling raffle tickets for a $100 drawing. Tickets are available at a cost of $1 each, or six for $5, from any Wildlife Club member, and will also be available at GCC's first annual talent show on Monday, March 2, at 7:30 p.m. The name of the raffle winner will be drawn on March 5.

Another Wildlife Club fund-raiser is an ongoing birdhouse sale. The birdhouses are handmade by club members with advanced carpentry skills. The following birdhouses are available: bluebird, $15; tufted titmouse/wren/chickadee, $15; American kestrel/sparrow hawk/Eastern screech owl, $20; and wood duck, $25. Included with each purchase are instructions on general maintenance for the birdhouse. To place an order or for further information interested persons may call Dodge at 301-387-3067, Shimrock at 301-387-3003, or Bobby Selby at 301-387-2191.

The Wildlife Club supports activities of GCC's Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology program. Any interested student at the college may join the club, which supports educational activities, trips, and service projects in the surrounding region and elsewhere. Support from the community is greatly needed and appreciated.

WILDLIFE CLUB MEMBERS at Garrett Community College are working to raise funds to finance their club's upcoming spring break study trip to Arizona. Above, members Sarah Crouse and Bobby Selby display one of the birdhouses made and sold by the club. See story.

GE Recognizes Local Business For Excellence

GE Customer Care, a division of General Electric Appliance's Customer Service, recently presented Ace Appliance Repair in Accident with a Service Excellence award for outstanding consumer service.

Ace Appliance Repair was one of only 650 Customer Care servicers across the country to receive the award.

The GE Customer Care service network consists of approximately 8,000 authorized independent servicers and GE appliance dealers who, in conjunction with GE Factory Service, deliver coast-to-coast service on GE appliances and GE Service Protection Plus service contracts.

Larry Stevens, national service manager for GE Customer Care, commented on the awards: "Our customers expect GE products and services to be the very best."

To ensure the customers' expectations are being met, GE surveys consumers after a service call for a rating on the service. "We monitor everything from telephone etiquette to convenient scheduling and on-time arrival," Stevens said. "It takes much more than just repairing the product correctly to consistently receive high marks."

Ace Appliance Repair and the other recipients of the Service Excellence award maintained nearly perfect satisfaction ratings from their customers for 12 consecutive months.

Items Sought For For Cystic Fibrosis Benefit Auction

Donations are being sought of items that can be auctioned off to raise research money to help find a cure for cystic fibrosis, a respiratory disease that claims the lives of thousands of children and young adults each year. The benefit auction, slated for April with the exact date to be announced next month, is being sponsored by the family of Tiffany Morgan, a Mtn. Lake Park 4-year-old who is living with cystic fibrosis.

Terry and Tammy Morgan, Tiffany's parents, have dedicated themselves to helping raise money for cystic fibrosis research in hopes of finding a cure during Tiffany's lifetime. The young girl depends on breathing treatments and medications to keep her lungs clear. In the fall the Morgans sponsored a raffle that raised $4,000 as a result of the support of the community.

The proceeds from the April auction will go to the Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation, which is rated number one among all nonprofit organizations in its ratio of administrative costs to research revenue by the "Nonprofit Times" newsletter. Over 91 cents of every dollar raised by the foundation goes directly to cystic fibrosis research, which helps enable scientists to continue the momentum of gene therapy trials. Gene therapy treatment is hoped to lead to a cure for the disease within the next five years.

The April benefit auction will be held at Lewis's Used Car Garage on Pysell Crosscut Road. Tiffany Morgan's maternal grandparents, Bonnie and Ed Lewis, are themselves donating several used vehicles and an array of garage equipment to the auction. The Lewises and the Morgans are asking that anyone who has unwanted furniture, household items, toys, working appliances, etc. — any items, no matter how big or small — consider donating them to the auction.

Donated items are being accepted now through March 31. The exact date, time, and list of items that are being auctioned at the April event will be announced in March. Arrangements can be made to pick up donated items in the event they cannot be delivered. For further information on the delivery site, or to arrange for a pick-up, item donors may call the Morgans at 301-334-5187, the Lewises at 301-334-1351, or Jan Beem at 301-334-2392.

NATIONAL SCOUTING MONTH is in full swing, and this photo essay marks some of the accomplishments by local Cub Scout Pack 31 over the past year. Sponsored by the Oakland Elks BPOE #2481, Pack 31 has been active in its meetings at Dennett Road School and in the community. Last fall's Webelos-Rae overnight campout was one of the highlights. Pictured in the photo at above right, left to right in the foreground, Patrick DiGiola, Bryan Teter, Synjun Skeweris, and Evan Lantz, Webelos of local Dens 4 and 7, get ready to race in the team relay at the Frostburg event. Above right, the winners of Pack 31's first Space Derby Race in January display their flying machines and medals. Shown left to right are first-place winner Skeweris, runner-up Nathan Thomas, and third-place finalist Jared Feather, and in the background is cubmaster Bill Thomas. Below left, Dens 1 and 4 plant a tree outside the Oakland Elks lodge. Left to right in the front row are Thomas, Curtis Bowman, Josh Paugh, Eric Shillingburg, and Jereme Hamilton; in the back row are cubmaster Thomas and Elks trustee James Stewart. Not pictured is scout Sean Ashby, who also participated that day. Pack 31 and Troop 22 planted a tree at Dennett Road School as well. Both trees were donated in part by Green Acres Garden Center. At bottom left, Dennett Road School principal Gary Galloway, left, is presented with two flag holders at September's Back to School night by Pack 31, represented by cubmaster Thomas. Scouts are currently hard at work selling Wolfgang Candy to raise funds to finance future activities. The public is invited to cheer the scouts on at the Pinewood Derby, which will be held at the Elks lodge on Saturday, Feb. 21, and to visit the annual Scout Show at the Country Club Mall on Saturday, Feb. 28. The overall theme for the Scout Show is "Scouting Rocks," and Pack 31 will feature its own model rocketry prowess with the theme "Scouting Rockets."

Neubert Invited To Present At State Symposium

The College of Computer, Mathematical, and Physical Sciences of the University of Maryland at College Park has selected Joshua Neubert, a junior at Northern High School, to be one of 12 high school presenters of scientific papers at the 1998 Maryland Junior Science and Humanities Symposium.

The Symposium, to be held at the Holiday Inn in College Park on March 19 and 20, will feature 12 paper presenters and 32 poster presenters. The students, from all parts of the state, submitted proposals to be invited to the event. Five finalists will be selected from among the presenters to attend the national symposium this summer.

Neubert will present a paper titled "Determining Asteroid Orbital Elements," which contains work he accomplished during a summer experience in California investigating asteroid orbits. It also consists of research results he reached as a sophomore in determining possible orbits of asteroids and other orbiting bodies.

Of Neubert's research, a reviewing professor at the University of Maryland said it was a "very solid piece of work."

"It is quite impressive that Josh was able to do all phases of the project, from taking the observations, to making precise measurements, and finally to writing his own computer program to determine actual orbital elements," the professor said. "This is the type of project that is usually given to advanced undergraduates."

Neubert's main research interests are in orbital dynamics, the chaotic behavior of planetary orbits, computer simulations, astrophysics and astronomy in general, and planetary science. He is an honor roll student at Northern and has won numerous awards for his academic and extracurricular activities, including two consecutive county championships in the statewide math competition, sponsored by the University of Maryland.

Neubert is a member of the Planetary Society, the National Space Society, the Astronomical Society of the Pacific, the Maryland Archaeological Society, and astronomy and archaeology clubs in Cumberland.

He resides in Grantsville and is the son of Cathy and John Neubert.

On Dean's List

Among those named was Kristi N. Stemple, daughter of Don and Mary Lou Stemple, Oakland. Kristi is a 1996 graduate of Southern High School.

MAYOR AND TOWN COUNCIL OF LOCH LYNN HEIGHTS, MARYLAND RESOLUTION NO. 1998-1 RESOLUTION TO ANNEX PROPERTY INTO THE TOWN OF LOCH LYNN HEIGHTS, MARYLAND

RECITALS

Garrett County, Maryland, Community Action Committee, inc. (Community Action) is the owner of 8.26 acres of land by virtue of a deed from Henry F. Moomau dated and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland in Liber 685 at folio 870 (the"Land"). This land is adjacent to the town. Community Action has constructed on a portion of the Land a rental housing project consisting of 24 single family dwelling units, a laundry facility, and an accessory office for the project in 6 separate buildings configured in such a manner so that approximately 10 of the units are Townhouses under the terms of the Loch Lynn Zoning Ordinance and approximately 14 of the units are Apartments under the Loch Lynn Heights Zoning Ordinance. The portion of the Land which is appropriated for the multi-family housing project is 95,173 square feet for the project, 46,433 square feet for the Storm Water Management site serving the project and 65,660 square feet making up the roadway on the Land. This construction is complete as of the date of this Resolution. The remainder of the Land is to be divided into lots for either Single Family Detached Dwellings or Twin Dwellings. All roads are to be built to current Town Standards at the expense of Community Action. Community Action has requested that the Land be annexed into the Town of Loch Lynn Heights and has agreed in writing not to seek tax exempt status for such land if annexed into the Town of Loch Lynn Heights. More than 25% of the residents of the property to be annexed have requested annexation. The Mayor and Town Council has agreed to proceed with the process of annexation. Such annexation will require submission to the Town Planning Commission, compliance with the provisions of Article 23A, Section 11 et seq. with regard to the Charter Amendment; compliance with Article 23A, Section 19 with respect to Annexation and compliance with the provisions of the Loch Lynn Zoning Ordinance with respect to the required amendment to the Zoning Map of Loch Lynn Heights. If Annexation is successful all persons residing in the area to be annexed and their property shall be added to the corporate boundaries generally subject to the provisions of the Charter of the Town as the same may from time to time be amended. The Land will be annexed into the Town under the zoning classification of Town Residential. This classification allows Single and Two Family Detached Dwellings as Permitted Uses and Townhouse and Apartment dwellings as Special Exception Uses. In addition the Townhouse and Apartment Dwellings shall be annexed into the Town as a pre-existing special exception uses on pre-existing non conforming lot or lots. The Garrett County Planning and Zoning Office has certified that the above land uses are fully consistent with the plans and policies of the County Comprehensive Plan. This Resolution is introduced for the purpose of proceeding forward with the Annexation and the Amendment to the Zoning Map of Loch Lynn Heights, Maryland. The Charter Amendment is being addressed in a separate resolution.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED AS FOLLOWS:

1. That upon the request of Garrett County, Maryland, Community Action Committee, Inc., the owner of the Land, the Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Loch Lynn Heights propose to annex the land into the corporate limits of the Town.

2. The land to be annexed is described as follows:
Beginning at a corner fence post found at the end of the third line of Military Lot 917, and in the northeasterly line of the property owned now or formerly by Charles J. Martin (Liber 32 at folio 96), and at a point described as a concrete post at the original beginning of Military lots 880 and 919 in the description of the corporate boundaries in the Municipal Charter of Loch Lynn Heights; thence, with part of the said third line and part of the first line of Military Lot 919, and the outline of the limits of Loch Lynn Heights (North 27 degrees and 35 minutes East 1650 feet), a municipal corporation, North 23 degrees East, 450.00 feet to a set 5/8th inch by 36 inch iron rebar and plastic cap marked 126, hereinafter called "iron pin"; thence, leaving said Military lot line, and the outline of said municipal corporation, South 67 degrees East, 800 feet to a set iron pin; thence 23 degrees West 450 feet to an iron pin set in the fence line marking the fourth line of Military lot 917, thence with part of said fourth line, North 67 degrees West, 800 feet to the beginning, containing 8.26 acres, more or less.

3. Said land will be annexed by the Town under the zoning classification of Town Residential. Upon annexation the persons residing on the property to be annexed and their property shall be generally subject to the provisions of the Charter of the Town.

4. There is constructed on a portion of the land consisting of 95,173 square feet at the time of this resolution 24 dwelling units, an office and laundry facilities in 6 separate buildings. Under the Town Residential Zoning classification such use would require a Special Exception. In addition the number of single family attached units would require a variance with respect to density. However, since the construction is complete at the time of the annexation these uses and structures are being brought into the town as a pre-existing non-conforming lot and pre-existing use. Future development of the remainder of the land shall be in accordance with the Town Charter and ordinances.

5. All roads in the property will be constructed by Community Action, at its cost, to current Town standards. After annexation they shall be turned over to the Town and shall thereafter be maintained as Town Streets.

6. Upon annexation, the land shall be a part of the Town. All residents on the land annexed and their property shall be subject to the Charter and ordinances of the Town and shall be entitled to the rights and privileges of citizens of the Town in accordance with the provisions of the Town Charter.

7. That the Mayor shall cause to be published a public notice of this resolution in a newspaper of general circulation in the Town of Loch Lynn Heights and in the area proposed to be annexed not less than 4 times, at weekly intervals. This public notice shall briefly and accurately describe the proposed annexation and the conditions circumstances applicable. The publication of this Resolution and a map of the area to be annexed shall be sufficient for such purpose.

8. This public notice shall specify Monday, March 30, 1998 at 7:00 PM as the date and time and the Town Hall of Loch Lynn Heights located at 211 Bonnie Boulevard, Loch Lynn Heights, Maryland, as the place of a public hearing on the annexation of the land by the Town. This date is not less than 15 days after the date of the last publication described above.

9. Immediately upon the first publication of the public notice the Mayor shall cause a copy of the public notice to be sent to the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County, Maryland, to The Garrett County Planning and Zoning Office, to the Tri-County Council for Western Maryland, and to the Maryland Office of Planning.

10. The Mayor shall also cause to be prepared an amended zoning map for the Town which includes the annexed property shown under the classification of Town Residential.

11. The Mayor shall submit a copy of this Resolution and the related Charter Amendment Resolution to the Loch Lynn Planning Commission with a request that The Planning Commission review it and provide its comments to the Mayor and Town Council within 30 days.

12. The effective date of the annexation shall be in accordance with the provisions of Article 23A, Section 19 of the Annotated Code of Maryland.

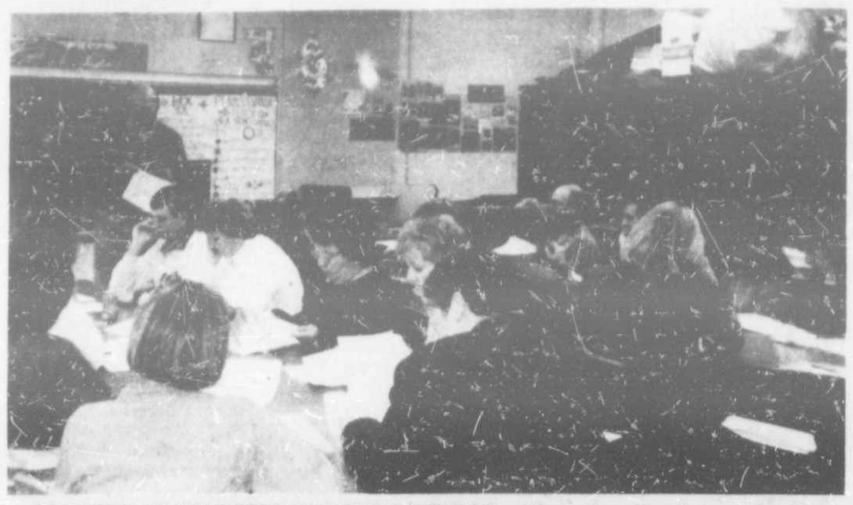
Date Set For Town Elections In Accident

The town of Accident will hold its municipal election on Tuesday, March 3, to name two council members. The polls will be open from 4 to 8 p.m. at Town Hall in the Accident municipal building.

The nominees for the council seats are Richard Carlson and Rev. Roland "Randy" Nairn, who were selected during the town convention earlier this month.

The town holds an open registration, and eligible residents may register on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. at Town Hall.

Absentee ballots are available for voters who are unable to go to the polls on election day because of illness, disability, or military duty, or because of absence required by business, travel, or school. To obtain an absentee ballot persons may contact Ruth Ann Hahn at 301-746-6346 on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.



GRANTSVILLE TEACHERS ARE THE STUDENTS - When Gary Heath from the Maryland State Department of Education visited Grantsville Elementary School recently, it was to provide staff development training on the Maryland School Performance Assessment Program. Heath, the sectional chief for science, mathematics, and environmental education, focused on MSPAP outcomes in all subject areas and how to translate them into aquatic resource activities. In these annual tests, given in grades 3, 5, and 8, students are required to apply knowledge of reading, writing, language usage, mathematics, science, and social studies. They must also be able to apply knowledge across subject areas and demonstrate an understanding of social studies concepts, an ability to solve multi-step math problems, and conduct science investigations. Principal Dale Garlitz said he was pleased with the what was accomplished in the training. "Mr. Heath certainly met his stated objective for the day. Educational opportunities such as this assist teachers in developing long and short term teaching strategies which help our students meet success," he stated.

Garrett Featured In Internationally Known Magazines

Articles about Garrett County have recently appeared in three nationally known magazines: Fortune, Washingtonian, and National Geographic. Two articles — those in the Washingtonian and Fortune — focus on the real estate attributes of the county, while the National Geographic story is about the National Road.

Both real estate articles accentuate the affordability of Garrett County vacation residences, with the story in the Washingtonian referring to the county as an "outdoor paradise" and Fortune likening it to Aspen, Colorado.

The National Road story in National Geographic, written by William R. Newcott, recounts the history of U.S. Route 40, the country's first interstate roadway. One of the numerous photographs by Melissa Farlow is of three little girls playing in the Casselman River at the site of the historic Casselman Bridge. The girls apparently just happened to be wading in their pink dresses at the time Ms. Farlow stopped by.

At the county staff meeting Tuesday with the Garrett County Commissioners, Diane Wolfe of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce informed the elected officials of the recent publications and noted that articles such as these in large national magazines are "an excellent source of free publicity."

"OH, GOOD GRIEF!" is a saying made famous by Charles Shultz, creator of the famous comic strip "Peanuts" and writer of the play, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," which will be presented by the Ecumenical Youth Ministry of Oakland, beginning this Friday evening, Feb. 28, at St. Peter's Catholic Church Parish Hall in Oakland. In the above photo, Charlie Brown, played by Andrew Crowe (third from right), is exasperated as he attempts to get his baseball team psyched up to play a game, but is all the while pummeled with a variety of complaints and suggestions from his teammates that render his efforts futile. Other cast members in the photo, from left, are Leah Broderick, who plays Peppermint Patty; Matt Walthall as Snoopy; Karlo Gesner in the role of Linus; Sara Sincell, who portrays Lucy; and Eric Archer, in the role of child piano virtuoso Schroeder. The cast includes over 30 area young people, representing a number of churches, plus a live orchestra of about a dozen musicians, now known as the Red Barons. EYM/play director Lynn Broderick described ticket sales as "brisk" for all five performances. See other photos in this section for ticket information and schedule of performances.

Garrett Technology Futures Forum: Peering Into High-Tech's Crystal Ball

The Garrett Technology Futures Forum was held recently at Garrett Community College (GCC). Attended by a number of community leaders representing a wide variety of fields, the forum addressed the challenge of how best to bring Garrett County into the "Information Technology Age." As they discussed the current state of technological development in Garrett County, the participants also labored to lay a foundation of local strategies that will help carry local students and workers into a technologically modern workplace.

Cooperative efforts by members of the business and educational community illustrate some of the county's technological advancements. For example, Willie Lantz, GCC Agriculture Management instructor, summarized recent groundbreaking strides in the field of online agriculture. Agriculture classes from the University of Maryland are being taught through the use of video compressed technology, Lantz said, and market prices for beans, corn, and hogs are available from The Chicago Board of Trade via the Internet as well.

According to Lantz, local farmers with computer access and a membership in the Garrett Rural Information Cooperative (GRIC) can also take advantage of marketing and educational information/services available online. Recently, a group of 40 farmers was able participate in a four-hour program transmission from Louisiana's Southern University. The professor was away from his home for a total of five hours on a Saturday morning. Time and expense would have been prohibitive, and the class may not have been possible had he been required to travel to Garrett County.

Debbie Bishop, director of The Accuracy Center (TAC), presented information on the new Medical Language Specialist (MLS) program at GCC. Gradu-

Guidelines For Enrollment In PreK Changed

The guidelines for enrollment in the prekindergarten program in the Garrett County school system will change in fall 1998. The state has recently issued regulations on student eligibility for the Extended Elementary Education Program (EEEP).

Dr. Brenda McCartney, director of curriculum and instruction, PK—8, explained that the practice of accepting 4-year-olds on a first-come-first-serve basis, currently in effect, will end with implementation of the new regulations.

"According to the statewide guidelines and local implementation procedures, students will be automatically eligible to participate in the program if they speak limited English, are homeless, or have previously enrolled in Head Start," she said.

Class size will be limited to 20 students, and if there are vacancies in the class after admitting those who are automatically eligible, other students will be considered. Priority consider-

Preliminary School Budget Outlined At Public Meeting

A raise of two percent for staff, upgrade of the technical support systems, and capital improvements top the list of goals spotlighted by Dr. Wendell Teets as the budget for the Garrett County Board of Education was presented to the public last Thursday evening by the superintendent and Al Coviello, assistant superintendent.

This initial draft of the FY99 expenses was introduced several months earlier this year that it has been in previous years. Both Dr. Teets and Coviello acknowledged that the actual figures are fluid at this time and will remain that way until the state and federal portions of the funding are confirmed.

A bottom line of the initial budget, which calls for an increase of about three percent over last year's numbers, was noted as almost $30 million.

Explaining his priorities for funding, Dr. Teets said the pay increase for school board employees is high on his list. "This is the best staff I've come across," he said. He noted that the staff salaries are below those of many counterparts across the state and that the staff members deserve the increase in pay.

The upgrade in technical systems tucked into the budget figures would impact administrative functions such as finance, report cards, and scheduling as well as provide enhanced teaching environments at each school facility, Dr. Teets explained.

The capital improvements outlined by the superintendent included work to be done at both Northern and Southern high schools. Projects would include gym renovations, an auxiliary gym, stage renovations, and upgrades in lobbies.

Dr. Teets suggested that money could be saved and the work completed by using a lease purchase agreement which would allow the full cost to be paid up front and repayment made over a number of years. "This way we can do the project all at once and not spread it over time. The strategy is to get things done more quickly and maybe beat inflation," he said.

The lease purchase contract is a method used previously by Dr. Teets for school projects in another school district. "Learning from past experience, it is more cost effective," he

TALKING TECHNOLOGY - Those participants in the Garrett Technology Futures Forum held recently at Garrett Community College (GCC) were among the many members representing the fields of education, government services, and business who volunteered their time and ideas for the day-long event. Shown left to right are Marvin Gordon of Business Management Systems Inc., Joan Crawford (background) GCC's public relations director, Sandy Major of the Small Business Development Center, and Debbie Bishop of The Accuracy Center and the Medical Language Specialist program. The Technology Futures Forum was organized by Susan Athey-Oxford and Lucia Ayala, and was sponsored by the Garrett County Local Management Board in conjunction with School-to-Work Partnerships. Highway Location Not Eligible For Referendum Vote

Citizens of Garrett County will not be permitted to vote on whether or not to veto the location of an interstate highway, according to the opinion of the Attorney General of Maryland. Senator John Hafer and Delegate George Edwards requested advice on this matter from the state office and received a reply earlier this month from Assistant Attorney General Robert A. Zarnoch.

The elected officials asked if it would be constitutional for the General Assembly to enact legislation that would allow the voters of Garrett County to veto the location of an interstate highway that would be funded by federal and state monies.

"In my view," Zarnoch wrote, "such legislation would constitute an unconstitutional delegation of legislative power."

Zarnoch stated that the Maryland General Assembly is not allowed to make the effectiveness of a public general law contingent on either a statewide or local vote, nor may legislation put to referendum a "process" governed by public general law.

"State and local involvement in federal highway programs is clearly governed by public general law," he stated. Legislation giving county voters a veto over the location of an interstate highway would have to amend public general law to diminish the power of state officials and their control over state funding, he wrote.

"Such proposed legislation would itself be a public general law," Zarnoch stated. "And because it would mandate to local referendum actions of state officials under public general law, and subject a process regulated by public general law to such a referendum, it is my opinion that the proposed legislation would be unconstitutional as an impermissible delegation of legislative power to the voters."

Grant Awarded To DSS, Highview Coming Down, Simon Pearce Visits

County staff leaders give reports

Numerous announcements and project updates were heard by the Garrett County Commissioners this week at the regular monthly staff meeting. Topics discussed included grant monies given to the local office of the Department of Social Services, the demolition of the Highview apartment complex, an update on water/sewer public meetings, and changes in home health care procedures.

Represented at the meeting were the following offices: county treasurer, recycling and solid waste management, emergency management, general services, social services, the Ruth Enlow Library, economic development, planning and zoning, chamber of commerce, sanitary commission, board of education, cooperative extension service, environmental health, the health department, and the Community Action Committee Inc.

Social Services

Henry Brown, director of the local Department of Social Services, announced that his office has received a grant award of $200,000 from the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) that will be used to help local individuals obtain job training.

"We were very happy about this award," Brown said. "Several people worked hard to get it."

He explained that his staff applied for the money in October and had since then met with several key individuals to further the county's cause. The total amount available to all applying was $500,000.

"To get $200,000 of a possible $500,000 is really very good," Brown said. He reportedly attributed the award partly to the county's impressive drop in the welfare roll over the past few years. He said he will be working with James Hinebaugh, director of economic development, to better distribute the money for job training projects.

Brown also announced that the Department of Human Resources has put in place a new policy to gain ownership of all "aged-out" state cars. These vehicles are then to be given to Maryland counties that have no public transportation, which includes Garrett. The social services department will then be able to sell the cars wholesale to persons who are searching for work.

"Lack of transportation is an obstacle for a lot of people in this county who are trying hard to find a job," he said. "This will bring us further to our goal of eliminating the problem of having no public transportation."

Community Action

Duane Yoder, director of the Garret County Community Action Committee Inc. (GCCAC), announced that the Highview apartment complex will be torn down in the near future to make way for the new 60-unit housing development. Yoder said one apartment building is still occupied by renters, but they will be relocated shortly.

Construction of the new complex is to begin in April, Yoder said. The development will offer housing to low income individuals. It will feature a family support center and child care facilities, he said.

Yoder reported that GCCAC's homeownership program is doing well, with 20 to 30 families enrolled each month in the homeownership classes. He said the money available for down-payment assistance is gone for this part of the year, but more funds are expected to come in May.

Annual Meeting Of GC Officials And GPU Today

An annual meeting of GPU officials (owners of Deep Creek Lake) and the elected officials of Garrett County will take place today in Annapolis. The county commissioners, Delegate George Edwards, and Senator John Hafer are to be at the session, which will also include representatives of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

In an interview this morning, Edwards explained that GPU has hosted this meeting each year for three years with the purpose of keeping the officials and DNR up to date on the company's operations. He said a consultant was hired by GPU last year with the task of studying the company's production facilities. His study results are not due until June or July, Edwards said.

"I know that GPU is planning to change its operations somewhat, but to what extent that will affect Deep Creek is really not known at this point," the delegate said. "We will obviously know more after today's meeting."

Woman Seriously Injured As Truck Collides With Vehicle

A woman was seriously injured Monday morning in Grantsville when her car was struck by an oncoming truck.

Debra M. Weimer, 43, Frostburg, Garrett County, was southbound on Chestnut Ridge Road near Route 40, around 8:20 a.m. when the accident occurred, according to a report filed by Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry.

William A. Simons, 40, Frostburg, was driving a two axle, 7,000 pound, Sears truck, north on Chestnut Ridge Road when he allegedly crossed the double, center line and impacted the right front of the Weimer vehicle.

Both Weimer and a 12-year-old passenger were transported by Northern Rescue Squad to Sacred Heart Hospital. The child was treated and later released. Weimer was tranferred to University of Maryland Hospital in Baltimore where she is reportedly in serious condition.

The Grantsville VFD also assisted at the scene of the accident.

A one-vehicle accident on I-68 last Wednesday resulted in injuries to the driver that required hospital treatment.

Police reported that at 10:50 p.m. Shirley M. Darraugh, 36, Silver Spring, was eastbound on I-68 east of Old Frostburg Road, when

D. Martin Files For Re-Election To Clerk Seat

David K. Martin, clerk of Garrett County Circuit Court, has filed for re-election to the office for a third term.

Martin has worked in the clerk's office since 1977, serving under former clerks of the court Richard Davis and Clifford DeWitt. Then Circuit Judge Fred Thayer appointed Martin to replace the retiring DeWitt in July 1990, and the Crellin native was subsequently elected to a full term in November of that year.

Martin is a member of the Maryland Court Clerks Association and the Mid-Atlantic Association of Court Management. He has presided over numerous computer upgrades of the office, but said he prides himself on making sure that people, and not technology, come first.

"The public has put its trust in me to make sure that these records and services are properly maintained," the candidate said. "In addition to the formal responsibilities of the office, I think it's my job to make sure that the new technology makes us more efficient, not more complicated, to deal with. And I think I've been able to do that over the past eight years."

Martin is a member of Crellin Assembly of God Church and has served for the past 11 years as assistant basketball coach at Garrett Community College. He resides on Broadford Road with his wife Fran and their son Ryan.

Bloodmobile To Visit March 2

The American Red Cross bloodmobile will visit Grantsville next Monday, March 2. Donors will be welcomed at the Grantsville fire hall from 12:30 to 6:30 p.m. that day. A quota of 85 pints has been set for the visit.

To donate blood, persons must be at least 17 years of age, weigh at least 105 pounds, and be in generally good health.

According to the Red Cross, someone is in need of blood in the country every two seconds. One unit of blood separated into its components can benefit as many as four people.

Persons desiring more information about donating blood may call the ARC at 1-800-732-0383.

Commission For Women Reps In Washington Today

The Garrett County Commission for Women (GCCW) is being represented today in Washington, D.C., at a White House news briefing on the status of legislation affecting women and family issues. The local commission is joining other representatives of women's organizations for the second annual luncheon and briefing sponsored by the National Association of Commissions for Women.

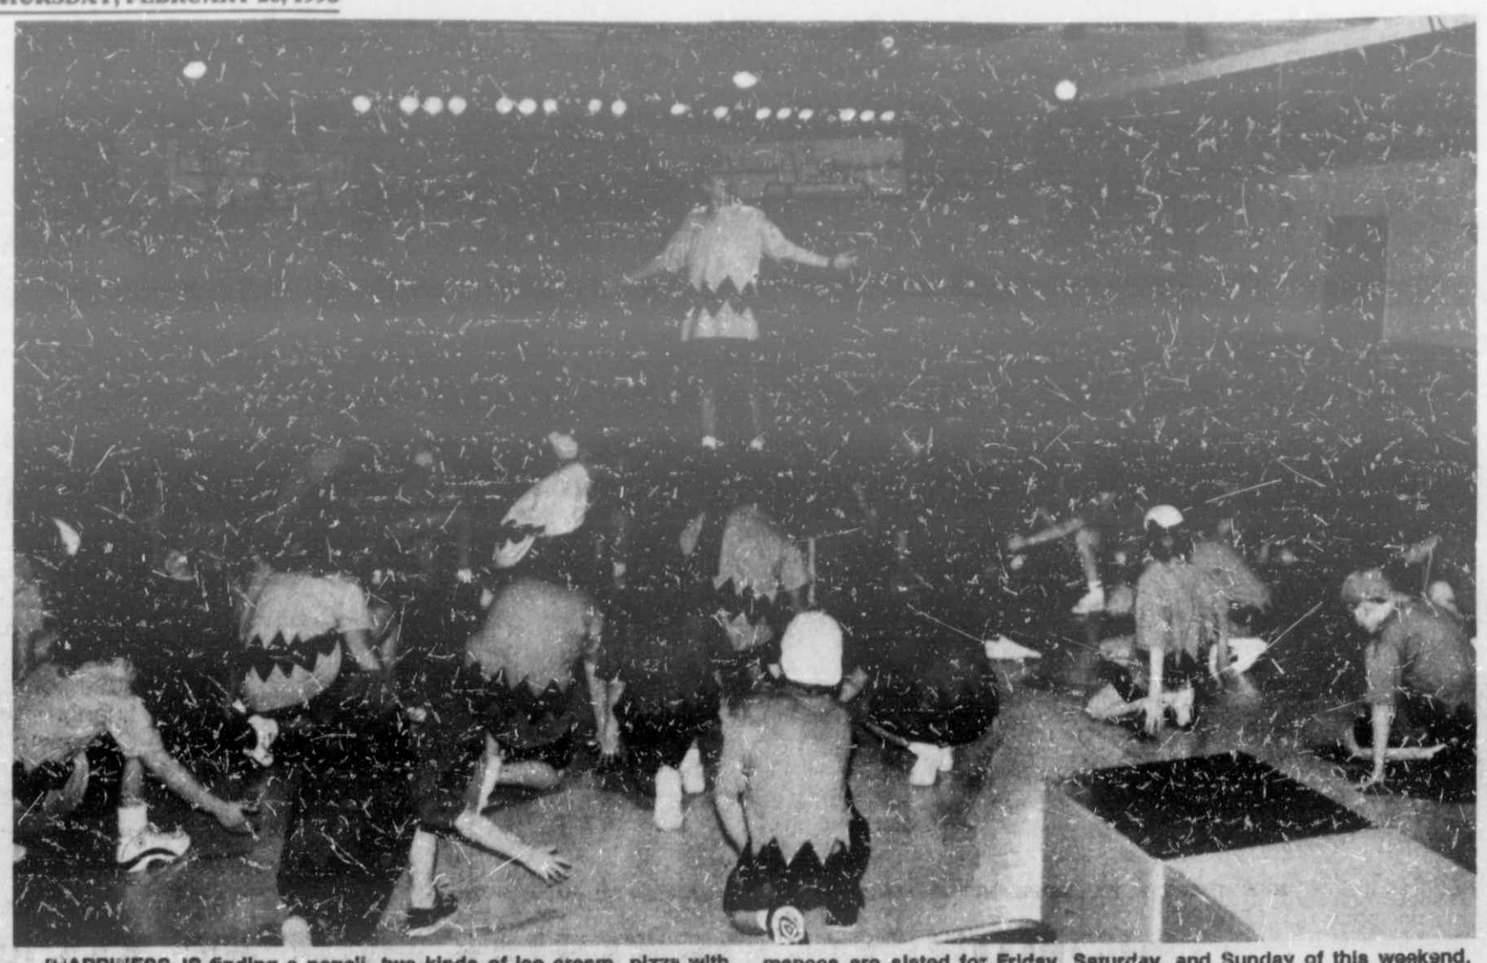
According to a commission spokesperson, topics of high priority include family violence issues, women's and children's health care, child care, and pay equity.

"The local commission is proactive when it comes to keeping up to date on legislative activity and in coordinating projects that impact women and families," the spokesperson said.

The GCCW's accomplishments and outreach efforts over the past several years include the establishment of Garrett County's first designated domestic violence shelter and the Garrett County Women's Hall of Fame. Public education and awareness projects include the emergency notification cards now distributed by local police to victims of domestic violence, the recognition of Child Abuse Prevention Month with a blue ribbon campaign, networking with "Garrett's Promise: Alliance for Youth," and serving as a national partner on the National Pay Equity Committee.

The spokesperson stated that the outreach projects provided by the appointed women of the GCCW are deemed by members as "important to the advancement and empowerment of women."

She said the GCCW welcomes ideas from the public concerning project development and volunteer assistance. Interested persons may write to the commission at P.O. Box 623, Oakland, MD 21550.



"HAPPINESS IS finding a pencil, two kinds of ice cream, pizza with sausage, telling the time," and many other things, according to the the finale number of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," staged in the above photo by the members of Oakland's Ecumenical Youth Ministry. The famous Shultz musical will open Friday evening at St. Peter's Catholic Church Parish Hall, located at the corner of Oak and Fourth streets in Oakland. In the photo below left, Charlie Brown, played by Andrew Crowe, receives "professional" psychological advice (for a nickel) from his friend and favorite fuss budget Lucy, portrayed by Sara Sincell. Below right, Snoopy (played by Matt Walthall) emotes to the nth degree while seated atop his doghouse, as he pretends to be the World War I flying ace in hot pursuit of the Red Baron. Performances are slated for Friday, Saturday, and Sunday of this weekend, Feb. 28-March 2, and Friday and Saturday next week, March 6 and 7, all beginning at 8 p.m. Tickets, which cost $5 each, are "moving quickly," according to director Lynn Broderick, and can be purchased from cast members or at St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Second Street, Oakland, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Thursday. There will also be a performance at Solomons Island on Sunday, March 15. The members of the EYM, who represent many area churches, have performed in front of over 10,000 people in the past three years, presenting choral programs and the musicals "Godspell" and "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" to audiences in Garrett County, West Virginia, and various other parts of Maryland.

Oakland Lions Club Establishes Glotfelty Award

The legacy of Roger P. Glotfelty, late chairman of the Garrett County Commissioners, has been honored by the creation of the Roger P. Glotfelty Community Service Award. The award was unveiled at a recent meeting of the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club, of which Glotfelty was an active member for many years until his death this winter.

The award, consisting of a $100 savings bond and a plaque, honors the example set by Glotfelty in service to his community. "The purpose of this award," said a Lions Club spokersperson, "is to help build a sense of community spirit by encouraging young people to become actively involved in making their community a better place to live. The award will annually recognize an outstanding student at Southern High School for his or her achievements in volunteer services to our communities."

The Roger P. Glotfelty Community Service Award was developed by past Lions Club president David Beard and current secretary Lowell Leitzel. Jay Batson, current president of the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club, said that the annual award will be geared to the youth in the community, and is open to all enrolled students in Southern Garrett High School in grades 9 through 12.

Interested students are encouraged to contact their guidance counselor for full details including the criteria upon which they will be judged. Selection will be made by the SHS faculty council members, along with the Garrett County Board of Education Service Learning coordinator.

Benefit Slated For Couple To Recover Fire-Related Losses

A benefit dance is planned to raise funds to help a newly married Garrett County couple recover from loss of person property in a house fire.

Married on Feb. 14, Timothy Savage Jr. and Melissa Weimer Savage were contacted by family members while on their honeymoon and informed that their house in Garrett County had been destroyed by fire along with all contents, including wedding gifts.

Friends have organized the benefit dance to be held at the Finzel fire hall Friday, Feb. 27, 8:30—11:30 p.m. The DJ will be Tom Garlitz and the evening will include 50/50 drawings and an auction.

Bloodmobile Nets 161 Units During Oakland Visit

Rain, flu, and colds put a slight damper on the turnout at last Friday's visit of the Red Cross bloodmobile to the Oakland Armory, but 168 people still responded to the visit, and 161 productive units were collected.

Four new donors came to help the Red Cross end current blood supply shortages. They were: Billy Conrad of Aurora, W.Va, Jason Bale of Swanton, and Darlene Jackson and William Slabaugh, both of Oakland.

Milestones were reached by several donors. Those donating for the eighth time to reach the one-gallon mark were: Elizabeth Gibbons and Tilden Wilt of Oakland, and Rodney Glotfelty and Bob Sharp of Accident. William R. Berry, Stuart Hamill, and Jacki L. Hank, Oakland, and Don Forrester of Mountain Lake Park reached the two-gallon mark. The three-gallon mark was reached by Milt Kinsinger and Rosie Yoder of Oakland. Joyce Ridder of Oakland and Wayne Williams of Terra Alta, W.Va., reached the four-gallon level. Mike Saunders of Mountain Lake Park hit the five-gallon mark, and James Porter of Oakland reached the nine-gallon milestone by donating for the 72nd time.

The canteen was supported by donations from the Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Cumberland and Junior Ferguson, who once again brought his home-made cookies. "Junior has been so supportive of what we are trying to accomplish here. He definitely adds that personal touch to the canteen that we all look forward to after donating," stated Elizabeth Huxford, bloodmobile coordinator. "We even have donors asking for his cookies when they come in. I think he's going to need help if we keep this up!"

Those volunteering their time to make the bloodmobile possible were: Rosalie Baker and Artie Dixon, greeters; Don Forrester, Elizabeth Huxford, and Barb Sweitzer, registration; Anne Forrester, Russ McConnell, Joyce Ridder, and Jonathan Wildesen, walkers; and Junior Ferguson, Jean McConnell, and Mary Rodeheaver, canteen.

The next Garrett County bloodmobile visit will be at the Grantsville fire hall on Monday, March 2, from 12:30 to 6:30 p.m. To be eligible to give blood, individuals must be at least 17 years of age, weigh at least 105 pounds, and be in generally good health. Normally, individuals can give blood every 56 days.

Local residents and patients are among those served through the American Red Cross Blood Services, Johnstown Region. The Johnstown Region directly serves hospitals, patients, and donors in a 63-county area in Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia, and also supports blood needs experienced by patients elsewhere in hospitals served through Red Cross Blood Services.

To further ease the donation process and help maintain accurate donation records, the Red Cross encourages individuals to bring their Red Cross donor card, driver's license, or other positive identification with them when they give blood. Individuals with specific questions should contact the Red Cross toll free at 1-800-54BLOOD.

Two Arrested; School Damage Case Closed

The arrests of two men Monday conclude a case of destruction of school property that has been under investigation since early January.

Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, reported the arrests of Jerry E. Weimer, 20, and Timothy R. Savage Jr., 20, both of Frostburg, Garrett County, in connection with an incident that occurred Jan. 3. at Northern High and Accident Elementary schools.

Police stated that the two suspects, accompanied by a juvenile, drove a white Chevrolet truck and a blue-silver Ford truck onto and across the property of both schools, resulting in property damage of approximately $2,100.

Both men were charged with two counts of malicious destruction of property valued in excess of $300. They have been released on their own recognizance. The juvenile involved was arrested previously. The case is closed.

Citizens Reminded Of Legislative Meeting Saturday

Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Hafer this week issued a reminder to all Garrett County citizens that they will hold a mid-session information meeting on Saturday, Feb. 28, in the Garrett Community College auditorium. The meeting will begin at 10 a.m.

Numerous issues involving Garrett County will be reviewed, including bills concerning farming, tax cuts, funds for the libraries and the Garrett County Historical Society, and others.

One significant achievement thus far is Edwards's success in effecting change in the amusement tax procedure. House Bill 147 is today on "third reader" in the House, which means it will most likely be passed in the House and move on to the Senate.

The bill addresses the issue of "double taxation," although this term is not completely accurate in describing the problem. Currently, persons who rent out equipment — such as skis, boats, snowmobiles, etc. — pay for the rental and pay an amusement tax. State tax is then added to the total of those two costs. Edwards has maintained that this is not proper; that it is in essence taxing the customer twice. HB 147 will separate the amusement fee out and the rental price will be the only amount to be taxed.

Another significant development is Edwards's recent appointment to the state's Mass Transit Advisory Panel. The delegate said he is working to keep the legislators mindful of rural counties where mass transit is not available.

"When you buy one gallon of gasoline in Garrett County, about 51% of that tax actually goes to our own roads and bridges. The rest goes to mass transit costs," Edwards said. "It's important for everyone down here to keep that in mind."

At least three other Edwards bills have been passed in the House, and these will be discussed at Saturday's meeting. All interested persons are urged to attend.

School Budget Meeting To Be Held Tonight

The Garrett County Board of Education will hold a special budget work session tonight beginning at 6 p.m. in the board room of the Oakland office.

Tonight's work session is open to the public.

Tichnell Joins Race For County Commissioner

Garrett County native Larry Tichnell has announced his candidacy for the office of Garrett County Commissioner from his family farm in Kelso Gap. If elected, he would serve as the District 1 representative in county government.

Tichnell, a Republican, cited educational opportunities, new jobs with meaningful benefits, improved county road maintenance, public safety, and increased opportunities for youth as primary issues for public consideration in his campaign.

In describing himself as a "hands-on person," Tichnell emphasized his willingness to discuss issues affecting the county with as many people as possible, referring to the county government as "an extension of the people." He went on to say that "I may not be knowledgeable about all aspects of county government, but I'm willing to learn. The way to do that is to talk to people, to listen to them, and to be available."

Characterizing himself as a fiscal conservative, Tichnell stated that he wants "to see the best and highest return on every tax dollar the county spends. That's the way I've been all my life, and that's the way I've operated my family farm since I graduated from high school," he said.

Tichnell promised to talk with as many people as possible during his campaign, commenting that "if the people don't come to me [then] I'm going to go to the people, because that's the only way I can represent the best interests of everyone concerned."

In addition to operating his 500-acre family farm south of Loch Lynn in partnership with his son, Tichnell has been affiliated with the Mountaineer Log & Siding Company in McHenry as an independent home sales representative and construction consultant since 1985.

While noting the value of Deep Creek Lake and the related tourism industry to the economic development of the county, Tichnell commented, "I like the country, too, and I want to preserve that; at heart, I'm a farm boy."

A graduate of Southern High School, Tichnell is an active member and trustee at White United Methodist Church. He and his wife Janet have raised three children in Garrett County, and the family circle also includes a foster child. The Tichnells have four grandchildren, two in Garrett County and two in Idaho.

Tichnell also emphasized his concern for activities involving children and young people. "I've been involved with 4-H and Little League for over 30 years," he stated. "I will continue to help in any way I can to involve more children in sports, 4-H, VICA (Vocational and Industrial Clubs of America) programs in the schools, and other worthwhile activities for the young. Our youth are the county's future."

Tichnell has served as superintendent of 4-H and the FFA tractor's operator contest at the Garrett County Fair for more than 10 years and is active with his church's youth programs. Regarding education, he noted that educational opportunities and skill development through technical and trade programs are essential in preparing young people for local employment.

"I will listen to people," Tichnell concluded. "I'll talk to county workers and taxpayers to see how to save tax dollars. I'll ask questions on issues I don't know about. In the end, if elected, I'll take full responsibility. In local government, the buck stops with the three county commissioners," he said.

Tichnell's daughter-in-law, Lori Tichnell, will serve as the campaign treasurer.

Where's the Truth?...

We all remember the O.J. Simpson trial, the outcome of which shocked most of the country. Before the trial began, not one in 100 Americans thought that O.J. would ultimately walk out of that courtroom a free man. But the strategy of Simpson's high-powered, high-paid defense team was masterful: vilify the opposition. Make the investigators look like a bunch of incompetents, and wherever possible, utilize the race card, which, of course, was made much easier thanks to Mark Furman's bigotry. It worked like a charm. The truth — the truth — was lost in the shuffle and really became a non-issue.

We can't help but note some striking similarities in the present controversy swirling around our president, Bill Clinton, who in recent weeks has surrounded himself with his own defense team that appears to be employing exactly the same strategy: vilify the opposition; take the focus away from the "defendant"; bury what may well be the truth in a slurry of allegations and name-calling directed toward the investigators. Now that our next invasion of Iraq has been placed on hold, note that the attacks on Kenneth Starr, just in the past few days, have escalated to their greatest level to date.

Another more subtle tactic is to absolutely flood the media and every television network with information about the case so that the majority of the public finally screams, "Enough is enough! I'm sick of hearing about it, I don't even want to turn on the news. Let's just forget it. There are far more important things in the world than the president's sexual escapades that need our attention."

The truth of the matter may never come out, just as with the Simpson case. However, there are at least three people who know the truth in the Simpson case, two of whom are dead; and there are at least two people — Monica Lewinsky and Bill Clinton — who know the truth in their case. They will have to live with it, and perhaps eventually try to explain it all to a much higher power than the judges, courts, and senate panels of this world, from which the truth simply cannot be hidden.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to the letter from Joe Carr of Friendsville published in the February 19 issue. It seems to me Mr. Carr should spend more time counting his blessings for living in such a decent county instead of complaining and blaming West Virginia residents for his so-called misery.

I grew up in Garrett County, my family lives in Garrett County, and yes, I worked at Bausch & Lomb while living in Maryland and continued there after I moved to West Virginia. Mr. Carr, have you looked at the number of cars licensed for West Virginia sitting at Garrett County businesses' parking lots? Where do you think a big portion of county business comes from? Yes, I support my own county, and yes, I'd like to see it thrive; however, I, like most West Virginia residents, shop and work for convenience. Do you realize that it is only a 20-minute drive to Oakland, yet it takes 45 minutes to get to Kingwood or 90 minutes to Morgantown? I personally feel fortunate to have a choice of where I work or shop. I am sure if you wanted to wander into our county, accept a job or spend some of your hard-earned money, we would not mind. So, why help West Virginia? Well, Mr. Carr, it seems West Virginia helps Maryland out quite a bit. You should be proud to live in a community that has so much to offer, but why begrudge someone of opportunity because of the place they choose to live?

To the Editor:

Mr. Joe Carr wrote last week in support of a north-south four-lane highway for Garrett County.

He also wrote, "Speaking of roads, we definitely need ours upgraded . . . We have roads not wide enough for two vehicles, roads not maintained by county or state . . . A lot of roads are still gravel or dirt. We have county and state maintained roads with improper elevation of roads and berms which let water run out . . . Too many of our roads have utility poles and guardrails right on the edge of the road."

Mr. Carr is correct in his assessment of our roads, but asking for another freeway at the same time is like wanting to have your cake and eat it also.

As a nation, we are faced with massive steadily decaying infrastructure for which little money for improvements is available (Source: Road to Ruin; Taxpayers for Common $ense). Indeed, Garrett County has already been forced to use wood to repair an old bridge, because conventional material was unthinkably unaffordable. The inescapable fact is, we already have far more infrastructure than we can afford to properly maintain.

If miles of roadway per capita relate to prosperity, Garrett should be one of the richest counties in the state! Instead, we shell out millions for local roads, but much remains to be desired, as Mr. Carr observed.

In short, infrastructure maintenance always competes with new construction for funding. When you provide for either one, the other suffers. Economically, there's absolutely no getting around this.

Our existing roads are incomplete, (Ramble on down Rock Lodge Road.) They will only deteriorate further if a four-lane dream-way hits us up for $400 million.

To the Editor:

Arthritis commonly is thought of as a disease of the elderly, but 285,000 American children experience the daily pain and limitations of arthritis. During the week of March 2-8, the Arthritis Foundation is focusing its efforts to inform people about childhood arthritis. This year's theme is "Helping Children with Arthritis Achieve Their Dreams."

Much like arthritis in adults, childhood arthritis is painful, limits activity and can sometimes be disabling. But children also face unique challenges. Growth may be affected by the disease process or the medication that is necessary. Activity with other children may be limited because of fatigue or physical limitations. Emotional stress is greater during an already difficult stage of life. Plus, the entire family unit is affected as plans may have to change at the last minute because of an arthritis flare-up, medical expenses provide increased financial burdens, sibling rivalry is enhanced or family stress is increased.

Fortunately, the Arthritis Foundation provides help and hope to families coping with childhood arthritis. Through the Foundation's research program, greater knowledge about the disease is being acquired and better treatments are being developed. Also, information, support and services that can make life with arthritis easier and less painful are available through the Arthritis Foundation.

The Arthritis Foundation observes its 50th anniversary this year, recognizing inspirational children and adults with a nationwide search for Heroes Overcoming Arthritis. These 50 heroes are individuals with arthritis who lead lives of courage and inspiration despite their medical condition. Many may be children and young adults. They not only manage their disease, but overcome it by not allowing it to stop them from being active. Heroes may also include people who may not have arthritis but who have significantly contributed to the fight against it.

An entry form for the Heroes Search can be obtained by calling the Arthritis Foundation. The deadline for entries is March 23. I encourage everyone in Maryland with arthritis, or who knows someone with arthritis, to call the Arthritis Foundation at 301-663-0303 or 1-800-750-9078 for information and services that can make a difference.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

Our family has subscribed to The Republican for over 30 years, and during this time, we have often noticed a discrepancy between the text of obituaries published in your newspaper and others in the region, most notably the Cumberland Times-News. It seemed a little odd to us, but we attributed these discrepancies to the wishes of the families.

However, our mother, Naomi Kuhnle, recently passed away, and we know the exact text of the obituaries that were sent to both newspapers, as we were instrumental in writing them. The Cumberland Times-News published the obituary exactly as written; however, your staff in its infinite wisdom chose to attack the obituary which was sent to them with liberal use of a blue pencil, and we are unable to understand why this was done. There was certainly nothing in poor taste in the obituary as submitted, and while we can understand omitting such details as the exact times for visitation when the services have already passed, we cannot understand why you chose to eliminate the name of her one beloved grandson. We did notice that the same blue pencil was not applied to the obituaries of your family and friends.

Frankly, we would much prefer to pay a small sum in order to be able to have the details of her life as written be published, rather than have you edit them freely and then publish what you have allowed to remain as a public service. We now wonder what transpired in the minds of all the other families whose obituaries were edited in much the same way.

Sincerely,
Judith Ann Kuhnle
Jeanne Stuart Nichols

Dear Ms. Kuhnle and Ms. Nichols:

The "discrepancy" that you describe has everything to do with the fact that the Cumberland Times-News charges for the publishing of obituaries and we do not. Since the Times-News charges by the inch, they are thrilled to publish entire life stories of the deceased and they will certainly not edit anything out of what is submitted.

We have elected to not

THE DAY AFTER ASH WEDNESDAY

Last night at church we began the "I Corinthians 15:36 Project." For those who haven't memorized that particular verse of scripture, it reads, "...that which thou sowest is not quickened except it die...."

The project entails planting vegetable seeds at church on Ash Wednesday as a source of reflection during Lent, Eastertide, and through the season of Pentecost. The idea is that we, like seeds, cannot grow unless first we die.

Ash Wednesday is about dying. Some of the fiercest words ever spoken in church are repeated again and again: "Remember, man, that thou art dust, and unto dust thou shalt return." Attendance should be mandatory in this age of invincible individualism.

The message about dying is not merely a lesson about mortality. It is also a message about life, namely that unless we die the right way, we can never live the right way. That is the point St. Paul was making with the seeds.

It is not bad news that the seed shrivels into a dried piece of nothing. It is not bad news that the seed once planted in the moist soil, swells and bursts out of its old shriveled existence. It is absolutely terrific news.

What would in truth be bad news is if the shriveled seeds were thrown away, sent to the incinerator. That would be a tragic death indeed. What Ash Wednesday teaches us is not merely that we must die, but that dying can lead to death forever or dying can lead to life.

The purpose of Lenten discipline is to help us learn the right kind of dying, the seed's way of dying.

We had a lot of fun planting seeds. I don't know if it is right to have fun on Ash Wednesday, but we do. Perhaps it is fitting that after a day of fasting we should plan for feasts that are months in the future, but already exist in the potential of the seeds we planted.

I try to get interesting varieties for my congregants to plant. There was the Moskvitch tomato from Siberia, which tolerates cooler weather than most. Brandywine tomato wins in taste test after taste test. There is a stuffing tomato, too, which is supposed to be hollow just like a bell pepper. Black Krim tomato is reputed to have an extraordinary taste, but is so fragile that it is hard to get it from the garden to the kitchen.

We planted peppers, yellow ones from what used to be Yugoslavia. We tried eggplants again this year even though we did not have much luck with them last year. I had asked the Youth Fellowship what they wanted to plant. Much to my surprise they said "broccoli." So we planted an heirloom broccoli with a trait of lots of side shoots for a prolonged harvest.

Planting tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, and even broccoli is amazing because they do not give the vaguest hint of their potential in death. If someone did not know how a tomato came into being, I think he would never believe that the luscious red thing could have come from the tiny, shriveled thing.

As a metaphor for death and resurrection, St. Paul said our present body is like the shriveled seed compared to our resurrection body in Christ, which is like the luscious red tomato. If we die the right kind of death, we can be raised into glory just as the tomato seed is raised into glory.

We have to be willing to shed the shell of this life in order to swell and burst into growth that leads to glory. Lent has to be about giving things up, giving up the world. It can be about other things too, but it has to be about sacrifice first.

We had a good Ash Wednesday at my church. We remembered our mortality and received ashen crosses on our foreheads. We also pondered the right way to die, the way that leads to life glorious. And we thought about bushels of tomatoes for joy and pleasure and generosity.

WHAT'S THE PRICE OF BUBBLE GUM?

by Melodee Hill

There has been some recent back and forth "dialogue" in the editorial and "letteditors" (my affectionate term for the letters to the editor) of this paper about giving or not giving money to support the arts in Garrett County. On a local level this would mean that the commissioners include the Garrett County Arts Council (GCAC) in the county budget. What does this mean to us as individuals? As a community in the largest sense of the word?

The best way to examine the answers would be to assume that every artist, and when I refer to an artist I am using the word in an all-encompassing sense, including painters, actors, writers, sculptors, composers, etc., needs money for food, shelter, clothing (artists' models don't count), and supplies at the very least. Let's also assume that the artist makes no money for his work during his lifetime. That could mean he is either a passion-driven volunteer, way ahead of his time, politically incorrect or unconnected, or an abysmally untalented charlatan. Or maybe he just couldn't get a guestspot on the Tonight Show. Whatever the reason, this artist might go hungry, homeless or, worse, stifle his creativity while doing something else to earn the money to live.

Artistic creations can be the measure of our society, good and bad, the legacy left to future generations. They can be the mirror of our culture as a whole or our personality as an individual. What man hasn't given Michelangelo's David a sidelong glance and thought to himself, "Hmm, that's no big thing."? What woman hasn't been encouraged to try that diet just one last time after viewing one of Rubens' voluptuous nudes? What about Edvard Munch's The Cry? I feel so good when I look at that painting, because no matter how my day is going—it will never be as bad as that! Can a magazine cover be art? Ask Norman Rockwell. The hand-in-the-cookie jar smile of the Mona Lisa has been passed down through generations of kids with icing on their faces. How could you listen to a symphony by Mozart or Beethoven and not be glad that someone encouraged them at least a little? Does a shiver hit your spine every time the Wicked Witch of the West lets loose her hideous, screeching laugh?

Not all creativity blossoms into world-class talent, but if the spark is not fanned, the world will never be set on fire. The Garrett County Arts Council has asked the county commissioners for $7,500. Out of a budget of $35 million dollars, that's not even a half of one percent of the total. That's 2½ cents toward the arts for every person in Garrett County. You can't even buy a piece of bubble gum for that! This money would come from the accommodations taxes and would not even be paid by the people of Garrett County, but rather by the tourists who come here to discover our county, our culture, and our talent.

How many of you buy a lottery ticket every week? The state paid some artist to design them. Why not take a chance on being the match that lights the flame of a new talent? Who can say whether any of the multitude of talented, creative people in this county will ever become "famous," but they should have a nurturing environment in which to hone their craft and we all become winners if we accompany them upon their journey. Send your letters supporting arts council funding by the commissioners to: Commissioners Fratz, Johnson, and Wilt, P.O. Box 930, McHenry, MD 21541. If he were alive, Van Gogh would give you his other ear.

Two Deer Park Men Charged With Illegal Beer Sales

Two Deer Park men face charges of selling alcohol without a license after their arrest on Saturday by Garrett County Sheriff's deputies acting on an anonymous tip.

The tip reported that Robert Louis Sharpless, 58, and William Henry Cogley, 34, were going to go to Pennsylvania to purchase a large quantity of beer and bring it back to Deer Park to sell without a license. During the course of a stakeout at Sharpless's residence at 47 Peach Tree Lane, the men were reportedly observed unloading over 100 cases of beer from the tarp-covered bed of a 1978 GMC pickup and taking the alcohol into the house.

In executing a search and seizure warrant of the residence, deputies located 145 cases of Milwaukee's Best beer, valued at over $1,000, and record books and receipts indicating the possibility that the men were distributing the beer from the home for profit.

Both men were subsequently released on their own recognizance after appearing before the district court commissioner.

In other sheriff's news, a theft of a 1992 one-ton Chevrolet flatbed truck is under investigation. The vehicle was reportedly taken from the parking lot of Glotfelty Enterprises on Garrett Highway sometime between Feb. 3 and Feb. 16. Described as having a red cab, black flatbed, "Glotfelty Enterprises" painted on both doors, and a half-moon dent on top of the cab, the vehicle's identification number is 1GBJC34N-8NE187795.

A residential burglary at 922 State Street in Kitzmiller is under investigation. The incident, suspected to have occurred the night of Feb. 17, was discovered when neighbors discovered a ladder leaning up against the kitchen window and several pieces of broken window glass were on the ground nearby. The report did not indicate if any items were stolen during the burglary.

Lucas's Garage at 935 Kitzmiller Road was ransacked on the night of Feb. 19. Entry was gained by a window broken out with a large concrete block, and the furniture inside was turned upside down and beer cans and cigarettes were strewn about the premises.

An Edgewood Drive apartment in Deer Park Village was broken into on Feb. 19, but nothing appeared to have been taken. Entry was gained as a locked door was pushed in, and some items were scattered about the floor. Damage to the lock was estimated at $30.

A burglary at 176 Eagles Pointe Drive in Grantsville occurred sometime between the afternoon of Feb. 19 and noon of the following day. While a basement door was kicked open, nothing appeared to have been taken.

Two men were arrested after they allegedly entered a K Street residence in Mtn. Lake Park and beat the occupant. Ricky Dale Kent, 33, Loch Lynn, and John Thomas Gordon, 22, Mtn. Lake Park, each face charges of second-degree assault and trespassing after the alleged victim reported that the pair came to his home at 11 p.m. on Feb. 21 and struck him in the face, chest, and shoulder. After the victim was treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital (GCMH), he filed the charges with the court commissioner. Following their arrest, both Kent and Gordon were released on their own recognizance.

Richard Scott Sisk, 20, Manassas, Va., was arrested by sheriff's deputies after a brawl at the Comfort Inn in McHenry on Feb 21. Sisk allegedly assaulted one of the deputies during the course of the incident, in which several other subjects were arrested by the Maryland State Police. (See MSP coverage.)

Two men were arrested and charged with misdemeanor theft after they left Denny's Restaurant on Garrett Highway without paying for their meals. Christopher Alan Glotfelty, 24, and Thomas Edward Gank, 18, both of Oakland, were both released after each posted a $500 bond. The report also noted that both were resistant to being taken into custody, and verbally harassed the arresting officer.

A one-vehicle accident on Garrett Highway just north of Sand Flat Road at 11 p.m. on Feb. 21 resulted in the driver's arrest for driving while intoxicated. Although William Lester Shomo, 41, Mtn. Lake Park, claimed that a deer ran in front of his vehicle caused him to strike two signs and an embankment along the roadside, deputies were unable to locate the deer's tracks in the snow.

Finally, an accident with injuries on Oakland-Sang Run Road 3.6 miles from Oakland on the evening of Feb. 23 resulted in the transport of two subjects to GCMH by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

The investigating deputy stated that Joshua Allen Capan, age unspecified, Oakland, was traveling south on Oakland Sang-Run Road when his vehicle slid on ice and struck a pickup truck driven by Jerry Daniel Everett II, age unspecified, Oakland. Everett was not injured, but his two passengers, Jerry Daniel Everett, 51, and Joyce Faye Everett, 52, were transported to the hospital, where they were treated and released.

School Budget

said. He also referred to the Honeywell contract signed by the board last year for energy services.

Coviello, who was praised by the superintendent for developing the draft of the budget, also remarked on the numbers being in flux at this time. "We may not know yet exactly what we will have to spend, but we are pretty solid on how we'd like to spend it," he said.

The figures presented by Coviello covered all areas of expense. With the aid of visual projections, he explained comparative numbers of last year's costs and the current requests. The differences between the amounts were noted in the adjacent columns.

He delineated all types of expenses covered in each category, including transportation, instruction, operation of plant, health services, and administration.

At the conclusion of Coviello's presentation, Dr. Teets stated his opposition to relying on any carry-over funds for budget expenses. "These funds should be reserved for only for special projects," he said.

The board members will meet tonight in a work session to address the budget presented by the administration prior to final approval.

ACTION AGENDA FOR 1998

The League of Women Voters is a non-partisan organization which works to promote responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in their government. Our legislative action is based on positions reached through research, study, discussion, and consensus by members. Traditionally the League of Women Voters of Maryland advocates for its good government positions, but other priorities are set based largely on recommendations from our local leagues. Those priorities for 1998 are:

Services For Children, Including Health

The league will advocate for a comprehensive range of services to ensure all children a chance to grow toward a viable productive adulthood and will work to support making the needs of children a high priority of government. All children should have access to a basic level of health care that includes the prevention of disease, health promotion and education, and primary care beginning with prenatal care. We have joined the Maryland Children's Action Network and endorse its recommendations for the state's Child Health Insurance Plan:

- Extend coverage to all children whose family incomes fall within 235% of the Federal Poverty Level and extend coverage through age 18.
- Provide this coverage through expansion of Medicaid in order to (a) avoid the cost of creating a new administrative structure, (b) ensure inclusion of early periodic screening, diagnosis, and treatment, and (c) provide for continuation of coverage beyond the five-year period of the current federal program.

Environmental Protection

The league will promote and advocate for an environment beneficial to life through the protection and wise management of natural resources, including the Chesapeake Bay. We recognize the interrelationships of air quality, energy, land use, waste management, and water resources.

Election Process Reform, Including Campaign Finance

The league has a long history of acting to assure fair campaigns and elections, and we will use new election process positions to address legislation resulting from recommendations to the General Assembly from the Commission to Revise Election Laws. Among our positions, we support:

- statewide uniformity of voting registration and registration records;
- a uniform, simple system for accurate identification of voters at the polls;
- mandatory training for all election judges with state providing basic training instructions;
- a minimum compensation level for election judges set by the state; and
- a restructured Maryland State Administrative Board of Election Laws (SABEL).

Reproductive Choice

The league supports the protection of the individual's constitutional right to privacy in the matter of reproductive choice. We will continue to support opposition to restrictions on and erosion of the right to privacy in reproductive choice.

Education

It is a basic league principle that every person should have access to free public education that provides equal opportunity for all. The primary responsibility for funding public elementary and secondary education lies with the state. We support a foundation program based on a weighted per pupil formula (or including some other recognition of the additional costs and effort involved in educating students with a variety of special needs) and we believe that the basic foundation program should be supported from general state revenues at a level high enough to eliminate inequities. Further, there should be local leeway to provide additional funding for education and continuation of local control of schools. We support the distribution of state funds to local governments—based on factors such as population, need, wealth and tax effort, and reduction in the number and complexity of formulas.

Social Security

POWER OF ATTORNEY NOT ENOUGH FOR SOCIAL SECURITY REPRESENTATION

by Thomas Armbruster
Social Security Manager

We frequently get calls from family members who have been turned down when they try to conduct Social Security business for a relative by using a power of attorney. We explain that a power of attorney is not enough to represent a Social Security beneficiary; one has to be a "representative payee." A representative payee is a person selected by Social Security to receive benefits on behalf of a beneficiary.

More than six million people who get monthly Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits, or both, need someone to help them manage their money. When a person needs this kind of help, the Social Security Administration appoints a relative, friend or another interested party to serve as the person's representative payee. This is done only after a careful investigation. The person's benefits are then paid in the representative payee's name on the beneficiary's behalf.

However, people often work out other ways to handle a family member's finances to suit their needs. A "power-of-attorney" arrangement is one of the most commonly used methods. Although that may be a convenient way to pay bills and handle some legal matters, the power-of-attorney procedure does not establish the responsibility and accountability that Social Security requires of representative payees.

If you would like to become a representative payee for a family member or a friend who needs help managing the money they receive in Social Security or SSI benefits, call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213.

Readiness Fair To Be Held At Accident School

Preschoolers from the northern end of the county, and their parents, are invited to the Accident School's Readiness Fair on Saturday, March 14, from 9 a.m. to noon.

Entertainment and activities will continue all morning and will include finger printing, educational displays, storytelling, face painting, computer use, art, music, and movement activities. A book fair is also planned to take place during the fair.

Accident T-shirts will be available for sale, and all preschoolers will be given a free book to take home. Local businesses have donated door prizes.

The Denver Developmental Screening and auditory/speech evaluations will be offered by trained professionals.

Garrett County agencies and businesses will be available at the school to provide information on programs and services. Among those to be represented are the Garrett County Health Department, SHARE Food Program, Garrett Community College Continuing Education Department, Head Start, and the Little Tykes and Cherry Glade daycare centers.

Also present will be representatives from the Department of Natural Resources, American Trust Bank, Ruth Enlow Library, Discovery Toys, the Infants and Toddlers Program, AmeriCorps, Garrett County Extension Office, WIC, and Garrett County Office of Solid Waste and Recycling.

Refreshments will be available throughout the morning.

The Readiness Fair is being coordinated by Joyce Miller, a reading teacher at Accident School. She is being assisted by teachers Sharon Platter and Melissa Kenny, and Tracy Fratz, a parent.

"The Readiness Fair is supported by our School Improvement Team, in an effort to help make parents more aware of developmental expectations for their preschoolers. The fair also promises to provide a pleasant introduction to school for the children and lots of activities for the families," Accident principal Sandy Nesline said.

Anyone with questions about the fair may call the school at 301-746-8863.

Meet Garrett County's NEW TEACHERS

Crellin Elementary School experienced a major turnover of staff this year. There are four new teachers, which is half of the teaching staff. Three are new employees of the Garrett County Board of Education, and one transferred from another school.

Sue Liller, the new first grade teacher, is a Garrett County native who graduated from Northern High School, Garrett Community College, and Frostburg State University. She earned a bachelor of science degree in early childhood education and graduated magna cum laude.

While attending college and following graduation she gained experience as a substitute teacher in many of the county schools. She had several long-term substitute assignments at Broad Ford Elementary, and Southern and Northern middle schools.

Liller completed her internships at Broad Ford Elementary, where she worked with Debra Woods in kindergarten, and at Dennett Road Elementary in grade 3, where Mary Lynn Bosley served as her supervising teacher. Her mentors at Crellin Elementary School are Debbie DeWitt and Barbara Conway.

Liller stated that while everyone at Crellin Elementary School has been very helpful, she is glad to have two mentors who have provided excellent support by sharing ideas and information, especially at the beginning of the school year. "The job has been very challenging and very rewarding. You learn something new everyday. It is amazing to watch the children learn to read. You see so much growth. They change so much. It is really noticeable after the Christmas break."

Liller resides in Oakland with her husband Kevin and two children, Justin and Ashley.

Linda Stephens is the third grade teacher at Crellin. She graduated from Allegany High School, Cumberland, and Frostburg State University, where she earned an undergraduate degree in elementary education and a master's degree in reading. Her practice teaching was in grade 4 at Cash Valley Elementary School.

Stephens worked as a substitute teacher in Allegany and Mineral counties, as a tutor and reading specialist at Burlington United Methodist Homes, and as a caseworker and coordinator for Big Brothers/Big Sisters prior to working for the Garrett County Board of Education. Becky Sanders is serving as mentor for Stephens.

"It has been a privilege to work with a master teacher like Becky Sanders. Her years of experience benefit not only the children she teaches but my class as well," Stephens said. She also noted that it is nice not to be the only new teacher in the school. "Since there are three of us we stick together and learn together" she stated. In addition to the mentor program she also mentioned the first year teacher class taught by Pamela Neal, coordinator of staff development, which she has found to be a real asset for new teachers.

She and her husband Bob reside in Oakland with their three children: Doug, Brendan and Kimberly.

The new second grade teacher is Carla Swearman. She is a graduate of Northern High School, Garrett Community College and Frostburg State University, where she completed her degree in early childhood education with a 4.0 grade point average and earned many honors and awards.

Swearman completed internships at Dennett Road Elementary, where she taught third grade under the supervision of Mary Lynn Bosley, and at Friendsville Elementary, where she worked with Sandra Cornes's kindergarten class.

As a substitute for the board of education over the past several years, Swearman has had three long-term assignments at Friendsville Elementary.

In speaking of her first year as a full-time teacher she said, "It has been wonderful." Noting that everyone works so well together at Crellin, she stated that her mentor, Carole Ann Lovett, "has been a great help." Lovett's experience as a reading teacher has been especially helpful, she commented.

Now that the second semester has begun, Swearman and the other two new teachers have been discussing preparing their students for the next grade level.

Having worked with Liller, she said she feels she knows what to expect from the students she will teach next year. She has also begun preparing her students to meet the requirements of third graders next year.

Swearman lives in Grantsville with her husband Gary and daughters. Leslie and Lindsay.

Wiley On Dean's List At U Of Md.

Keith Wiley, Grantsville, was included on the dean's list at the University of Maryland for the fall semester. The announcement was made recently by Irwin L. Goldstein of the College of Behavioral and Social Sciences at the College Park campus.

Wiley was one of the few students earning 4.0 grade average for the semester. "Inclusion on this list is recognition of superior scholastic attainment," Goldstein noted.

Keith, a 1988 graduate of Northern High School, is the son of Frank and Joy Wiley.

Boone To Speak To Mtn. Laurel Garden Club

Jon E. Boone will be the guest speaker at the Mountain Laurel Garden Club meeting March 17 at Uno's Restaurant, Deep Creek Lake. The meeting will begin at 10:30 a.m. Boone's topic will be bluebirds in gardens.

A member of the North American Bluebird Society, Boone is recognized as an authority on the habits, migrations, and nesting patterns of bluebirds, which are a symbol of hope and happiness. His interest in bluebirds began when he was a child, Boone said. He has displayed his interest in these birds in his paintings of them.

Boone has previously been recognized in The Republican for his rendering of the Oakland train station.

Members and guests are invited.

On Dean's List

A local student is among those who were named to the dean's commendation list at Gettysburg College for outstanding academic achievement during the fall 1997 semester.

Erika M. Durst, a 1996 graduate of Southern High School, earned a grade point average of 3.33-3.59 on a 4.0 scale to be named to this list. She is the daughter of Donna Durst and Mark Durst, both of Oakland.

Gettysburg College is ranked among the top 100 most selective institutions of higher learning in the United States.

On Dean's List

Michelle Renee Geis, Accident, has been named to the academic dean's list for the fall semester at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, College of Human Resources and Education.

Education Progress Report Receives National Recognition

Maryland was one of four states recently honored for exemplary public reporting of state education progress by the National Governor's Association. At its winter meeting, the governor's association presented Governor Parris N. Glendening and Superintendent of Schools Nancy S. Grasmick with its distinguished Chairman's Award in recognition of "Maryland Reaching for the Goals, 1996," Maryland's annual report on progress toward the National Education Goals.

"This recognition is further proof that Maryland continues to be a national leader in education reform," Glendening said. "It serves as testimony to the commitment of Dr. Grasmick to accountability and quality schooling. Together, we are setting high standards for our schools and measuring and reporting on our progress to the public."

Maryland's latest award-winning report was released in January 1997 by the Maryland State Department of Education. It showed that schools across the state are making steady progress toward meeting the eight National Education Goals established by the nation's governors in 1989. Maryland also won a Chairman's Award for "Maryland Reaching for the Goals, 1995."

"Public accountability has always been at the core of our school improvement efforts," said Grasmick. "This report reflects our belief that parents, teachers, students, and business and community leaders are partners in our efforts to prepare our students for the new millenium. Collaborating with these partners and reporting to them on our progress is a vital component in Maryland's formula for school success," she said.

In particular, the state's report was cited by the National Governor's Association for its use of strong statistical data to illustrate the state's progress toward the national goals and to show how Maryland compares to national averages. The report was also recognized for its useful descriptions of the many state programs that further Maryland's progress toward successful schools and students.

"Maryland Reaching for the Goals, 1997 is scheduled for release in March 1998.

Mortgage Moment

by Jerry Merrick

Welcome to this week's Mortgage Moment. I would like to thank those who have sent mortgage-related questions over the last two weeks. I encourage everyone to keep those questions coming, so that everyone can become more familiar with the home buying process.

1. What does an application fee consist of?

An application fee usually serves three purposes. The first is where the majority of the fee is disbursed, and that is to order an appraisal. An appraisal is ordered because a lending institution must know the value of the property that they will be securing against your loan. The remaining funds are used to order a credit report and some form of underwriting fee. Application fees vary in costs, but typically they can range from $280 to $380.

2. What documents are required from me to apply for a mortgage?

Prior to a loan application your loan officer will request the following items.

A. W-2s for a two-year employment history.
B. A contract of sale and a legal description (deed).
C. A 12-month mortgage or rental history.
D. Your latest three months' bank statements on all accounts.
E. If you're self-employed or more than 25% of your income is from bonuses or overtime, you will need two years' tax returns with all schedules.
F. Any open loans that you may have: account numbers, addresses, balances, and monthly payments.
G. Check for application fee.

Thank You

I would like to express my sincere thanks to the staff of Far East Wing of Dennett Road Nursing Home, the nurses on the 3rd floor at Garrett County Memorial Hospital., to Father Chip Lee, and David Burdock. Also to my two dear friends, Fran Ford and Helen Winters for the constant and loving care given to my mother Pearle Campbell during her illness and up until the day she passed away.

With Love & Thanks,
Bunny Kisner

CDS Conviction Costs Morgantown Man Over $500

In last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings, a $555 fine was levied by Judge Ralph M. Burnett after Joseph Blaine Jordan, 50, Morgantown, pleaded guilty to possession of controlled dangerous substance (CDS) paraphernalia.

The charge stemmed from Jordan's September arrest by the Maryland State Police after he had been stopped for speeding on Interstate 68. In speaking to Jordan the trooper noticed the odor of burnt marijuana on his person. Jordan consented to a vehicle search and told the trooper that there was a burnt marijuana cigarette in the ashtray. Leafy marijuana and a smoking pipe were also recovered from the vehicle.

Jordan faced an additional charge of possession of marijuana which was not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

A pair of Cumberland women, Tonya Sue Morral, 21, and Kerry Jo Murray, 20, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana. The two were each handed a probation before judgment (PBJ), given a 30-day suspended sentence, fined $100, placed on six months of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Morral and Murray were arrested by state troopers in October after they were apprehended sitting in a truck parked behind the Century 21 building in McHenry at 12:15 a.m. A plastic baggie containing marijuana and a smoking pipe were found on the truck's floorboard.

A total of 12 charges, one for second-degree assault and the other 11 traffic-related, faced by Bradley Scott Savage, 20, Mtn. Lake Park, were stetted under the condition that he complete 40 hours of community service.

The charges stemmed from Savage's July arrest by state police following a traffic incident that was witnessed and reported by an off-duty state trooper who both followed and was followed by Savage's Pontiac Grand Am for over 50 miles through the county. Court documents state that Savage allegedly engaged in dangerous and threatening driving behaviors, at one point reportedly attempting to run the trooper's car into an oncoming traffic lane.

Following the incident a warrant was sworn out for Savage's arrest, and he was taken into custody several days later.

James Edward Winebrenner, 46, Grantsville, was found not guilty of a charge of second-degree assault that stemmed from his arrest by sheriff's deputies after a domestic altercation with Nancy Livengood.

Misdemeanor charges of theft and malicious destruction of property faced by Pablo David Cunningham, 23, Irvine, Calif., were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

David Andrew Lohr, 43, Oakland, pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated (DWI) and was fined $355, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 60 hours of community service.

Gary Lee Duff, 42, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $100, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Post Office To Increase Service For Peak Hours

Oakland Postmaster Ken Perrin announced this week that the main office on Second Street will offer additional window service during the traditional lunch hours.

On Mondays and Fridays, the busiest days at the post office, both windows will be open from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. to assist customers. The same schedule will be in effect for the first day of each month when money order purchases are the highest.

"These are our busiest times and recent surveys have indicated that customers in many locations are having to wait too long for service," Perrin said.

The postal service standard is that a customer wait for service for a maximum of five minutes, he explained. "We hope these steps will alleviate what small problem we may have in Oakland," he added.

Perrin has requested that the public take advantage of the increased help at these times. In addition he noted that there are other services which can reduce a customer's time of standing in line at the post office waiting for service. In the lobbies of the Oakland and Mtn. Lake Park branches there are vending machines for stamp purchases. Stamps are also available by mail and may be purchased through mail carriers.

IN MEMORY OF SHANE (DAVID) SAVAGE
February 28, 1995

Three years ago you went away
God called for you and you could not stay.
He gave you to us for thirty-four years,
It seems so short and now we shed tears.
You brought us your charms, but your stay was brief.
We have your memories as solace for our grief.
You showered us with love and asked little in return
We gave you our lovebut still had much to learn.
"Think of me" you said, "when you have time"
I'll never forget you, O son of mine.
The angels called you much sooner than we planned
The grief has been bitter, but we must try to understand.
The legacy you left was "unconditional love"
"It Is Well With My Soul" you are singing from above.

So sadly missed and loved by,
Gloria & Bill Martin

W.Va. Leadership Members Include Judith Friend

Michael W. Keener, chairman of the board of Leadership West Virginia, Charleston, has announced the 1998 class of Leadership West Virginia.

"We have selected 51 people from a large and exceptionally strong group of applicants who are already very much involved in their own communities," said Keener, in making the announcement. "All have indicated that they look forward to expanding that involvement, and they view Leadership West Virginia as a means of broadening their knowledge about our state to prepare them for larger leadership roles. As always, they are a highly diverse group in terms of their professions, their interests, and their home regions. We have people from 19 counties in the program this year. We congratulate each of them on their initiative, their commitment, and their selection to the Class of '98."

Judith A. Friend, Springfield, W.Va., who is married to Larry A. Friend, formerly of Crellin, is among those named to the 1998 class of Leadership West Virginia. Ms. Friend earned M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in psychology, graduating summa cum laude from Kingsway Theological Seminary (1991). She completed a summer session in archeology at Duke University and an internship with Emory University and the Cobb Institute of Archeology, Mississippi State University, at Tel Halif, in the Negev Desert, Israel, in 1989. She also traveled extensively in Egypt and did research at the Albright Institute of Archeology, Jerusalem.

In 1996, Ms. Friend was a member of the U.S. delegation to South Africa, "Women in the Workforce." She is a member of the U.S. National World Food Day Advisory Committee and a contributor to the Study/Action Packet, which is translated in French and Spanish and distributed to 1,000 sites worldwide, 1996 and 1998. While with the West Virginia Coalition on Food and Nutrition as associate director, she produced a recruitment video for the Summer Food Service Program and authored "Tips and Tidbits," a resource guide which was the basis for Tufts University's "50 Ways to Improve the Summer Food Service Program."

Since 1994, Ms. Friend has been the president of the American Association of Direct Human Service Personnel. She is currently employed by Mountaineer Food Bank in marketing, research, and development.

Leadership West Virginia is a leadership development and education program affiliated with the West Virginia Chamber of Commerce, which identifies emerging leaders throughout the state and enhances their personal leadership skills while enriching their knowledge of not only the challenges facing West Virginia, but also the diversity and unique attributes of the Mountain State. The program requires participants to attend eight monthly sessions from April through November. At each session they study a particular aspect of the assets, opportunities, and existing and potential problems of the state. Authorities on each topic under study share their expertise and experiences with the class.

Charge Of DWI Placed On Stet

A Garrett County Circuit Court case involving a man charged with driving while intoxicated was placed on the stet docket, according to a report from that office. Brian P. Mills, 32, Erie, Pa., is to serve 30 hours of community service as a result of the trial outcome.

A case on the stet docket may be re-opened any time over the next year, if needed. Otherwise, no further penalty will be imposed on the defendant.

Mills was stopped by a Garrett County Sheriff's Office deputy on Sept. 12, 1997, along Rt. 39, according to the court report.

Cook Seeking Second Term On Town Council

Donna Cook has announced her candidacy for a second term as a member of the Oakland Town Council. Cook has been a resident of Oakland for 21 years, has raised her family here, and says she wants to continue to serve the people of the community.

"The experience of serving on Oakland's Town Council has been very rewarding and enlightening. I wish to continue working with the mayor and other members on the council to help to maintain the quality of our way of life. Our town has so many caring individuals, and it is very important that we continue to work together for the good of all," she said.

Cook is employed with the Garrett County Board of Education and with The Renaissance Learning Center. She is actively involved in many volunteer programs, including The American Red Cross, Vacation Bible School, Garrett Choral Society, Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, St. Peter's Church Choir, and the Western MD Regional Youth Committee. She has been involved with the Save Oakland Station Project, Oakland's Ecumenical Youth Ministry, Habitat for Humanity fund-raisers, and House of Hope fund-raisers. She has also served as a site coordinator for the Oakland Rotary Club's Christmas Project.

"If re-elected, I will serve our citizens to the best of my ability, and I promise to listen to all suggestions and concerns. Thank you for the opportunity to work for you during the last two years. Remember to vote on Monday, March 9," Cook concluded.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

The Emmanuel Lutheran Youth Group braved the mud and slush on Sunday to take a hike at New Germany State Park. They had planned to have a sled-riding party, but Mother Nature did not cooperate. A few hardy souls braved the fog and drizzle last Thursday evening for a "ski-out" at The Wisp. "Pretty good" snow conditions on the slopes were reported.

Attending the hike at New Germany were Kyle, Kelsey, Ryan and Ben Morrison, Claire, Caitlin and Meredith Sussman, Bill and Andrew Hady, Larry and Eric Maxim, Rob, Meredith, David and Daniel Vagnetti, plus the newest member of the Vagnetti family was on hand just in case the group would need a heroic rescue. Gretel, a Lab-Shepherd mix puppy, had just as good a time as the hikers, entertaining them, drooling, romping around, and wagging her tail.

Monday we got the snow storm we have been waiting for, causing school to be closed. Unfortunately, that means our three active girls entertained themselves with a game of baseball in the living room, playing with balloons instead of the real bat and ball. You would be surprised how much damage a three-foot-long balloon can do. Who is to blame? I guess I am, as I bought the balloons. What could I have been thinking of!?

The fifth and sixth graders' team from the Dribbler Program, consisting of five Bittinger boys and other kids from the Northern area, played in a conference tournament in Confluence, Pa. They played two games, but were unmatched in terms of both height and experience. In spite of their two losses, they are eagerly looking forward to another round of games this Saturday. Carol Bass, parent, stated that they are still a little raw, but they are enthusiastic and are sharpening their skills. On the team from Bittinger are Matthew Bass, Max Beitzel, Brent Housley, Torrey Poholsky, and Tyler Brenneman.

"March Madness" has hit the Whittemore Gym, where fledgling "Huskies" are honing their skills on the basketball court.

Travis Spear, Friendsville, spent the weekend with Brent Housley.

Attending the Maryland-Georgia Tech basketball game at University of Maryland were Rodney and Marci Glotfelty. Bea and Max Buckel, College Park, were also in attendance and saw them at the game. Max reported that they are busy with their grandchildren and send their greetings to their family and friends in Garrett County.

Harriett and Ken Buckel celebrated their 51st wedding anniversary on Sunday with a dinner at Penn Alps as guests of Bill, Tina, Karla, and Derek Buckel.

Maryland Board Sells General Obligation Bonds

The Maryland Board of Public Works, consisting of Governor Parris N. Glendening, State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein, and State Treasurer Richard N. Dixon, sold $250,000,000 in General Obligation bonds for a low interest bid of 4.4297% on Wednesday, Feb. 18. The interest rate is the lowest the state has paid on General Obligation bonds since October 1971, when $60 million in bonds were sold for 4.111%.

A syndicate headed by Paine Webber submitted the winning bid. State officials called the rate "excellent" and "a tremendous reflection on the health of the state."

The board reviewed four bids. The bonds had been rated Triple A, the best possible rating, by Moody's Investors Service Inc., Standard & Poor's Corporation, and Fitch Investors Service Inc., the three major bond rating agencies. The Triple A rating means the state pays lower interest costs. Thanks to the Triple A rating, the state has saved $141.7 million in interest costs since 1971 compared to a Double A rating, the next highest rating.

Proceeds from the $250 million bond sale will be used to fund a variety of loan authorizations, including general state construction; higher education facilities; water quality and Chesapeake Bay projects; and local jail projects in Baltimore, Howard, Allegany, and St. Mary's counties. The sale also provides funds for a variety of museums and cultural attractions throughout Maryland.

Governor Glendening said, "This is a tremendous reflection on the health of the state."

"We had four bidders in this good market, giving us an excellent rate and recognizing the importance of our 15-year term on General Obligation bonds," said Treasurer Dixon.

Maryland is one of only eight states in the nation to retain the coveted Triple A rating from all of the major bond rating agencies. These 15-year bonds, backed by the full faith and credit of the state, are sold in denominations of $5,000.

Maryland last sold General Obligation bonds in July 1997, when $250 million in bonds were sold for a low interest bid of 4.639%.

Huskies End Regular Season With Losses To Beall, Fort Hill

The boys' varsity basketball team of Northern High School wrapped up its regular season of competition this week on a disappointing note, as the Huskies were edged by host Beall in overtime Friday evening, 72-69, and were hammered by visiting Fort Hill last night, 103-60, in their worst loss of the season. The pair of Western Maryland Interscholastic League defeats gave the Huskies a 7-13 mark for the campaign, and they will face Mount Savage, on the Indians' court, in an opening round game of the Maryland 1A West playoffs, which will get underway Friday.

The Huskies had victory in their grasp against Beall on Friday, as they held a dozen-point lead in the fourth quarter, but the Mountaineers went on a late run to knot the score at 61-61 by the end of regulation and then out-scored the Huskies in the extra period by an 11-8 margin. It was only the fifth win in 20 starts for Beall, but the fifth in its last seven starts.

The Huskies moved out to a 16-11 lead by the end of the first quarter, were on top 38-30 at halftime, and held a 50-44 lead after three periods before going up by as many as 12 in the final stanza. A three-pointer by Todd Merbaugh, the only one of the night by either team, ignited the run by the Mountaineers that led to their victory. The Huskies had a chance to send the contest into a second overtime, but Scott Sisler's three-point attempt at the buzzer bounced off the rim.

Dustin Long hit a game-high 25 points and also grabbed 12 rebounds for the Huskies, while Craig Kamp also reached double figures with 12 points.

Leading Beall was Merbaugh with 23 points, followed by Tom Leasure with 20 points and 11 rebounds, and Ryan Raley with 18 points and 11 rebounds.

The evening was not a total loss for Husky fans, as the Northern junior varsity won the preliminary game, 49-36, behind a 15-point effort by Josh Resh. Jeremy Smith netted a game-high 16 for Beall.

By the end of the first quarter of last night's game with Fort Hill at the Cove, one would think that the outcome of the contest might be close, as the Huskies led the favored Sentinels, 16-14. But Fort Hill finally got its offense rolling in the second quarter and out-scored the Huskies by a 27-13 margin to take a 41-29 lead into the locker room at halftime. The Sentinels' momentum was even greater in the third stanza, as they hit nearly every shot they put in the air and scored 39 points in the period to take a commanding 80-43 advantage into the fourth quarter.

Leading the Fort Hill offense were Josh Logsdon and Jamie Kline, who finished with 22 and 21 points, respectively, while Jared Fradiska hit 15 points and Jordan Hamilton netted 14.

Scott Sisler and Dustin Long were the top scorers for the Huskies, with 19 and 17 points, respectively. Matt Houser chipped in with nine points.

The win gave the Sentinels a share of the WMIL crown (with Southern and Allegany) with a 10-2 WMIL mark and a 14-8 record overall.

The Northern junior varsity was nipped in the first game, 49-47, and concluded its season with a 7-13 mark. Josh Resh and Russell Lawson each scored a dozen points for the Huskies, while Eric Dudley hit a game-high 17 to lead the Fort Hill jayvees, who finished with a 15-7 record.

If the Huskies get past Mount Savage in the opening round of the 1A West Region tournament, they will face Williamsport either Monday or Tuesday in their second playoff game.

Huskies Open Playoffs Tomorrow After Splitting With BW, Hancock

Northern's girls' basketball team split its season-closing contests with a 60-35 loss to Bishop Walsh and a 53-51 win over Hancock. The Huskies record for the regular season stands at 12-10 going into Friday night's 1A West Region playoff visit to Mount Savage.

Three-point goals fell like rain in Accident Thursday night as the Huskies defense was no match for the long-distance show put on by Lauren Zapf and her Bishop Walsh teammates. The Spartans poured in 21 of their 60 points from three-point range, and 12 of Zapf's game-high 31 points came on tres as well.

The Huskies fell behind early, trailing 13-9 at the end of the first quarter. Matters only got worse as the night dragged on, for Northern's offense struggled to score eight points in the second quarter and six in the third quarter; in the meantime the Spartans poured it on and led by 20 points at the opening of the final quarter.

Forward Brooke Brenneman led the Huskies with 18 points and 12 rebounds, and was aided by Heidi Frazee's 10 points. Zapf lit up the scoreboard with 31 points for BW, as Tiffini Wagner added 10 points and pulled down 17 rebounds.

Northern's junior varsity started the night off on the right foot at the Igloo, downing BW 39-32. Heather Nugent led the pack with 18 points and Jenny Murray contributed 10 points. The Spartans were led by Desiree DuVall's 14 points.

Last night's visit to Hancock saw a fine coaching job by Harv Speicher and his staff result in a two-point victory. The Huskies came back from deficits of 13-8 at the end of the first quarter and 29-19 at the half. A third quarter run by the Huskies put them up 36-34 at opening of the fourth quarter, and they never trailed again.

In hitting 10 field goals and three free throws Kathy Arnold tallied 23 points to lead Northern. Brenneman added 19 points, 10 rebounds, and seven steals in a fine all-around effort. Heidi Frazee handed out nine assists to her fellow Huskies. Hancock was led by Amanda Fleming's game-high 28 points, and Carla Golden scored 17 points.

The junior varsity contest was also a victory for Northern, 36-22. 20 points from the Huskies Heather Nugent led all scorers, while Amanda True scored 17 points for Hancock. The win gave the Huskies jayvees an 8-10 record for the season.

NHS Cheerleaders Do Well In Multi-State Competition

The Northern High School cheerleaders placed fourth in a recent competition against teams from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and New Jersey at the University of Maryland Championships in College Park. "I felt we did an excellent job, considering the other teams' exceptional talents in gymnastics and mounting," coach Lisa Carr commented.

Northern's cheerleaders spend five days each summer with staff from the Collegiate Cheerleading Company (CCC) of Erie, Pa. Professional cheerleaders, under the direction of Heather and Kim Kirsh, teach the skills and the training needed to perform individual and team maneuvers including mounting, gymnastics, individual strengths, team workouts, and first aid. "It's important to attend these camps because cheerleading changes every year," said assistant coach Laura Friend. "We're always learning new stunts and cheers to excite the crowd. Every time CCC staff are in the area they stop and help us improve."

CCC spent extra time last summer preparing the NHS girls for this year's competitions. "I knew after tryouts that I had an elite group, so I decided to use their abilities to the fullest," said Carr. "With cheerleading you spend several hours a week performing and motivating the team and crowd without receiving much appreciation. The competitions provide a chance for the girls to take pride in their hard work and accomplishments."

Northern's cheerleaders will be participating in other competitions this spring, including one in King's Dominion in Richmond, Va. To help make these trips possible, interested persons may make a donation to help cover the entry fees and travel expenses to the events. The cheerleaders ask that donations be mailed to Northern High School, 86 Pride Parkway, Accident, MD 21520, c/o Northern Cheerleading.

Rams Rally To Top Keyser, Draw Bye In 1A Tournament

Clutch foul shooting in the final minutes of the game led to another victory for the Southern High School boys' varsity, currently ranked second in the area standings, as the Rams edged third-ranked Keyser, 53-50, in Oakland Friday evening. It was the eighth win in the last nine games for the Rams, who will wrap up their regular season this evening at home against a strong Preston County team and go into the Maryland 1A West playoffs Monday or Tuesday as the top-ranked 1A team in the region.

Friday's contest against Keyser was tight from the opening tipoff, as the Rams trailed by a 15-12 margin at the end of the first quarter, were down by two, 26-24, at halftime, and were tied with the Golden Tornado at the end of the third stanza, 38-38.

A pair of free throws and the drawing of an offensive foul by Josh Helbig, coupled with two more free tosses by John Andrews, sealed the win for the Rams.

Keyser led by four points with about two minutes to play. The Rams cut the lead to 50-49 and Helbig hit his free throws with one minute left to put Southern on top for good. On the ensuing drive downcourt by the Tornado, Helbig planted himself in front of the Keyser attacker and drew the offensive foul, which gave the Rams possession of the ball.

Andrews was then fouled with 16 seconds remaining and he hit both of his opportunities to conclude the scoring. Keyser attempted a three-point shot at the buzzer to tie, but it was no good.

The Rams were outgunned from the floor by a 22-17 margin, but hit nearly 94% (15 of 16) free throws, while Keyser had only four shots from the line all night and connected on three of them. The loss dropped the Golden Tornado to 11-8, while the Rams improved to 14-7.

In 11 of 21 games, the Southern defensive effort has limited opponents to no more than 50 points.

Mike Paesani and Mike Pamepinto led the Rams' scoring performance with 18 and 17 points, respectively, while Andrews also reached double figures with 12. Helbig recorded six rebounds to go with four points from the foul line and Nathan DiSimone dished out six assists.

Leading Keyser in scoring was John Haines with 18 points. Brian Wilt finished with 11.

The contest was almost a replay of the first meeting this season between the Rams and Keyser, which ended with a 47-45 overtime victory for Southern.

The Southern junior varsity was also victorious in the first game, 35-28, behind a 10-point effort by Nathaniel Panther. It was the 16th win in 19 starts for the Ram jayvees. Justin Miller scored 10 points for Keyser.

PLAYOFF PICTURE

Because of their number-one ranking in the region, the Rams were awarded a bye in the first round of the 1A West Tournament, which will get underway Friday evening. They will play the winner of the Beall (ranked 8th)-Hancock (9) game either Monday or Tuesday, at a site to be determined.

ALL ARE INVITED to attend this Saturday's championship and consolation games in the Oakland Service Club Basketball League, which will be played throughout the afternoon at Southern High School (see story for details). The above photo is an action shot of a senior division game, taken during the regular season, between the Lions and Knights of Pythias teams. Rams Draw First-Round Bye After Downing Beall, Fort Hill

The Southern High School girls basketball team ended its regular season this week with two victories to secure a 12-10 overall record and an 8-4 mark in Western Maryland Interscholastic League play. The Rams took a 69-41 victory over Beall at Frostburg Thursday, then topped Fort Hill last night by a 50-41 margin.

Bridget Miller's 12 points paced Southern to victory Thursday night, with help from Liz Paesani and Jessica Saturday who contributed 11 points each. Jennifer Teagarden added eight points. For Beall, Krissy Jackson scored eight points and Heather Price added six points.

Southern maintained a commanding lead throughout the contest, and was up by 20 points at the end of the first quarter, 25 points at the half, and held a 29-point advantage at the opening of the final period.

The Rams' jayvees also dominated their opponents as they downed Beall 37-12. Southern was led by Joy Jackson's 10 points and Jessica Uphold's eight points. Candi Whetstone, Nicky Williams, and Katie Ryan each tallied four points for Beall.

The regular season came to an end with last night's nine-point victory over Fort Hill. The game was close throughout the contest, as Southern led by one point at each of the first three buzzers. At the close of the first quarter the Rams were up 21-11, at the half they up 24-23, and going into the fourth quarter they led 34-33. For the final stanza Southern mounted a 16-8 run that put the game out of reach for the Sentinels.

Saturday led the Rams with 20 points and 12 rebounds, Miller scored 13 points, including three three-point goals, and pulled down nine rebounds. Michelle Teter added eight points, and all five of Laura Friend's clutch came in the crucial final quarter. Fort Hill's Emily Coyle scored 14 points, Sarah Custer scored eight points while pulling down 13 rebounds and blocking three shots, and Jennifer Vance had eight points, eight rebounds, and five assists.

Southern's junior varsity fell to the Sentinels 34-24. Charlena Reeves scored six points for the Rams, and Fort Hill's Stephanie Skidmore scored 10 points.

The 1A West playoff tournament lies ahead. The Rams drew a first-round playoff bye and will play in the quarterfinals Monday night against the winner of tomorrow's Hancock-Beall contest. If the opponent is Beall, the game will be at Southern, and if Hancock, the game will be on the road.

Food For Thought

Yummy mushrooms are stuffed with chopped stems sauteed with chopped onions, all mixed with toasted walnuts, chopped, grated cheddar cheese, and bread crumbs. Brush with melted butter overall and bake 20 minutes at 350. Serve warm.

Even "presifted" flour should be sifted before measuring, because it probably has settled since it was packaged.

After potatoes are boiled and drained, before they're mashed, add milk and butter and cook over medium heat until the milk is warm. Then beat in the pot with a handheld electric mixer.

Kiwi fruits, papaya, mangoes and oranges taste so wonderful, it's hard to remember that they're good for you, too, chock full of vitamins, potassium, magnesium and other goodies.

Lakers Top Frederick, But Then Ousted By Rockville

The men's basketball team of Garrett Community College advanced in the Maryland JUCO Conference Tournament last Thursday evening by rallying to defeat Frederick CC in overtime, 90-81, but the Lakers were then eliminated from the tourney on Friday when they were crushed by Montgomery-Rockville, 94-69. The Lakers went into the tournament seeded seventh, while Frederick was the 10th seed and Montgomery-Rockville (20-8) was seeded second.

Freshman Michael Fields played an outstanding game against Frederick on Friday, as he finished with 34 points, 14 rebounds, and three steals, with six of his points being scored in the overtime period.

The Lakers built a 19-10 lead in the early minutes of the game, but allowed the Cougars to surge ahead before halftime and go into the locker room with a 46-39 advantage.

With about four minutes remaining in the game, it appeared that it might be an early end to the Lakers' run in the tournament, as the Cougars were up by 10 points, 76-66, but Ricky Berkley was called off the bench by Coach Dennis Gibson and proceeded to spark a run by the Lakers.

Garrett knotted the score at 76 and took a 78-76 lead with just seconds to play, but Frederick's Ernest Holmes took the inbounds pass underneath and put the ball up and in to send the contest into overtime.

Fields led the Lakers' overtime period, as Garrett quickly went up by four points and did not allow the Cougars to threaten again.

Also reaching double figures for the Lakers were Jerome Adams with 16 points, Rob Wheeler with 12, and Eric Papcun with 10. Wheeler also had three assists.

Pacing the Cougars were Kevin Dixon with 24 points, Holmes with 18, and Emonte Hill with 11 points, four assists, and three steals.

The Lakers made a few runs against Montgomery-Rockville in Saturday's game, but could get no closer than three points in the second half. Several of GCC's top players got into foul trouble in the first half, forcing Coach Gibson to put them on the bench. The contest was close through most of the first half, but with Fields, Adams, and Wheeler not in the game, Rockville surged just before intermission to take a 41-32 advantage.

The Lakers scored 12 of the first 17 points of the second half, and cut the deficit to 47-44 on a field goal by Fields and a free throw, but Rockville answered with a spurt and built a 13-point lead. Garrett got no closer than nine points the rest of the way.

"The early foul trouble really hurt us," Gibson said, "but Rockville did a good job against us with their pressure defense."

Fields again led the Lakers (19-9) in scoring and rebounding with 21 points and 11 boards, while Adams netted 14 points and Lionell Sewell added 10 points, three assists, and two steals.

Benji Surpin paced Rockville's scoring with 16 points, and right behind was Rafael Kearse with 15 points and 10 rebounds. Also reaching double figures were Sanyika Street with 13 points, and Butch Johnson and Addison Bennett with 10 apiece. Johnson also had four steals.

EVERY PLAY WAS CRUCIAL for the women of Garrett Community College as they battled back to win by one point in the closing seconds over Frederick on Friday. Above, guard Mary Walters, #11, takes advantage of a pick set by #23 Chrissy Lambert to get a step on her defender and drive to the hoop. Second from right is center April Sisler, screening out Frederick's center along the paint. In the photo at left, 6'2" freshman center Andrea Barrick goes high to take a shot, as Walters and Marika Washington, #25, get ready to move into rebounding position. Looking on from the far side of the court is Erica McBride.

Gutsy Comeback Puts GCC Over Frederick Before Baltimore Loss

"It ain't over 'til it's over," baseball sage Yogi Berra once said, and these words of wisdom were borne out by the Garrett Community College women's basketball team as it battled back from a 15-point halftime deficit against Frederick in Maryland JUCO tournament action to win by one, 81-80. Hopes of playing a championship game on their home court were dashed the next day, however, by Baltimore City Community College, 92-72. Two Lakers received All-Tournament honors, as Mary Walters was named to the first team and Erica McBride was named to the second team.

GCC entered the tournament Friday as the number six seed out of a field of 10 teams, and at times it looked like the Lakers would exit the competition early in their first game against Frederick. Down 31-16 midway through the first half and 42-33 at halftime, the Lakers got the home crowd into the game in the second half as they went on a 10-0 run with 14:34 left. Four free throws from Marika Washington, and baskets from Walters, McBride, and Andrea Barrick accounted for the blitz, which put the Lakers up 53-52.

For the rest of the contest the two teams traded scores evenly until the final six seconds, when a clutch free throw from Mary Walters broke an 80-80 tie with six seconds to go. A three-point attempt for Frederick missed its mark, and the Lakers took the victory.

Walters led the Lakers with 25 points, and dished out a game-high five assists, while McBride scored 21 points, Chrissy Lambert added 12 points, and Washington had 11 points. Walters also shared GCC rebounding honors with Barrick at six rebounds each. Frederick's Judy Whims led all scorers with 27 points, and Kristie Stockman added 17 points while pulling down a game-high 11 rebounds.

GCC then advanced to play second-seeded Baltimore the next day, and kept it close throughout much of the contest. Although down by eight points at the half, the Lakers had pulled to within four points with just under 15 minutes to play when Baltimore scored six unanswered points. Although GCC was able to pull within five points shortly thereafter, Baltimore went up 72-60 with 9:11 remaining to put the game on ice.

The lions' share of the Lakers offensive output was shared among McBride with 19 points, Walters with 17 points, and Barrick's 15 points. Barrick had a big day at both ends of the court, pulling down 16 rebounds as well. Stephanie Quattro and Keyshia Monroe scored eight points apiece. Baltimore's balanced offensive attack was led by DaShawn Coleman's 18 points, while Keeara Howard and Scherry Cofield tallied 16 points each, and Emily Jones and Jinika Conley scored 15 points apiece.

LAKER STANDOUTS - Freshman guards Mary Walters, left, and Erica McBride, both shown in action in Garrett Community College's 81-80 win over Frederick in last weekend's Maryland JUCO tournament in McHenry, were each honored as All-Tournament selections for their outstanding play. Walters, whose clutch free throw clinched the win with six seconds to go, was named to the first team and McBride was named to the second team. Accolades also came Walters's way for her stellar efforts throughout the year, as the Elkins native was named to the second team in Maryland JUCO regular season honors.

Southern Mat Club Captures Tourney Title

The Southern Mat Club youth wrestling team produced an outstanding effort Saturday in a tournament at Elkins, W.Va., as the local grapplers captured first place among some 30 teams. This was the club's strongest showing of the year and marked the first time in several years that SMC won first place as a team.

Nine club members won first-place awards, six placed second, five finished in third place, and four placed fourth to bring home a total of 21 individual trophies.

Local champions at the tourney were: Mitchell Tasker (ages 7-8/50 pounds), Nathan Sines (9-10/75), Scott Wildesen (9-10/80), Jason Weeks (13-15/90), Brad Palmer (13-15/190), and double winners Justin Ratliff (7-8/60 and 9-10/60) and David Ratliff (9-10/75 and 11-12/65). The first-place finishes for Tasker and Palmer were their first of the season, while the others have combined for 31 individual championship trophies so far in 1998.

Those earning second-place trophies were: Nathan Sines (11-12/75), Scott Wildesen (11-12/80), Tyler Moore (6-under/45), Jeremy Gregory (9-10/75), and Ryan Gregory in two divisions (13-15/110 and 13-15/116). Moore, en route to winning his first-ever trophy, defeated an opponent to whom he had lost at a previous tournament.

Local wrestlers placing third were: Jeremy Gregory (11-12/75), Geoff Tressler (13-15/102), Daniel Carr (7-8/60), Jason Weeks (11-12/90), and Nick Tressler (7-8/45). Earning fourth-place trophies were: Daniel Carr (9-10/60), Jonathan Stem (9-10/70), Lex Ozias (6-U/35), and Michael Kulak (9-10/unlimited).

Other SMC members who participated were John Wolf (7-8/60), Kailee Sisler (6-U/55), Daniel Sisler (7-8/60), Nathaniel Stem (7-8/75), and Kyle Tressler (7-8/50).

"This was a great team effort," stated SMC coach Buck Liller. "Each and every kid gave his/her very best in an effort to win the team championship."

Coach Dave Taylor added, "Our kids are improving so fast. We are winning matches against opponents that we've lost to before, our new kids are starting to win trophies, and our experienced wrestlers are leading the team to championships. As coaches, we couldn't ask for anything more."

The local club will travel to Mapletown, Pa., for a tournament this Saturday. More information about the club and tourney results can be obtained on the club's website at www.gcnet.net/SMC.

Husky Matmen Successful In Defense Of Bi-County Title

Successfully defending their Bi-County Wrestling Tournament championship Saturday in Oakland were the Northern High School Huskies, who amassed 189 points to easily out-distance the five other schools in competition.

Beall placed second with 114 points, host Southern was third with 104, Fort Hill placed fourth with 74.5 points, Westmar was fifth with 28, and Allegany finished sixth with 16.

Five members of Coach Scott Stough's team, which finished the regular season with a 15-1 record in dual competition, earned Bi-County titles in their respective age groups, as did five members of the Southern squad, one Beall grappler, one from Westmar, and one from Fort Hill.

Roy Holliday (103) and Brandon Stein (112) won on pins in the championship round for the Huskies, while Seth Huber (119), Jimmy Warnick (130) and Jimmy Green (140) each won by decision. Huskies earning runner-up awards were Paul Beitzel (125), Mark Wolf (145), Nate Kauffman (152), Ryan Brenneman (189), and Ryan Savage (heavyweight).

Individual champions for the Southern Rams, coached by Kurt Lear, were: Eric Rexrode (135), who won on a pin in the championship round, Tommy Sweitzer (145), who won by forfeit, and Nick Dolan (152), John Hayhurst (160), and Russell Crosco (189), who all won by decisions in their title bouts.

Garrett County wrestlers earning third-place finishes by winning in the consolation round included Northern's Josh Boyd (160) and Matt Kauffman (171) and Southern's Jeremy Lear (119), Jeremy Sweitzer (140), and Tommy Diehl (heavyweight). Northern's Travis Brenneman (135) finished in fourth place.

Other Bi-County champions were: David Goff (125) of Westmar, Robert Bowman (171) of Beall, and Nathan Weaver (heavyweight) of Fort Hill.

The next competition for the Huskies and the Rams will be the West Regional Class 1A/2A Tournament, to be held at North Hagerstown this Friday and Saturday.

Ram Freshmen Lose Tourney In Double OT

Despite defeating the Allegany High freshmen boys' team twice during the regular season, the third time was not quite a charm for the Southern Rams, who were edged in double overtime of the championship game of the Improved Order of Redman Blackhawk Tribe 131 freshman tournament, hosted by Westmar. The score of the contest was not reported.

Romney stopped Keyser in the consolation game to win third place, while Frankfort defeated Westmar for fifth place and Bishop Walsh eliminated Northern to finish seventh.

Southern's Jamie Bosley and Brian Panther were named to the all-tournament first-team, along with Andy Clark and Paul Becker of Allegany and James Altobello of Keyser. Second-team all-tourney selections were Jeremy Frazee of Northern, Jason Miller of Bishop Walsh, Lorin Noel and Justin Llewellyn of Frankfort, and Chuck Harman and Randy Carroll of Westmar.

GCC goes into tournament play seeded number six, while the Hagerstown Junior College Hawks are the number three seeds.

Black Belt Club Inducts Newman

Geoffrey Newman, Grantsville, was recently inducted into the National Black Belt Club. He currently holds a green advanced belt at his academy.

The recommendation for membership was given by his karate instructors at National Academy Karate Systems in LaVale. He studies under Master Kim Llewellyn, 6th degree black belt, and instructor Jim Llewellyn, 2nd degree black belt.

Master Kim explained the reasons for recommending Newman. "We are extremely proud and honored to have Geoffrey at our academy. He has the commitment and determination to reach his goal of black belt. Geoffrey was selected for this prestigious honor by having a black belt attitude of positive self image," he said.

He also described Newman's "never quit" attitudes and said he never sees himself as better than another student. "It is a pleasure to work with such a fine young man. He makes a wonderful role model for the younger students at my school," Kim stated.

Geoffrey has been involved in several competitions and recently received first place for breaking boards and second place in sparring. He also enjoys working with instructor Jim in kick boxing and weapons.

Newman is in the seventh grade at Northern Middle School and is also interested in football, soccer, and basketball. He is the son of Lynn and Carol Newman.

I would like to give special thanks to the following:

Dr. Charles Walch and Dr. Thomas Johnson. All the CICU nurses at Garrett Memorial Hospital, especially Bethany Browning, who comforted us during a long night, and all the subacute nurses who took time to see my dad, Ralph Rugh, daily while my mother was in CICU.

The support and care of the Garrett County Home Health Care: Marina Getz, Linda Cooper and Janet Mosser.

Rev. Samuel Wachter, who prayed, comforted us and went the extra mile for our family. All the members of the Northern Rescue Squad, who treated my mother with love and dignity.

And to our special friends at Arrowhead, Dave Uphold and Greig Johnson, who always took the time to see that she was made to feel SPECIAL.

My undying love and thanks to our family but especially to Kathy and Bill Peterson, who had taken my mom and dad into their home over the past year and overseen their care with love.

Grant Awarded

elementary school there. Currently the program is housed on the second floor of the community building, but Yoder said there are building code problems at that location and a new area is needed. Construction of the new site is to take place between April and September.

The GCCAC is currently working to expand the services available at the Flowery Vale Senior Center in Accident, including adult day care and other programs. Yoder said that some people from the Accident community were concerned that the use of the building might be curtailed by these expansions, but he assured the commissioners that this would not be the case.

"We want to meet with the community and explain the programs to help dispel any concern that might be out there," he said.

Yoder also told the commissioners that he will be interviewing individuals next week for the job of director of the micro-business project.

Sanitary Commission

Wendell Beitzel, administrator of the sanitary commission, said that the county's sewer and water comprehensive plan was finished last week despite "some turbulence in that process." The plan will now be submitted to the state authorities for their approval, he said.

He announced that the position on the sanitary commission previously held by E. Lawrence Groves has been filled by David Maust, who attended his first meeting last week.

Beitzel discussed the recently announced grant funding for a water system in Deer Park and stated that he wishes to meet with the community soon.

"Talking with the residents there is our first priority," he said. "We want to make sure everyone knows what the plan is before anything is actually done." He said the first gathering with the community is slated for March 9 at 7 p.m. in the Deer Park fire hall. "This will be for information purposes only. We want to make sure the community is supportive of this."

Another meeting announced by Beitzel will be held at the Bittinger fire hall on March 3 at 7 p.m. This is to discuss the construction of a sewer system in Jennings.

He also mentioned that the potential of flooding at the Friendsville water treatment plant remains a problem and that his office is working to correct it.

Health Department

Dr. Rex Archer, the county's health officer, informed the commissioners that because of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, venipuncture (taking blood) no longer qualifies as a "skilled service" under the Medicare home health benefit. This legislation is being challenged by several elected officials, as it could bring about dramatic changes in home health care.

However, Archer was adamant that rumors concerning the discontinuation of home health are inaccurate.

"The Garrett County Health Department's Home Health Agency has no intention of discontinuing home care services," he said. The change does not mean that clients who require venipuncture will be discharged from home health; only that the staff will be examining each client's needs and will be consulting with the Medicare intermediary, health care providers, physicians, clients, and families before clients are discharged. With a physician's approval, persons can be re-evaluated to be re-admitted to skilled home care services, which would be billable to Medicare.

Archer said the state's rural communities will suffer the most from this legislation, as many live far away from the hospital and may be bedridden as well. He said efforts are underway to change the new law.

Persons who have questions about home health care may call director Linda Moe, R.N., at 301-334-8113 or 301-895-3112.

Education Board

Wendell Teets, superintendent of Garrett County Schools, told the commissioners that the allotted five snow days have now been used, as well as one more. The students will be required to make up the sixth day, either over the Easter holiday or at the end of the year. The decision is to be made by the school board, Teets said.

The superintendent said that an open house at the new Yough Glades Elementary School will be held some time in April and that more information will be released as the time approaches.

Teets also noted that the long-awaited connection corridor project at Southern High School will be done "in house" by two local contractors whose bids were within the board's budget. They hope to start on March 23 and finish in mid-April.

Landfill

Rodney Glotfelty, director of the office of recycling and solid waste, reminded the commissioners that Tire Amnesty Day is slated in the county on April 25, during which residents (only) will be permitted to bring up to 10 tires to the landfill or to the Grantsville collection site. There will be no fees that day.

"We hope this will help keep people from disposing of them improperly," Glotfelty said. He added that WKHJ will be broadcasting from the sites that day to help publicize the event.

He said there are no plans to make this an annual event.

Economic Development

James Hinebaugh, director of the economic development office, told the commissioners that Simon Pearce, the new owner of the facility that previously housed Bausch & Lomb, was in the county last week to begin the process of hiring a plant manager and other supervisory individuals. Hinebaugh said Pearce plans to purchase a permanent residence in Garrett County to accommodate him and other members of his staff during their stays in the county.

He also announced that a new marketing videotape, done by McHenry resident Glenn Tolbert, has been completed and is available for viewing at his office.

Further coverage of the staff meeting will be published in next week's issue of The Republican.

ation will be given to children who are referred by outside agencies, who have emergency and health situations, or who have home and family circumstances which have had an impact on the child's ability to learn.

During the month of March parents/guardians will be asked to complete a Notification of Interest Form, which will be published in The Republican. It will also be available through the schools.

"A Prekindergarten Program Questionnaire will be given to all parents expressing an interest in registering their children," Dr. McCartney said.

Questionnaires which will gather information per-taining to automatic and priority eligibility will then be reviewed and acceptance determined. "Students who are eligible and who reside in the school attendance area will be selected in order of receipt of the questionnaires, until the capacity of 20 students per classroom is reached," she stated.

Should vacancies remain after this procedure has been followed, out-of-area students will then be considered according to the guidelines. No transportation will be provided for these children.

"It is important that any parent interested in the prekindergarten program complete a questionnaire, Dr. McCartney emphasized. She also stressed the timeliness of submission of applications. "The order of receipt of the completed questionnaire will be the determining factor in enrolling students, should additional spaces be available," she concluded.

The EEEP program has been offered in by the Garrett County Board of Education since 1979 and is currently provided at Accident, Friendsville, Route 40, and Yough Glades elementary schools.

Anyone wishing more information on the prekindergarten program may contact Dr. McCartney's office at 301-334-8948.

Special Ed. Class At NMS Reviews Events

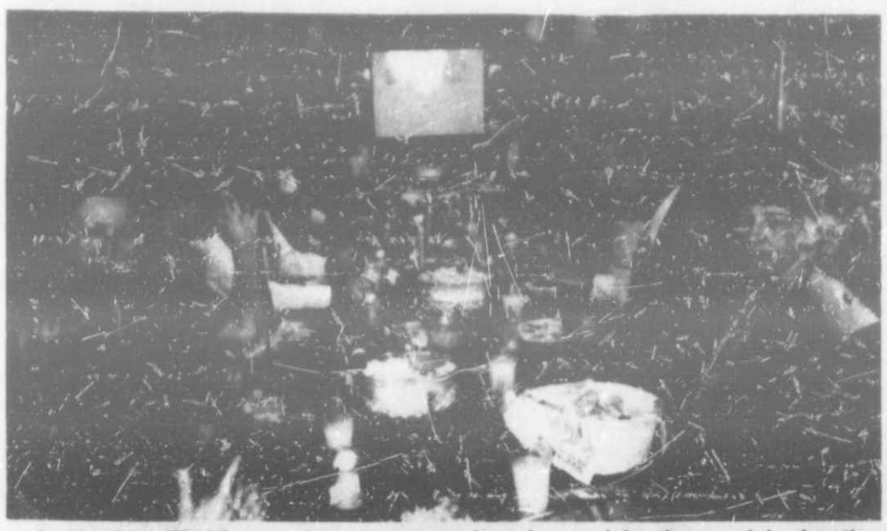
The special education class at Northern Middle School recently took time to look back on success projects undertaken during the first part of the school year.

The teachers provided challenging activities in which the students learned and practiced skills. Among these activities were two feasts that the students planned, prepared, and served.

Under the direction of Lisa Carr, teacher, Nancy Friend, assistant teacher, and Sheila Lewis, part-time assistant, the students focused on major holidays, Thanksgiving and Christmas, for their projects.

The teachers presented history lessons, writing assignments, and exercises in social manners that centered around each of these occasions. The feasts offered opportunities for menu planning, invitation writing, comparing food prices, estimating the amount of food to serve, and cleaning and decorating for the festivities.

"The students spent many weeks preparing for these events," Carr said. As part of the education process, speakers from the community came to address the students on subjects related to the projects on which they were working.



A HOLIDAY FEAST was planned, prepared, and served by the special education class at Northern Middle School. The guests of honor at the banquet, in the photo above, were teachers and administrators from the board of education. Two such special events were held during the first semester. At the Christmas feast, Santa, student Jesse Warnick, was on hand. In the photo below, teacher John Helmick tried to persuade Santa that he has been good. Jim Bittinger looks on in amusement.

Lisa Bonar, Accident sales director for Pampered Chef, taught the students to prepare vegetable trays, core apples, and make dips.

Judy Watson, a waitress from Uno's Restaurant, taught the students proper serving techniques.

Guests to the banquets were escorted to their seats, welcoming speeches were given, and the meals, drinks, and desserts were served. All tasks were performed by the students.

"We have a really large class this year, and we had to rely on the students to organize and complete their own tasks individually. They all did an excellent job," Carr said.

The banquets were attended by staff and school administration. The activities and related studies undertaken during the first half of the school were very successful, Carr said.

30 POUNDS OF POTATOES were peeled for one of the banquet meals prepared by the special education students at Northern Middle School. Jarry Cosner and Jason Preston, in the photo above, were on K.P. for the one of the feasts that took place during the first semester. All those tubers were then cooked, mashed, and served along with turkey. Denise Witt and Joyce Lapp, pictured below, cooked then sliced the turkey and arranged it on a serving platter. Other students served the sumptuous the meals to the guests.

United Way Has Annual Meetings, Elects Directors

County United Way Inc. recently held annual meetings of the corporation and the board of directors of the corporation.

Each area individual, firm, association, or corporation who makes a contribution to the County United Way annual fund-raising campaign is a member of the County United Way Corporation. At its annual meeting, the corporation elects members of the board of directors.

Elected to three-year terms on the board were John Balch, Carol Clulee, Mariah Cohen, Janice Felipa, John Felten, Michael Fetchero, Daniel Howell, Michael Kennedy, Regis Larkin, Kim Leonard, Chris Lockard, Richard McKenzie, Dr. William Mark, Richard Paulman, Joseph Prado, Eric Williams, and Marc Zanger. They join 38 other board members who were elected in the two previous years.

The board of directors names an executive committee to govern the County United Way day-to-day operations. Kathryn Brailer, Ron Coleman, Kathy Getty, Dan Green, Mike Heagle, Bob Heltzel, Betsey Hurwitz-Schwab, Kim Leonard, Chris Lockard, Dick Paulman, Joe Prado, Howard Spatz, and Marc Zanger were elected to this committee.

Speaking at the meeting of the board of directors, John Turner, chairman of the Allocations Committee, reported, "Identified social issues will be addressed by local human services organizations in 1998 through programs funded by the County United Way. Thus, people who give financial support to the County United Way become part of the solution to problems in our community."

Campaign Chairwoman Barbara Roque announced that her committees have reached 85% of their $750,000 goal. She said she is confident that the goal will be reached when everyone who gave to the 1996-97 fund-drive contributes to the 1997-98 effort. "This year, 137 new donors have contributed more than $27,000 to the campaign. Any pledge made by April 30 will be counted toward the current campaign," she said.

Human services funded by County United Way in Garrett County are provided by the American Red Cross, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Boy Scouts of America, Burlington United Methodist Family Services, Frostburg Village Adult Day Services, Garrett County Lighthouse, The Salvation Army, Western Maryland Catholic Charities, and Western Maryland Food Bank.

Marylanders Spend Millions On Entertainment

"The sinking of the Titanic was one of the great tragedies of the century, but the movie 'Titanic' is one of the largest moneymakers in history, and we're seeing its impact on entertainment spending," said State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein. Marylanders spent $18.8 million on movie tickets during the second quarter of fiscal year 1998 (October, November, and December 1997), a 10.4% increase over the same period last year, reflecting the box-office success of "Titanic" and other successful movies released in time for the holidays.

Marylanders spent a total of more than $135.3 million on taxable entertainment during the October-December 1997 period, about 1.3% less than during the same period of the previous year. The slight decrease in entertainment spending was mainly because of timing differences in reports filed by some businesses.

Almost all major entertainment categories showed increases in spending. Golfers took advantage of the mild winter weather and spent more than $19 million on golf greens fees and cart rentals, up by 21.5% over the same period a year ago. Spending at miniature golf and driving ranges held steady, compared to the previous fiscal year at about $2.2 million. Spending for boat rides and excursions increased by 16.9%, to more than $3.8 million.

Spending on the types of indoor activities traditionally popular in the colder months also posted increases. Arcades benefited from a 13.4% increase in spending for coin-operated amusement devices, to $12.3 million.

Statewide spending for skating and skate shoe rentals also increased by 28.4%, to $1.3 million. The shows and exhibits category posted a decline of 6.8%, to $5.6 million. Spending for athletic facilities and equipment rentals also decreased by 11.7%, to $4.1 million.

"The State Comptroller's Office collects the admissions and amusement tax at rates set by local officials and returns the money to Maryland's counties, cities, and towns each quarter," Goldstein said. The comptroller noted that individual payments totaling $9,825,967 are on their way to local governments and the Maryland Stadium Authority for their share of admissions and amusement tax receipts.

For the first six months of fiscal year 1998, local governments and the Maryland Stadium Authority have received $23.2 million in admissions and amusement tax revenue, 11.8% more than for the same period of the previous fiscal year. The admissions and amusement tax revenues returned to Garrett County in the second quarter of the present fiscal year was $40,643, bringing the total for the first half of the year to $164,345.

Cumberland MVA Office Observing First 10 Years

This week the Maryland Motor Vehicle Administration (MVA) Cumberland office is celebrating 10 years of being in business. Moving from LaVale's Braddock Square Shopping Center location in February 1988, the present 12,000 square foot MVA facility on Winchester Road houses Maryland's first statewide communications system as well as a full service branch office serving Allegany and Garrett county residents.

The Cumberland MVA provides full-service transactions including driver licensing, vehicle registration, dealer licensing, and motor vehicle-related investigations. Approximately 7,000 customer transactions are processed monthly. The Cumberland MVA also oversees a satellite office in Oakland from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays, which provides driver licensing services, title services, and license plate drop-off.

The MVA communications center or Customer Service Center (CSC) receives about 6,500 telephone calls a day relating to any and all MVA-related topics.

The Cumberland MVA complex is managed by Frostburg native Lenna Morgan and her assistant manager, Jennie Evans, a Lonaconing native.

"People are surprised to know that when they dial that 800 toll-free number from anywhere in Maryland, that they are actually calling us here in Cumberland," said Ms. Morgan. "We have had some interesting callers in the last 10 years. We're lucky to have such a great staff at both the CSC and the branch to give our customers the best service possible."

The Cumberland MVA is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and on Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to noon for driver services only. Customers may call the Customer Service Center toll free at 1-800-950-IMVA from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday and on Saturday from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

AS GOOD AS IT GETS

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 2:18

A few decades ago, a person with Obsessive/Compulsive Disorder might have just been called "weird." But now in the age of Prozac and Anafranil, those whose inner demons consist of germs and domestic rituals can live a more or less normal life. If they take their pills.

But romance novelist Melvin Udall (Jack Nicholson) is not taking his pills, so he must wash his hands after they've come in contact with--well, anything. He must lock his door three times in quick succession. He must eat breakfast at the same diner every day, at the same table, with his plastic cutlery. And he must always have the same waitress: Carol Connelly (Helen Hunt).

Carol is a single mother, scraping by on a waitress's salary, living with her mother and her asthmatic son Spencer (Jesse James). This puts a serious hamper on her love life, but she has little choice: Spencer is prone to severe attacks that keep mom deep in the doctor bills.

Melvin does his best to avoid his gay artist neighbor Simon Bishop (Greg Kinnear), and Simon's dog Verdell (Jill). In fact, he's such a misanthrope, he generally tries to avoid everyone. But when Simon is robbed and beaten by some thugs and must stay in the hospital for a while, Melvin is saddled with taking care of the beloved pooch. To a person with OCD, this is like a sledgehammer through the picture window of his life.

So begins the story of three people who have been dealt some of life's hardest blows. We gradually learn that all three have created so many barriers they have difficulty dealing with anyone. But they all must help each other, and all the layers of protection must come off before they can do so. The rich relationships between them are what make this movie so enjoyable. Rarely have I seen Hunt so engaging; she's created a real 3-D character here, unlike that of Twister (1996). Kinnear's portrayal of depression is genuine--it is easy to see why Simon is unable to create when his mounting bills lead toward eviction and even his dog prefers Melvin now.

But Nicholson is the master craftsman of this movie. His characterization of Melvin is exquisitely subtle; he is not over the edge this time. He just needs to have his life in the proper order, and tries desperately to deal when it is turned upside down. He needs love like all of us, but destroys every chance he gets with his abusive manner. And the risks he takes may seem small to those who don't suffer from OCD, but anyone who has been around someone with that ailment can see the depth of his struggle. Watching him and Hunt trying to reach out to each other gives a palpable sense of their mutual need.

Director James L. Brooks must be credited for creating the depth of these interpersonal relationships, though rumor has it Nicholson had a large hand in the direction. Whoever is responsible, it makes for an enjoyable 2+ hours; humorous, romantic, personal. ★★★★

SENSELESS

Rated R - Running time: 1:28

Marlon Wayans and David Spade must feel really good right now. In this period of Oscar nominations when some of the best films of last year are still in theaters, they're starring in the first really terrible film of 1998. The strange thing is that both of these actors are very talented and have forged strong reputations for comedy on television. But both are wasted on this tripe, and one wonders why they would even sign on to such a project: what are they, strapped for cash?

The plot of Senseless, penned by Greg Erb and Craig Mazin, is thus: Economics major Darryl Witherspoon (Wayans) needs cash, and though he's dedicated, his grades at Stratford University are not good enough to get him the coveted Assistant Analyst job at the highbrow investment firm of Smythe Bates. His snotty, spoiled classmate Scott Butler (Spade) seems a shoo-in for the position, since his dad is well-connected with the firm.

Darryl sees an ad for a scientific study involving an experimental drug, and jumps at the chance to be a guinea pig for money. The job pays $3,000, and all he has to do is inject this green stuff into his gluteus. The drug is supposed to enhance all five of his senses, and despite some uncomfortable side effects, it does just that. Suddenly Darryl has super hearing, super vision, super smell, etc., etc. Can anyone guess what happens? I'll give you five bucks if you can't figure it out.

Sorry, you lose: predictably, he uses his super senses to impress the powers that be, get the job, best the brat, and even get the girl: a too-classy-for-this-movie young co-ed named Janice (Tamara Taylor). But of course he gets greedy and overdoses, and that's what gets him in trouble. The side effects go into overdrive and threaten to blow his cover, and his trendy roommate Tim (Matthew Lillard) thinks he's shooting heroin and seeks professional help, further buggering up Darryl's plans.

There must be some sweat shop in Hollywood where illegal immigrants are paid less than minimum wage to crank out bad scripts in order to fill out the season between the real movies. Despite a rather humorous characterization by Lillard and a few clever cracks by Spade, there is little here to inspire even a chuckle. Wayans's overdone physical comedy is energetic, but seldom rises above bathroom humor and facial contortions. This is not helped by director Penelope Spheeris. Bits that are funny for a few seconds are played until we are thinking, "Okay, okay, get on with it!" And the sappy relationship between Darryl and Janice, and also between him and his single mother (Esther Scott) is laid on with a trowel.

Spade seems out to lunch in this movie, like he's just going through the motions. I would attribute it to the loss of his best friend Chris Farley, but this movie was shot before Farley died. Maybe he just realized too late what a turkey he was involved in. ★

Local Student Lands Role In WVU Production

The Division of Theatre and Dance at West Virginia University, Morgantown, will present British playwright Tom Stoppard's "Arcadia" in the Creative Arts Center Studio Theatre, and the cast includes a Garrett County student.

Matthew Sincell, a 1997 graduate of Southern High School and now a freshman theatre major at WVU, earned the role of Gus/Augustus in the production, which will open next Wednesday, March 4, and be presented 10 times, with seven evening performances and three matinees.

Sincell, who is the son of Don and Suzie Sincell, Mtn. Lake Park, performed in a number of productions in high school, and had major roles in the Ecumenical Youth Ministry presentations of "Godspell" and "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat," plus various roles in productions by the Garrett Choral Society since the age of 20 months. A theatre scholarship student at WVU, he is the only freshman to land a role in "Arcadia."

The drama is set in an English estate, and the time period moves back and forth from 1809 to the present. In 1809, as the Arcadian landscape is being transformed into a Gothic style, 13-year-old Lady Thomasina and her tutor delve into intellectual and romantic issues of the day between interruptions from the estate's varied occupants. The present-day scenes depict family descendants and scholars who are researching the happenings of the estate in 1809, including a scandal involving Lord Byron.

Performances are slated for March 4, 5, 6, 18, 19, 20, and 21, all at 7:30 p.m., and March 7, 21, and 22 at 2 p.m. Tickets are $10 for adults and may be purchased by calling 304-293-SHOW (7469).

The program of undergraduate instruction of the WVU Division of Theatre and Dance, in which there are approximately 150 students enrolled, is rated among the most outstanding in the United States.

Program Training B&L Workers For New Employment

Since the closing of the Oakland Bausch & Lomb plant, the Western Maryland Consortium has provided retraining services to more than 400 former employees.

These individuals were eligible for services funded through the Trade Act of 1974 from the U.S. Department of Labor to the state of Maryland. This fund was established to assist workers whose employment is adversely affected by increased foreign imports.

M. Sue Shockey, supervisor of the Western Maryland Consortium, explained funding for training. "The laid-off workers are entitled to retraining costs up to $15,000 each to cover the cost of tuition, books, and fees, while collecting unemployment," she said.

When the unemployment payment period expires, those former employees who are enrolled in an approved training program become eligible for other funds. Trade Adjustment Allowances (TRA) will be paid to those in training for an additional period of time.

"Many workers have opted to take advantage of the training opportunity to upgrade their skills," Shockey noted. Colleges, vocational schools, and private providers are listed as some of the sources of skills training for the former employees.

Training is the first step in a process that Shockey described. "The final step will be to get the newly trained workers back into the job market, which may require relocation for many people," she said.

Of those who have completed the retraining program, some are moving into the local workforce and others are moving from the area to begin new jobs, she explained.

charge for obituaries, realizing that it would be a financial burden for many in our community. We consider our obituaries as news, and thus we use proper rules of journalism in writing/editing them. Such rules are thrown out the window by the Times-News since the space for their obits is "sold" to the families, and the payor can decide exactly how it is written and what is included.

Because of space limitations, we also have to set some guidelines for just how much information we can publish. One of those is that we typically do not publish the names of grandchildren of the deceased. In your case, it was only one grandchild. But what about those persons who are survived by 30 grandchildren? How could we fairly make an exception? About the only time we make an exception is if the surviving grandchild is the only "connection" the deceased has to Garrett County.

And, counter to your allegations about the obits of my "family and friends," the same "blue pencil" (actually we use red pens) was applied in the obituary of my grandmother, Elsie Sincell, who died last month. The names of her seven grandchildren were not published, other than that of yours truly, and that was only to make a connection to her career here at the newspaper. Frankly, since our newspaper is privately owned, we could choose to be as arbitrary as we want. But we try hard to treat everyone — including "family and friends" — equally when it comes to news coverage in our paper.

Editor

P.S. We do appreciate the fact that you have been a subscriber for over 30 years, but that fact alone (even if it were 50 years or 100 years) has not one thing to do with how we write/edit/present the news of Garrett County.

To the Editor:

I have to say that when I see "down with the arts" in print as I did in the February 19 Letters to the Editor it gets my back up, because art, drama, music, and literature make up most of my interest in life. I'm not sure if the writer of the letter was downing the arts in general or only the idea of using his tax dollars to fund artistic endeavors in Garrett County.

To dismiss the arts as unnecessary would mean the lives of Mark Twain, Leonardo da Vinci, George Bernard Shaw, Mozart, Robert Frost, and Shakespeare were useless and had no important impact on the world. Locally it would mean that hearing a performance of The Messiah, witnessing a production about the struggle of a small town in Garrett County, or seeing the world through the eyes of someone you may live near is not moving, inspiring, and gives no hope. Of the former, I believe their impact on the world is beyond measure, and of the latter, they have all happened here. Ask the audience at St. Peter's, the town of Kitzmiller, and the people who come to the art galleries in Oakland, GCC, and Friendsville if their exposure to the arts was worthless.

All the local events and creative work in Garrett County cost money and time—paint, canvas, lighting, royalties, heating costs, research, scripts, hours of rehearsal, advertising, and so on. Much of the time comes from people who are trying to make a living using their creative talents. Much is from volunteers who give their creative talents for free. There is an extraordinary wealth of creativity and talent in Garrett County, but no one can afford the enormous expense of maintaining standards of quality without financial assistance. To not take advantage of the opportunity for enlightenment which exposure to our local artists, actors, writers, directors, poets, and so can provide would be a pitiful waste. It would be like trying to live on bread and tap water. We would probably get through life, but what would be the use, and what did we miss?

I would like to see local tax money used to support the arts because I simply want more arts opportunity here, especially for children. More and more studies are showing that children learn math faster and more clearly when they have been exposed to music and art. The arts promote self-esteem and give a sense of accomplishment. Actors play well together, generally, and discipline is something we all benefit from. The more useful activities we have for youth, the less time they spend in less worthwhile pursuits (such as vandalism, joy riding and other costly extravagances that cost us money in taxes and insurance). I would also presume that creating opportunities for the arts creates jobs and brings in tourist dollars—dollars that slow down and enjoy our way of life, not travel through it at 80 miles per hour, making a drug run from Florida to Buffalo.

E.B. White once wrote that one of our greatest treasures as Americans is our wide difference of opinion. When thoughts go to wide extremes we can be reasonably sure that the truth lies somewhere between them and hasn't been missed. Let us try to keep an open mind.

Yours,
Richard Hill

Dear Mr. Hill,

Hear, hear! Great letter! Thank you!

To the Editor:

Why do people get dogs and cats and let them starve?

My boyfriend was helping a friend move when he saw a filthy, starving dog in the friend s backyard.

This female dog isn't even a year and a half old, she had four puppies with her, no food or water was around and it looked like she hadn't been fed for weeks. The friend was going to take the puppies and leave the female dog where she was with no one to tend to her.

My boyfriend decided to take the female dog with him. You couldn't tell what breed she was or even what color; he thought she was a hound. He took her home and bathed her three times and found out she was a gorgeous Dalmatian. He brought her to me because I can't stand for anything to starve.

She was starved and had frozen spots on her, her eyes had started to sink, and her ribs and hips where sticking out.

I called my veterinarian and told his secretary that I wanted an appointment for her to be checked out and her shots up to date. When I took her to the vet, she was getting mastitis and she had an infection.

She is a very good dog and is easily trained. I had her housetrained in three days and she gets along well with my Rottweiler and other dogs.

I just found out a couple of days ago that she originally had 13 puppies, but there were only four puppies left. I assume the other puppies died and she ate them to stay alive and to feed her other four puppies.

She will be getting spayed in three weeks because there are too many unwanted and uncared for dogs out there.

Please, to anyone who doesn't take the responsibility of feeding, watering, and getting the dog spayed or neutered serious, don't get a dog or cat or anything else. If you don't want these animals, please take them to the animal shelter. These animals have a better chance at the pound than they do tied to a box or running loose starving.

Thank you!
Lisa Davis

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to Rep. Roscoe Bartlett asked that it be published here.

Dear Congressman Bartlett:

I read, with interest, a recent article in the Oakland Republican reporting on concerns expressed by the Farm Bureau Association over the effect of federal estate taxes on the family farm. As an attorney who deals with estate planning for individuals here in Western Maryland, as well as a part-time farmer involved in sustainable agriculture, I share the opinions expressed by the Farm Bureau. In planning for passing a viable farming operation to the next generation, the imposition of death taxes can very often lead to the end of a sustainable small farm business. Very often the fair market value of the farm is very high on paper, and yet the farmers assets are modest in hard cash. Even under the Taxpayers Relief Act of last year, portions of working farm land will have to be sold in order to pay the death taxes.

Might I suggest a common sense solution: particularly in the case of farm land where the market value of the land as development property far exceeds its value as farm land, could the value for estate tax purposes be set at the agricultural value rather than the market value, provided that the heirs agree to maintain the farm use for at least five years after inheriting the property?

In this way, there will be an incentive to continue agricultural production on the property by the next generation, as well as preventing the forced sale of a working farm business to pay the inheritance taxes.

Very truly yours,
Robert O. Kazary

To the Editor:

I am an AmeriCorps member at Garrett Co. Community Action, Area Agency on Aging. Recently, my family was faced with the fact that our 7½-month-old son would have to have brain surgery.

When my son Dylan was born in June 1997, we knew about his condition. The doctors at Ruby Mem. Hospital did follow-ups and MRIs every month, noting that not only was the cyst growing in size, but also number. The one cyst had turned into "21." They decided that he needed surgery as soon as possible.

My son had surgery on January 23. The surgeon was able to penetrate "20" of the cysts! Dylan was in intensive care for four days, having some complications with loss of blood and seizures. Then he was placed into the Step-down Unit for three days, where he was still having trouble with vomiting. However, the doctors felt it was all right to send him home. I took Dylan home on a Friday evening and he was back in the hospital on Monday for chronic vomiting. Furthermore, while he was in the hospital, his sutures were removed from his head and one was not completely healed. I noticed that there was fluid draining out of the hole and I told the nurse. The next thing I know, doctors are swarming around my baby, and I am pushed out of the way, not knowing what was going on. They stitched the hole back up, but through that evening Dylan became fevered and disoriented. The doctors did a blood test. The result — there was bacteria in his blood. Then the doctors did a spinal tap and the results were the same. Dylan had bacteria in his cerebral fluid, indicating infection in his brain. The doctors, as well as my husband and I, were very concerned that this was going to escalate into spinal meningitis. However, because the doctors were quick, they were able to find an antibiotic to treat it. Dylan stayed in the hospital for another four days and was released. He is now a happy little boy again. The doctors are not yet sure about what they are going to do with the one remaining cyst.

This has been a tremendous obstacle that my family and I have overcome. I just wanted to thank everyone who prayed for Dylan. I know that the Lord was taking care of him.

I also want to thank my fellow AmeriCorps members, who constantly sent cards and were calling to give words of encouragement and support. Thank you all very much. I am proud to say that I am an AmeriCorps member.

Sincerely,
Twila McGee

David Buechner Will Perform At Frostburg State

As part of the Cultural Events Series, Frostburg State University will present pianist David Buechner at 8 p.m. Saturday, March 7, in the FSU Performing Arts Center Pealer Recital Hall.

According to Billboard magazine, "Buechner is a pianist of stature.... His playing is technically immaculate, nothing appears forced and all seems dedicated to serving purely musical purposes." He is the highest ranking prize winner of the 1986 International Tchaikovsky Competition, and in 1994 his recording of solo works by George Gershwin was selected as "Record of the Year" by Stereophile magazine.

Buechner has performed with most of America's major orchestras, including the New York Philharmonic, the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Cleveland Orchestra, and the National Symphony in Washington, D.C. He has played throughout Europe and Asia, and with such foreign orchestras as the Japan Philharmonic, the City of Birmingham Symphony Orchestra (England), and the Orquesta Sinfonica de Castilla y Leon (Spain). He is also on the faculties of both the Manhattan School of Music and New York University.

Saturday's performance will include music from Mozart, Rozsa, Chopin, and Gershwin. Tickets for this performance are available in the FSU Lane Center or by calling 301-687-4411.

In addition to Saturday's event, Buechner will present free "Cartoons in Concert" on Thursday, March 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the PAC Pealer Recital Hall. In this innovative program Buechner examines the way in which piano has been incorporated into both movies and cartoons. "I have been personally fascinated by motion pictures since I was a small child and it has been a delight for me in recent years to find ways of incorporating film and film music into recital and concert programs," he said.

During the "Cartoon" recitals, which have been greeted with much acclaim as major contributors to educational family programming, Buechner regularly performs the works of famous film composers such as Miklos Rozsa.

The FSU Cultural Events Series is being funded by the Peggy and Yale Gordon Trust. The 1997-1998 season is funded in part by the Maryland State Arts Council and is presented in association with WFWM (91.9). For further information on this event, persons may call 301-687-7597.

Persons with disabilities may request accommodations through the ADA Compliance Office, FSU Library Room 228, 301-687-4102, or TDD 301-687-7955.

Snyder Recipient Of Hospital's Monthly Award

Susan Snyder was named the Employees' Choice Award winner for the month of February at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she has been working as a physical therapy aide for the past four years.

"Susan is very deserving of this award," said Teresa Reynolds, PT, director of physical therapy services at Garrett Memorial. "We're so fortunate to have Susan in the physical therapy department. She cares very much about our patients and their loved ones and goes out of her way to make their visit comfortable and pleasant. She also works diligently to provide professional assistance to other members of the physical therapy staff."

Petrocelli To Present Talk At Frostburg State

Motivational speaker Bobby Petrocelli will present an inspirational talk to the Frostburg State University community at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, March 18, in the Lane Center Multi-Use Room. The event is free and open to the public.

Petrocelli empowers and encourages his audiences as he shares his life story. In his book Triumph Over Tragedy, Petrocelli tells of his personal loss and how he bounced back. His accounts of strength, faith, and love have been featured in many magazines, television specials, and radio programs. "His internationally renown messages of hope are addressed with feelings of warmth in an enthusiastic, energetic, and humorous way," stated an FSU spokesperson.

In the past three years, Petrocelli has traveled from Alaska to Bermuda along with having presented his program in 36 states and to over 300,000 people.

The event is sponsored by BURG, a peer education network. For more information, persons may contact the FSU SAFE Office at 301-687-4761.

Persons may request special accommodations through the ADA Compliance Office, FSU Library Room 228, 301-687-4102, TDD 301-687-7955.

Savvy Shoppers Help Sales, Use Tax Revenues

"January 1998 sales and use tax revenue, reflecting December 1997 sales, totaled $236.7 million, 5.4% more than the same month last year and a record amount for any one month's sales tax revenue," said Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein. "Much of that growth can be attributed to bargain-hunters taking advantage of post-holiday sales."

Total sales tax revenues generated by retail sales made in November and December, the two months considered the traditional holiday shopping period, totaled $413.9 million, up 3.7% from the $399.1 million generated in the same two months during the previous fiscal year.

Sales of computers and other consumer-related categories, including apparel, taxable food and beverages, and general merchandise, made during the two-month period produced $306.2 million in sales and use tax receipts. "That was 3.4% more than the $296 million produced by these categories during the same two months of the previous fiscal year. It's also slightly ahead of the national growth rate of 3.3% in non-auto retail sales for the same two months," the comptroller said.

"The solid performance in those categories was due largely to a growth of 4.6% in revenues generated by December sales, compared to 1.8% in those generated by November sales. This is in contrast to the trend we saw last year, when early bird shoppers had a greater impact on sales tax receipts," Goldstein said.

"This year, merchants reported that shoppers were more apt to wait until the last minute to shop for gifts or to spend more heavily on after-Christmas sales.

"Revenues generated by computer sales in November and December were especially strong, posting a 25% increase over the same two months of the previous fiscal year," the comptroller said, "as consumers and businesses alike spent on hardware, new software applications, and Internet and multimedia services," he said.

Revenues from taxable food and beverages sold in December 1997 produced $39.3 million, up 6% from the same month the previous year. "The restaurant categories showed growth of 8.8%, probably reflecting the impact of holiday crowds eating meals while they were shopping and traditional catered holiday parties," Goldstein said.

December activity in construction-related categories produced $25 million, up 9.4% from the same month of the previous year. "Mild winter weather contributed to healthy growth as construction continued largely uninterrupted," he said.

In the first six months of fiscal year 1998, sales and use tax revenue totaled $1.12 billion, an increase of 3.2% over the same period of the previous fiscal year. After accounting for the repeal of the "snack tax," revenue growth is close to 4%. The actual collections during the first six months of fiscal year 1998 are within one-hundredth of one percent of estimates.

Local Man Hired As Inspector For Bi-County Area

The Middle Department Inspection Agency Inc. (MDIA) announced recently that a Garrett County resident has been hired as the new electrical and plumbing inspector for Garrett and Allegany counties, following the death of inspector John Harper.

Charles B. "Chuck" Friend, Pleasant Valley, who was a private contractor in the electrical and plumbing business for 24 years, has been named to the position.

The MDIA has been providing inspections in Western Maryland for over 30 years; however, with Friend being available locally, inspection needs will be met much quicker than before. "Previously, inspections were done in Garrett County only on Wednesdays," Friend said, "but now I'm available five days a week."

While Friend's base will still be the MDIA office in Cumberland, he has set up a satellite office in his home that is equipped with an answering machine and a fax machine (301-334-2376). He can also be accessed at the Cumberland office, toll-free, at 1-888-937-6342, or reached there by fax at 301-759-6538. He is in the Cumberland office weekday mornings from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m.

"Since starting with MDIA, I've enjoyed meeting and inspecting for contractors and homeowners in Garrett County," Friend said. "I'm here to take care of their inspection needs, and I look forward to continuing my good working rapport with the many fine contractors in the area, most of whom I've know for many years."

ates of the MLS program can gain certification to provide transcription services for English-speaking physicians and institutions from around the world. Although the program requires nine months of intensive full-time study, Bishop said funding options were being explored to provide support for families who cannot afford to lose income from one of its members during future MLS programs.

Following the GCC demonstrations, the Garrett Information Center (GIC) web page was reviewed by its coordinator, Lucia Ayers. GIC illustrates "what is happening in Garrett County." Ayers stated, adding that the center is "one-stop shopping for information needs for children, youth, and families." Ayers also unveiled collaborative plans to open a multi-site information referral service. Brimming with enthusiasm, Ayers told the gathering "I can show you how to create a web page in no time."

In addition to educational and agency applications, local businesses strive to make use of web page technology, as illustrated by Derek Versteegen, communications manager at The Wisp Four Seasons Resort. In pointing out that the Internet provided an international venue to the Garrett County vacation spot, Versteegen recounted informational requests he had received via e-mail from Africa, France, and England. "We received as many as 1,700 hits (on Wisp's web page) a day during the Christmas holidays," Versteegen said, "and on an average we get 500-700 hits during the peak season." Versteegen added that he would be happy to field questions and provide assistance to any businesses in the area interested in starting an advertising/information campaign online.

Note: Coverage of the Garrett Technology Futures Forum will conclude next week with a summary of the remarks of the keynote speaker, Karl Damanda, assistant director of Maryland's Office of Information Technology. A sampling of the participants' reactions and their ideas for future applications of information technology in Garrett County will also be included.

Mahoney Joins Sales Staff Of Coldwell Banker

Cynthia L. Mahoney has affiliated with Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty in McHenry as a full-time real estate sales associate. "We welcome Cindy back to Garrett County," said Robert Huebner, the firm's broker and co-owner. "We are delighted that she has made the decision to pursue real estate sales as a full-time profession. I know from our past affiliation with her that Cindy will provide extremely capable and conscientious service to her customers and clients, and that she will be a true asset to our organization."

Mahoney recently completed the required coursework and testing in order to be licensed as a real estate salesperson in Maryland. While studying for examinations, she worked as a secretary and receptionist at Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty. "While working in the front office, I've had the opportunity to become reacquainted with the real estate market at Deep Creek Lake and in Garrett County," said Mahoney.

"I've also purchased a home here," she commented, "which has given me a firsthand insight into the questions and concerns of a customer. I'm excited to be back in the business, and I'm ready to work."

Mahoney has recently returned to Garrett County from Myrtle Beach, S.C., where she spent four and a half years in retail management and two years in the hotel tourism industry. She lived in Garrett County from 1979 through 1991, employed as a Chapter I home school aide and then as a special education teaching assistant for the Garrett County Board of Education. She was also a part-time sales associate for Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty before moving to South Carolina.

Sure times are tough. And cutting your advertising budget may seem like a good way to deal with the economic crunch you're experiencing.

But there's one important thing you should keep in mind: The 'hide-your-head-in-the-sand' approach only succeeds in hiding your business from customers and potential customers...until you're soon forgotten! (And wouldn't your competition love that!)

The fact is, when you cut your newspaper advertising budget thinking you'll save money, you end up cutting your best opportunity to:

- Generate customer traffic
- Improve customer awareness
- Increase sales
- And most importantly...MAKE MONEY!

Newspaper advertising helps keep your business going, no matter what the economy.

VICA Regional Skills Contest Held At SHS

The Western Region VICA (Vocational and Industrial Clubs of America) Skills USA Championships were held last recently at Southern Garrett High School.

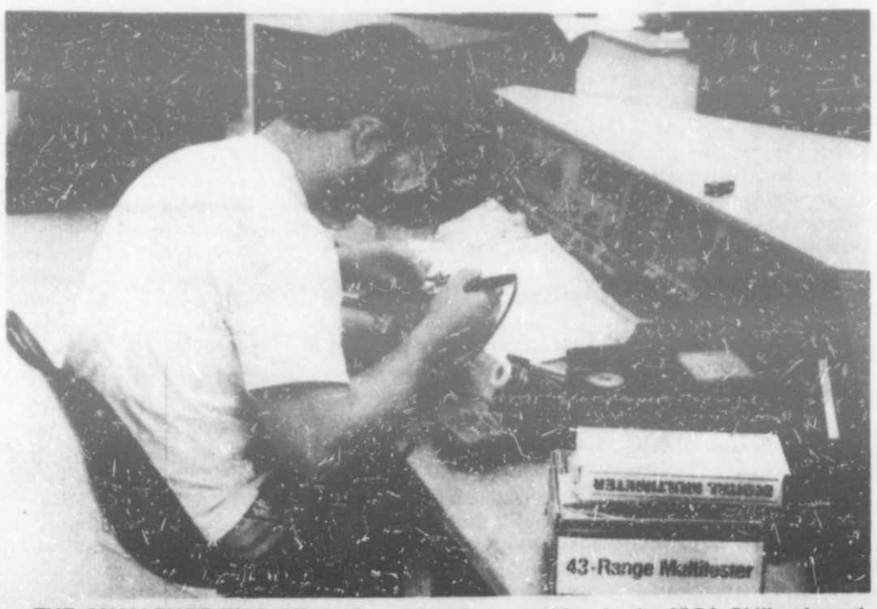
The event consisted of five contests held to determine which students qualify to participate in the state championships, which will be held in Hagerstown in April.

Five schools from the three western-most counties comprise the region. The schools included are Allegany Career and Technical Center, Washington Career and Technical Center, Frederick Career and Technical Center, and Northern and Southern Garrett high schools.

Each school is permitted to enter two students in each contest, and the top three winners in each match are advanced to the state competition.

The contests held at SHS included auto service technology, carpentry, electronics, home improvement, and welding. Each challenge was designed by owners and employees of local businesses.

The winners in each category will be eligible to join others from around the state on April 3 and 4 at the Washington County Career and Technical Center in Hagerstown.



THE CHALLENGE WAS ON as the regional competition in the VICA Skills championships got underway recently at Southern High School. Demonstrating vocational and industrial proficiency, students competed for slots at the state championships next month. Pictured here are contestants in electronics, welding, and carpentry. These are three of the five competition areas.

The winners of the regional contest placed as follows: auto service technology, first, Jason James, Southern High; second, David McGann, Allegany County; third, Aaron Cline, Southern High.

Carpentry winners were: first, Brett Brown, Frederick County; second, Kevin Sharrer, Frederick County, third, Sam Sisler, Southern High.

Electronics winners were: first, Donavan Bicker, Northern High; second, Jesse Dennicker, Northern High; third, Kenny Myers, Southern High.

Home improvement winners were: first, Scott Bowser, Northern High; second, Doug Burras, Frederick County; third, David Schoch, Southern High.

Welding winners were: first, Ronnie Bittinger, Allegany County; second Brad DeLauter, Washington County; third, Arthur Pysell, Southern High.

Westvaco Reports First Quarter Sales, Earnings

Westvaco Corporation this week reported fiscal first quarter sales and earnings from operations. Results for the period ended January 31, 1998, were reviewed, along with current business conditions during Westvaco's 110th annual meeting of shareholders.

Fiscal 1998 first quarter sales were $702 million, a 4.7 percent decrease from $736 million for the same period last year. Net income for the quarter was $32.5 million, or 32 cents per share (basic and diluted), a decrease of 8.4 percent compared to $35.5 million, or 35 cents per share (basic and diluted), reported for the first quarter of 1997.

John A. Luke Jr., chairman and chief executive officer, noted that while competitive conditions have kept pressure on earnings, positive trends exist within company businesses.

Luke said that sales are stronger for Westvaco's coated fine printing paper and saturating kraft paper used in decorative laminates. He added that market conditions are generally good for the company's unbleached paperboard used in consumer and industrial packaging and specialty chemicals used in automotive emission controls, fabric dyes, asphalt, and printing inks.

Luke said that "more challenging conditions" exist for Westvaco's bleached board and consumer packaging businesses, which presently face "very competitive" markets. He added that the company's international businesses, which had experienced sustained expansion for several years, must now contend with sharply lower economic growth in Asia and Brazil.

"We are aggressively implementing plans to deal with challenging market conditions," said Luke. "In each case, we have competitive advantages due to our differentiated products and services that deliver special values to customers. These values stem from product design and performance features which reduce costs for customers or give them other competitive advantages."

In early February, after the end of Westvaco's fiscal first quarter, hourly workers at six of the company's eight envelope plants went on strike.

"Our Envelope Division was performing well before the strike," Luke said. "This is an unfortunate—and, we hope, short-lived—break in our longstanding, very constructive relationship with unionized employees. We're currently supplying customers from facilities not affected by the strike and by operating our other six plants with supervisory personnel."

Westvaco is a major producer of paper, envelopes, packaging, and specialty chemicals. The company owns 1.5 million acres of timberlands in the United States and Brazil and has manufacturing facilities in those two countries as well as the Czech Republic. International business accounts for approximately 25 percent of Westvaco's annual sales, and the company has customers in more than 70 countries.

Academic Symposium To Be Part Of FSU Centennial Celebration

Frostburg State University will host a week-long academic symposium titled "FSU and the Future of Academe" from Monday, Mar. 9, to Friday, Mar. 13. The event is part of FSU's yearlong centennial celebration.

The first day of the symposium will feature a forum to address "What are the Responsibilities of the University to the Community?" on Monday, Mar. 9, in the campus Lane Center Multi-Use Room from 1 to 3 p.m. This topic will be discussed in reference to five areas: business, arts, natural sciences, social sciences, and education.

The discussion panel is comprised of experts from the FSU community and the local area. Community panelists include: Carol Duffus, Allegany Arts Council; Shirley Giarritta, Cumberland Theater; Robert Stephens, Garrett County Office for Children, Youth, and Families; John Kirby, Allegany County Economic Development; John Korpela, Kreative Plastics; and others. Panelists from FSU include: Dustin Davis, Rich Raesly, Kathy Powell, Hank Bullamore, Kathleen Elder, Joyce Middleton, Alice Alexander, Joe Manjone, and Peggy Dalton. There will be a reception from 3 to 4 p.m. in Lane Center Room 142 following the panel discussion.

"What is the Future of the Profession?" will be the focus on Tuesday, Mar. 10, from 4 to 5:30 p.m. in Room 218 of FSU's Dunkle Hall. Tenure and Academic Freedom Director and Associate General Secretary of American Association of University Professors Dr. Ernest Benjamin will address the question of the future of the academic profession, tenure, and academic freedom.

"Technology and the Academy" will be the focus for the remaining days of the symposium, from Wednesday, Mar. 11 to Friday, Mar. 13. The three-day series of lectures will focus on how technology is reshaping society. "Higher education is exploring and experimenting with the dizzying array of new possibilities being presented to deliver instruction, promote research, and streamline the efficiency of the modern university," stated an FSU spokesperson.

The presentations will address three areas having profound implications for higher education: Distance Learning, Libraries and Research, and Networking and the Internet. Each topic will be addressed by an authority working in that field. All lectures will be given in the Multi-Use Room of the Lane Center at FSU.

Dr. Gene Rubin will present "Distance Education and Learning" on Wednesday, Mar. 11, at 1:30 p.m. Distance education is the interactive delivery of instruction to students at a local and one or more remote sites simultaneously using real-time audio and video technology. FSU currently uses several such interactive classrooms in many academic programs and similar services for administrative tasks. Dr. Rubin is executive director of the International University Consortium, associate vice president of Instructional Development University of Maryland University College, and the director of the Institute for Distance Education. He will discuss Virtual Universities and demonstrate UMUC's Virtual Campus.

"Technology and the Future of Libraries and Research" will be the focus of the lecture on Thursday, Mar. 12 at 1 p.m. Dr. Kim Kelley, director of Library Services at University System of Maryland University College, and Dr. Charles Lowry, director of Library Services University of Maryland College Park, will be the presenters. "Today's libraries are undergoing radical change due to technology. Vast amounts of information are now stored in huge databases capable of being searched in fractions of a second. The days when students spent Saturdays in the stacks searching for information are being replaced by remote searches from their residence halls and homes. FSU's library is heavily involved in technology-driven change which is redefining the functioning and role of libraries in academia," the spokesperson said. Drs. Kelley and Lowry will describe how their institutions are coping with current technologies and give us some insigit into their visions of libraries and research in the next millennium.

The final presentation will be "Networks and The Internet: Effects on Higher Education" at 1:30 p.m. on Friday, Mar. 13. Richard Rose, director of UMATS and Telecommunications Systems and Operations at University System of Maryland, will address how the USM is implementing networking and will describe his views of the future networked university system. "In many ways, the Internet is driving the changes sweeping through schools and universities. This giant 'network-of-networks' is slowly connecting everyone to everything and in the process, redefining commerce, education, industry, and any data-handling aspect of modem society. Networking is pervasive at FSU. The current facilities are being updated, and by next fall, all students living on campus will have high-speed networking and Internet connections in their residence hall rooms," the spokesperson said.

All the lectures are free and open to the public.

For more information on the symposium, persons may contact FSU professors Dr. Peggy Dalton, 301-687-4418; Dr. Chrismarie Baxter, 301-687-4491; or Dr. Stephen Owens, 301-687-4023. For information on the events happening during the FSU Centennial Celebration, persons may call 301-687-4161.

FSU is committed to making all of its programs, services, and activities accessible to persons with disabilities. Persons may request accommodations through the ADA Compliance Office, FSU Library Room 228, 301-687-4102, TDD 301-687-7955.

BLUE WHITE

February funk flurries
the air; a miasma of futility, freezes
the brain with blue white intensity.

February funk swirls through cracks; a frigid force chips leaden feet out of dancing toes.

February funk piles up layer drifting onto layer; clouds the eye with stinging vision.

February funk slips
beneath the door; pierces
the heart with icicle
love letters.

February funk slides
slickly into March; sickly into madness.

WINTER BLUES

Low Clouds hiding blue sky hues;
Blanket doves, their mourning coos.
Snow and sleet, they pelt the green;
Grass blades sag, their sad reviews.

Blues of winter, rarely glean
Mountains high-furred snow the queen.
Panes encased in crystal frost;
Hiding flakes, the sun unseen.

Spirits downcast, daylight lost;
Darkened clouds are blown and tossed.
Shivers climb my spine in fear—
Mental anguish, what the cost?

Wracked by winter's blues each year,
Pacing floors, I catch a tear.
Prayers for spring rise, send the clues;
Ice pelts windows, rapping jeer.

Birders Record 56 Species And Total Of 6,059

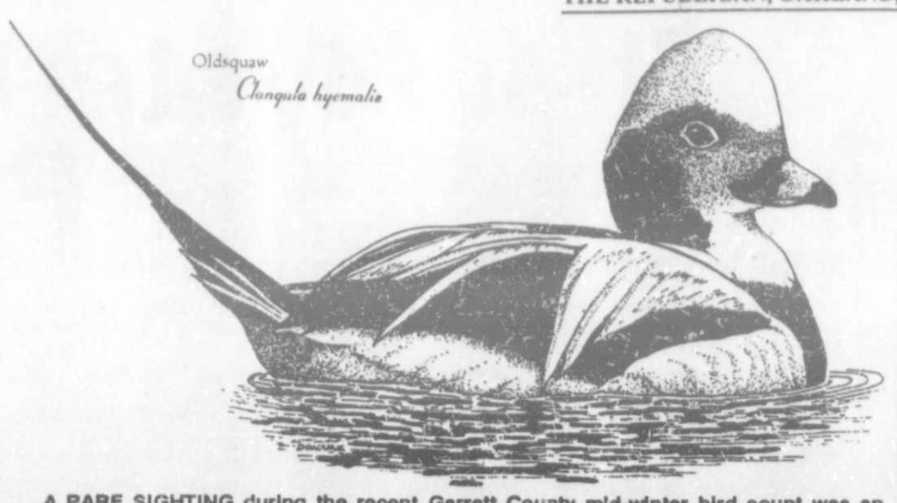
Thirty-four local observers spent a total of 66.3 hours at bird feeders and 58.5 more hours traveling a total of 374 miles by foot, car, and on skis to record 6,059 individual birds representing 56 species in the recent Garrett County mid-winter bird count. This was the second all-time highest total of species recorded during the local winter count, with only the count of 1990 (66 species) being higher.

Much of the surface areas of local ponds and lakes was frozen on count day, but 15 kinds of ducks, geese, grebes, and coots were recorded, including a male oldsquaw, seen by several different groups of observers as it dove for food in an open area of Deep Creek Lake. This type of diving duck is boldly patterned in black and white with distinctive needle-like tail plumes (see sketch), and propels itself under water using its wings rather than its feet, as many diving bird do.

The black-capped chickadee, eastern tufted titmouse, and white-breasted nuthatch were recorded by each of the 21 different groups of counters, while the downy woodpecker and slate-colored junco were each seen by all but one of the groups.

Once again, leading the count in numbers was the American crow, as 2,143 were spotted, followed by the mallard, 562; slate-colored junco, 420; black-capped chickadee, 318; European starling, 282; American coot, 254; pine siskin, 190; Canada goose, 158; American black duck, 157; and American goldfinch, 148, to round out the top 10.

Participants in the count were: Delbert Bittinger, Dessie Bowman, Kevin Dodge, Lois Einolf, Clara Fitzwater, Colton, Conor, John, and Liz Forrester, Sherry George, LeJay Graffious, Frances and Harold Hoecker, Jan Janssen, Hillar Klandorf, Annette and Shane Livengood, Carol and Rick Mattingly, Cheryl Newcomb, Bill and Fran Pope, Danny and Matt Quinn, Judy Sconyers, Connie Skipper, Kathie and Manning Smith, Mike Smith, Mareva and Orval Teets, Sallie Thayer, Todd Thorpe, and Glenn Welch.



A RARE SIGHTING during the recent Garrett County mid-winter bird count was an oldsquaw, observed by local birders diving for food in an area of Deep Creek Lake. Nearly three dozen enthusiasts participated in the count, which yielded 6,059 birds representing 56 species, the second highest number of species ever recorded in the nine years that the count has been done in Garrett County. See story for details.

This is the ninth consecutive year for the Garrett County mid-winter count, part of a statewide effort by the Maryland Ornithological Society to document birds that are present in Maryland in the midst of winter. The next local count will be Saturday, May 9, a county-wide effort that will be part of the annual North American Migration Count. For more information about the bird counts, persons may telephone Fran Pope at 301-334-4908 or Connie Skipper at 301-387-5227.

NEATNESS COUNTS

It's an old saying but nowhere is it more applicable than here in our pharmacy. For every drug package has to be carefully marked and then stored alphabetically in its exact proper place under the right protective conditions. Our pharmacy counter is always kept antiseptically clean, so that there is no chance of a drug becoming contaminated while we are filling your prescriptions.

Neatness also counts when it comes to people, and that is why all of the people in our pharmacy make it an extra point to be well-groomed from their fingernails and shoes to their lab jackets.

That Mysterious Place

As a child I dreamed of what lay behind those walls. I had fantasies of Spanish kings and raven-haired flamenco dancers. I imagined lush gardens of vibrantly colored flowers surrounding gushing fountains. How I longed to visit that mysterious place.

Years have elapsed since my childhood. Though I could have arranged it, I have never visited that mysterious place; for I have learned that some mysteries are better left to the imagination. In a world of stark reality, we need to believe in the wonder of those things that are as yet unseen…having faith that one day we could hold the key.

Our Lord says in Matthew 16:19, "I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven." Indeed the Bible tells us of that wonderful place, yet we must wait until we are ready. We must grow as children of our Heavenly Father and prepare for that mystery to unfold as we learn of God's will for our lives.

Worship at your local church or synagogue. There you will find the keys to the kingdom of God.

The Bible Speaks

By Lawrence W. Althouse

DROP EVERYTHING!
March 1, 1998

Background Scripture:
Mark 1:1-20
Devotional Reading:
Acts 10:34-43

The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God.

Mark begins by saying, in effect, this is how the gospel began. Of course, Mark wrote in Greek, not English, so, instead of 'gospel' he uses a Greek word, euangelion. In Latin, the word is evangelium, which in Anglo Saxon was rendered as "god-spell," meaning a story from or about God and was understood as 'good' or 'glad tidings.' In the Revised Standard Version of the Bible euaggelion is rendered as 'good news.' (You can see how the Greek euangelion was the source of 'evangel.' 'evangelism.' and 'evangelical.')

The gospel was not the books which Matthew, Mark, Luke and John wrote about Jesus, nor is it even his teachings. instead, it is the good news that God has acted through Jesus Christ to save us. Grammatically, it is a noun, but actually it is much more a verb for it tells us what God has done and will do through Christ.

Although Jesus preached to great crowds and taught his close band of followers, the gospel was and is essentially a personal invitation. That is one reason that it is good news. This is an invitation that comes not as "to whom it may concern," but to you in all your individuality: "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand; repent, and believe in the gospel" (1:15).

HERE'S A GIFT!

Halford Luccock has written, "Christianity is not primarily a demand. It is first of all a gift. It does not say first 'Do this' or 'Go there.' It says, 'Here is the gift of Christ in God.' Its first words are not 'Do' or 'Go,' but 'Come' and 'Receive.'" What Jesus of Nazareth is offering us in the beginning of Mark's gospel is the greatest possible gift we could ever imagine. That too is why it is such good news.

Accepting the gift requires a response from us: "Repent and believe in the gospel" (1:15). Even the call to 'repent' is a gift because it is a way out of our sin and guilt. And that too is good news, for whether or not we acknowledge it, sin and guilt are the two most destructive realities in our lives. I know, there are people who don't believe in sin. They feel it is demeaning and disheartening to think of themselves as sinners. But that is only true if there is no way out—and there is a way out.

Quite contrary to what some of us may think, 'Repent' means quite a bit more than penitence. Penitence by itself means only that we are sorry about our sin. (Sorry we're caught in it? Sorry for the consequences it costs us? Sorry it hurts our self-esteem?) Being sorry is not enough. One of the things that keeps some of us in a pattern of sin is the release we think we get from being 'sorry.' We sin; we're sorry; we go and sin again.

BEYOND 'SORRY'

Mark uses the Greek word metanoia, which, according to The Interpreter's Bible, Vol. VII, means "a complete change of mind, a new direction of will, an altered purpose in life." Being sorry is the beginning of the process, but, unless it calls for some profound changes in our attitude and sends us forth in a different direction, it is not repentance.

The second response we are called to make invitation is "Believe in the gospel." The call of John the Baptist was to repentance, but the challenge of Jesus calls us beyond repentance. The Living Bible renders this as "Turn from your sins and act on this glorious news," while E.V. Rieu (The Four Gospels) translates it as "put your trust in the Good News." Mark is not talking about believing in an idea, but of putting your trust in a promise.

Note how frequently Mark uses the word "immediately"—41 times in his gospel, nine times in this first chapter. It is characteristic of Mark's compelling style. When Jesus calls Simon, Andrew, James and John, all four immediately leave their nets and follow Jesus. The call of Christ to them and to us is an urgent one. It is so imperative that, instead of tucking it into our calendar at some convenient place, we need to drop everything and respond—immediately!

Monahan Couple Join Staff Of Local Realty

Dave and Dawn Monahan have chosen to affiliate with Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty as full-time real estate sales associates, according to Robert Huebner, broker and co-owner of Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty.

"We are most pleased that Dave and Dawn have decided to join our team," Huebner stated. "They demonstrate a daily commitment to the real estate profession, and to serving their clients and customers in the best possible way."

Huebner said that the Monahans work as a team, with either partner available to meet with customers or answer their questions. "Their business motto is 'Twice The Service — Twice the Commitment'," he said. In their first year as real estate sales associates, they were awarded "Rookie of the Year" honors by their company, and were recognized as "Million Dollar Producers."

"We make two specific commitments to our clients and customers," said Dave Monahan. "We commit to ensuring that they are able to make informed real estate decisions, and we commit to providing quality service, professionalism, and integrity. To that end, we are currently working toward earning the Accredited Buyer Representative Designation."

The Monahans relocated from Baltimore County to Garrett County approximately three years ago, bringing with them a combined 20 years of progressive business experience with USF&G Insurance. Dave holds a bachelor of science degree from the University of Baltimore, and Dawn holds an associate of arts degree from Essex Community College. They are members of the Bittinger Fire Department and the Deep Creek Property Owners Association. They reside in Bittinger with their two children, Mandi and Brody.

The Monahans can be reached at Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty, located in the McHenry Plaza on Garrett Highway, in McHenry.

Kindergarten Registration Now Underway

The Garrett County Board of Education announces that the comprehensive preschool registration program which began 19 years ago will be held again this year. This program is for all children entering kindergarten or first grade for the first time in September.

This registration program, which will be held in all elementary schools during March, April, and May, has been developed to help identify strengths and needs of children and to identify early any problems that may interfere with a successful start in school.

Because of a change in state regulations, parents must register any child who will be 5 years old on or before January 1, 1999. This new law allows exemptions to the school attendance requirements as follows:

- Permits compliance through the home school instruction regulation;
- Grants a one-year immaturity waiver if the parent or guardian makes a written request to the local school system;
- Allows 5-year-old to be enrolled in one of three alternative program settings—a full-time licensed child care center, a full-time registered family day care home, or part-time in a Head Start 5-year-old program.

Parents of children who meet the above qualifications are asked to fill out the registration blank at the end of this article and mail it to the designated address. All parents registering children for school will receive a registration appointment. However, parents who choose to use one of the exemptions from the required 5-year-old attendance must request the appropriate exemption form from the Department of Pupil Services at 301-334-8939.

Parents are notified to bring their child's birth certificate, an official immunization record, and social security card and to provide important information for the school's records during the registration. New state regulations now require parents to also bring proof of current residency, which could be in the form of a current property tax bill, current rental lease, or current utility bills with applicant's name and address. In addition, each child registering for school will receive a general health assessment. Parents should be aware that a booster immunization for MMR (measles, mumps, and rubella) is required for kindergarten and first grade registrants.

National School Breakfast Week To Be Observed

The Garrett County Board of Education Food and Nutrition Services will be observing the National School Breakfast Week March 2—6.

Parents of Garrett County school students are invited to join their children for breakfast any day during that week. Those who wish to participate are asked to notify the school office in advance and designate when they will attend.

The charge for adults is $1.50. Students eligible for free lunch are also eligible for free breakfast every day. Students eligible for reduced lunch prices will pay 30 cents for breakfast. The full cost of a student breakfast is 75 cents.

A spokesman for the nutrition program noted the direct link between good nutrition and peak performance in school. "School breakfast provides an excellent opportunity for students to start their day with the nutrients they need to be attentive and perform better on standardized tests," he said.

For more information, persons may contact the school office.

Different Estrogens Available for ERT

The National Osteoporosis foundation and other groups recommend estrogen replacement therapy (ERT) as the treatment of choice for preventing osteoporosis (thinning of bone) in postmenopausal women, provided there are no prohibiting circumstances (contraindications) and that women agree to such therapy. In addition, estrogen with or without progesterone (another female hormone) has also been shown to be effective in preventing hot flashed and vaginal dryness, problems that often occur during menopause. There are many different types and forms of estrogen products available for ERT.

Preston's Assistant Prosecutor Noted For Lifetime Achievement

James T. Dailey Jr., Preston County assistant prosecuting attorney, was recognized with the Lifetime Achievement Award by the West Virginia Prosecuting Attorney's Association at the group's recent winter meeting.

In giving the award, Virginia Jackson Hopkins, director of the West Virginia prosecuting attorney's Institute, told the assembled prosecutors that Dailey was one of the founding members of the Prosecutor's Association in the 1950s. Among his contributions was the drafting of pattern jury instructions still in use throughout the state.

Dailey was admitted to the West Virginia and Preston County bars in January of 1949 and began practice with his father, James T. Dailey Sr., in his Kingwood law office on the corner of Price and High streets. He was elected Preston County Prosecutor in 1953 and served in that capacity for 11 years. Dailey was a partner in the Kingwood law firm of Dailey, Halbritter and Smith until 1972, when he founded the firm of Dailey and Miller.

Since 1993 Dailey has served as an assistant prosecuting attorney in Preston County and focuses on the pro-secution of juvenile matters. In 1996 he was the West Virginia delegate to the Na-tional Symposium on Juvenile Justice, held in Washington, D.C. In addition to his prosecutor's duties, Dailey still practices with Larry Miller in Kingwood.

Grant Memorial Hospice, Petersburg, has scheduled a volunteer training session for Friday, March 13, from 6 to 9 p.m.; Saturday, March 14, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.; and on Saturday, March 21, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The classes will be held in the Rural Health Initiative building adjacent to Grant Memorial Hospital.

In addition to gaining a clearer understanding of the needs of terminally ill patients, participants will be trained to serve as volunteers for hospice.

Even if one is uncertain about becoming a volunteer for hospice, he/she is welcome to attend these classes. "It's a great learning experience," said class coordinator Kim Roth. "It's a topic that we don't usually talk about, but we will all have to deal with the death of a loved one at some point. This class makes us more familiar with the dying process from illness to bereavement."

For more information or to register, persons may contact Mrs. Roth at 304-257-1026.

Roadway Slide Closes Route 219 At Meyersdale

A portion of U.S. Route 219 north of Meyersdale has been closed to traffic because of a slide condition beneath the roadway.

PennDOT closed a section of highway south of Black's Curve around 5 p.m. Monday because of unstable conditions beneath the southbound lane, causing a potential slide situation.

During the closure, southbound traffic will be detoured from Berlin over SR 2030 to Route 160, SR 2017, and SR 2006 to Route 219 at Meyersdale. Northbound traffic's detour is just the reverse of the southbound.

According to Earl Neiderhiser, district engineer for PennDOT's District 9, construction equipment will begin excavating the portion of highway affected by the slide in order to determine the extent of repairs necessary to reopen the road.

Neiderhiser said the slide condition is similar to one that has plagued this stretch of 219 in the past. In 1995, PennDOT completed repairs to a section of the highway farther south on the highway.

"After we have opened up the area beneath the roadway, the engineers can determine what will be needed to repair the slide condition and reopen the highway to traffic," Neiderhiser said.

He indicated the section of highway will be closed at least a week and probably longer, but the full extent of the closure would not be known until today after engineers have completed their analysis.

Q. I've heard people call some hooked rugs "Frost rugs." What are they?

A. Edward Sands Frost of Biddeford, Maine, is credited with being the first person to mass-produce designs for hooked rugs. Frost, a tin peddler, made his first designs in 1868. They became popular and he devised a method of stenciling the designs in color on burlap.

When he retired in 1876, he sold the stencils to James A. Strout, then mayor of Biddeford. Strout continued the business as E.S. Frost & Co. until 1900. By 1902, interest in the designs dwindled.

The Newbury Yarn Co. offered a line of the patterns in 1910. They were made from the original stencils. In the mid-'30s, the entire line was published and sold in stores.

Q. In the 1960s, my mother filled a bowl in the living room with plastic grapes. I was going to throw them away, but someone said they're valuable. Is that true?

A. Plastic fruits and vegetables are popular with collectors. Bunches of grapes sell for $10 to $35, depending on the color. Orange soft-plastic grapes sell for $10. Gold pearlized resin grapes are the most expensive.

Q. As a child, I played with building blocks called "Richter blocks." I think they were made of chalk. Do you remember them?

A. Richter blocks were made in Germany in the early 1930s. They were invented by the Lilientahl brothers. The blocks came in many shapes, including those necessary to create Greek temple columns.

The blocks were made of compressed and dyed sand and chalk, with a linseed-oil varnish. They were sold in a box decorated with a female figure that represented architecture.

The blocks are popular with collectors. There is even a club in Germany that distributes a monthly newsletter.

Receiving the food is such a wonderful gesture, but remember how much more special it is when there is no mess involved!

Also, before you deliver, call ahead and say that you want to take someone else's dishes back, and ask if they need milk, or dry cleaning picked up or dropped off. There are a number of little things that you can do that are big things to them! Jayne L., Coshocton, Ohio

Household Help
by John Amantea

Q. My cherry wood coffee table has several water spot stains due to neglect. I have always polished my furniture with a good quality wax and I'm concerned with the water spots. I also tried rubbing out the stains with a commercial spot remover, but had no success. Can you give me any help on removing these water spots?

A. Some top furniture-finish experts advise using home remedies and I'm sure you have them in your house. If you have already tried a commercial product, perhaps something else will work.

Water spots are generally caused by moisture being trapped underneath the wax. Try using a combination of equal parts of toothpaste with baking soda on a piece of wet cotton. Rub gently even though this combination is a gentle abrasive. Continue buffing until the stain disappears, then polish as usual. If all else fails, try using a little baby oil on a soft cloth and rub continuously. Wipe off baby oil before you apply your polish.

ELISABETH SHUE: FROM TOMBOY TO TEMPTRESS

With her flaxen mane and body to die for, Elisabeth Shue should be one of those women who revel in their femininity. But growing up, the "Leaving Las Vegas" star was more interested in playing soccer with her three brothers, including "Melrose Place" heartthrob, Andrew. At puberty, the boys suddenly became bigger and stronger, and the petite Shue could no longer compete. Looking back, she wishes her busy divorced mother had been around more to tell her "it was okay that I was a girl."

If Shue didn't feel comfortable in her own skin, she soon learned the power of her appearance: her angelic, wholesome good looks allowed her to get away with murder. As she relates in Biography magazine's March cover story, by high school, she smoked pot, partied and did "tons of drinking" without repercussion.

But her parents' educational values finally rubbed off on their daughter, who settled down to become a fourth-generation Wellesley grad. Her show-biz career started inadvertently when she began doing commercials throughout college for extra cash. When her older brother, Will, died in a freak accident, she became serious about acting. At the same time, she met director Davis Guggenheim who wed and encouraged her.

Typecast as the perky blonde-next-door, Shue pleaded with director Mike Figgis for the break-out role of Sera, the masochistic hooker in "Leaving Las Vegas" and went on to steal the picture. Now on the A-list, Shue stars as Woody Allen's one-time girlfriend in "Deconstructing Harry", the scheming wife of a dying millionaire in "Palmetto" and a 19th-century courtesan in "Cousin Bette". But her greatest achievement has been the birth of her son, Miles. Shue said, "For the first time there isn't any emptiness inside of me — the baby has filled me up."

Farming In Maryland.....

If the Earth was an Apple!

If the earth were an apple you could cut it into four equal slices. Three would represent the oceans of the world. The fourth slice represents the land area.

If you cut the land slice in half, lengthwise, you'll have two one-eighth pieces of apple. One of these slices represents areas where humans can't live, such as deserts, swamps, and arctic and antarctic regions of the world. The last slice represents land where humans can live.

Cut this last, one-eighth slice of apple into four equal parts. Three of them represent areas of the world where food production is not possible, including land which has been developed. Peel the fourth part carefully. This small bit of peeling, one-thirty-second of the apple, represents the soil of our earth that all of us depend upon for our food.

Ag Facts

* Nearly 2 million people farm or ranch in the U.S., and while they account for less than 2% of our population, they produce food and fiber for, U.S. and several other countries

* In the 1960s one farmer supplied food and fiber for 25.8 people but, thanks to modern production techniques, one farmer now supplies food for 129 people in the U.S. and abroad.

* The American farmer produces the highest quality food at the most economical prices in the world. Americans spend just 11.4% of our personal income on food compared to 21% in Japan, 26% in Italy, and 53% in China.

Have You Completed Your Business Balance Sheet?

What an awful chore it is to do a balance sheet (only takes 2 to 3 hours)! A balance sheet (financial statement) is a very important tool for managing your business. It provides you with a clear summary of your assets and liabilities. The bottom line of the balance sheet tells you your net worth, which is the difference between assets and liabilities. If your net worth keeps decreasing each year, you're headed for financial problems. In many situations your net worth can change from month to month depending upon operating costs; however, if you do a year-end balance sheet you have the financial picture for the year. It is important to complete the balance sheet every year to get a true picture on the direction of your business. I have balance sheet forms I would be glad to send to you on request (301-334 6960).

Farm Bureau Endorses Creating Risk Management Savings Accounts

Because farming and ranching income cannot be predicted from year to year, Farm Bureau last week endorsed creating special farm and ranch risk management savings accounts to help producers manage income bumps and dips.

Under legislation proposed by Reps. Kenny Hulshoff (R-Mo.) and Karen Thurman (D-Fla.), farmers and ranchers would be allowed to deposit up to 20 percent of their yearly pre-tax income into special savings accounts. Deposits to these FARRM savings accounts could be held in reserve for up to five years, with the income taxed on withdrawal. These reserves could be used in low-income years to help producers meet the expenses.

"While many farm and ranch expenses can be predicted, farm income is neither predictable nor controlled," American Farm Bureau Federation President Dean Kleckner told the House Ways and Means Committee. "Farmers and ranchers do not know from one year to the next if their businesses will earn a profit, break even or operate in the red. Few other industries face such a challenge year after year."

Kleckner said agriculture's income uncertainty often forces some farm and ranch families to make fiscally risky choices. He said FARRM accounts will provide producers with a valuable risk management tool that would be a "meaningful incentive to save for a rainy day." Kleckner noted that many farm and ranch families tap into their retirement savings, borrow money, take expensive debt restructuring steps, put off capital improvement projects or lower their standards of living to get by during lean years.

Kleckner also urged the panel to look again at repealing the capital gains tax. He said last year's capital gains tax cut has begun to provide real benefits to farmers and ranchers, but continuing the current government policy is the equivalent of taxing income twice, and is wrong. The farm leader said capital gains taxes are a deterrent for new and expanding operations and penalize those who wish to buy or sell farm assets.

"We urge Congress to enact FARRM accounts and further reduce capital gains taxes without delay," Kleckner said. "The results will benefit farmers, consumers and the economy."

Maryland Milk Production Up

Maryland dairy operators produced 330 million pounds of milk during the October-December quarter, 3% from the same quarter a year earlier. The number of milk cows increased to 86,000 head from the 85,000 head of a year earlier. Yield per cow at 3,840 pounds increased 60 pounds from a year earlier. Farmers fed an average of 15.0 pounds of grains and concentrates to each cow on January 1, 1998, down 1.4 pounds from last year. In 1998 the value of this feed was $10.30 compared $8.90 in 1997.

The quarterly production of milk for the U.S. was 38.2 billion pounds, 0.7% above the October-December period last year. The average number of milk cows in the U.S. during the October-December quarter was 9.20 million head, 98,000 head less than the same period last year. Grain and other concentrates fed to milk cows on January 1, 1998, averaged 19.8 pounds, up 0.6 pounds from January 1, 1997, and up 1.1 pounds from October 1, 1997.

Crop Insurance Deadline Noted

Michael R. Kozier, county executive director for the USDA Farm Service Agency for Garrett and Allegany counties, reminds producers of spring planted crops that the deadline to buy federal crop insurance is fast approaching.

Producers must decide which crops to insure and what level of coverage to obtain before March 15, 1998.

Producers interested in buying crop insurance should contact a crop insurance agent, Kozier said. A listing of crop insurance agents is found in all local USDA Farm Service Agency offices.

Insured crops for Garrett County are corn and oats, and for Allegany County, corn and soybeans.

For additional information, persons may contact the FSA offices at: 301-334-6954 in Garrett County and 301-777-1536 in Allegany County.

Hog Calling Contest To Again Highlight MDA Open House

Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Virts, D.V.M., has announced that for the fourth straight year, a hog calling contest will highlight the 11th annual Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) Open House, set for Saturday, March 21, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

"At this year's open house the Maryland Department of Agriculture will be celebrating its 25th anniversary as a department. We want as many people as can to stop by for free anniversary cake and a tour of our laboratories and agricultural displays. I particularly recommend the open house for families with children. We have many activities for the youngsters to participate in, including a petting zoo, face painting, and a farm puppet show," said Virts.

Additional activities at the open house include craft demonstrations, a hay bale toss, and food sampling. Visitors will be able to tour the chemistry, weights and measures, and plant pest laboratories, and learn about many of the department's other programs.

The Maryland Department of Agriculture is located outside Annapolis off Riva Road at 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis. Admission is free and there is plenty of free parking.

For more information on the open house, persons may call the Maryland Department of Agriculture Open House Committee, Marketing Services, telephone 410-841-5770.

Scholarships Available To County Students

George Bishoff, chairman of the Garrett Soil Conservation District, has announced that the soil conservation district will again fund two scholarships for area students. According to Bishoff, the scholarships are to assist students in pursuing an agricultural or natural resources related degree. Two recipients will be selected from applications submitted to the Garrett Soil Conservation District to receive $1,000 each.

Selection of the recipients will be made between April 1 and May 15 by the Garrett Soil Conservation District Board of Supervisors. Completed applications, along with a one-page essay, are due into the conservation district office by April 1.

This scholarship is a one-time award to be presented to graduating high school seniors or graduates with the following qualifications: must have a high school grade point average of 3.0 or better; must major in an agricultural or natural resources related field; previous winners not eligible; must be a resident of Garrett County and graduating, or was a resident of Garrett County at the time of graduation from one of the following high schools: Northern Garrett, Southern Garrett, or Beall; and must be entering freshman year of college as a full-time student.

Bishoff, along with the other conservation board members, feels there's a need for young professionals entering these fields to have a rural or agricultural background. He hopes that this program will help area students who can bring some experience and practicality to their education.

This program is funded in large part by a donation of a Garrett County 4H-FFA livestock market animal purchased by Mettiki Coal Corp.

Interested persons may contact one of the area high school guidance counselors or the soil conservation district office for more information and/or application forms.

Over 30 scholarships are available to qualified students for the 1998-99 academic year at Garrett Community College, according to Bretta Reinhard, advancement officer for the Garrett Community College Foundation. The deadline for applying for these scholarships is April 1, 1998.

A booklet detailing criteria for each scholarship and an application is now available in the Financial Aid office of the college, open weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Information may be obtained by calling 301-387-3012. Several scholarships have been restricted to specific academic programs and one is specifically for students entering the Early College Admissions Program at GCC.

Applicants for scholarships must complete the application, including a typed essay, two letters of recommendation, an official transcript of high school or college academic studies, and two small photos (head shots) of applicants. All materials must be received by the Scholarship Committee by the stated deadline.

The February meeting was called to order by Aliza Green, one week late because of bad weather. Frank Andersen led pledges. Amanda Hinebaugh called roll with 34 members and 19 adults present, then gave the secretary's report. Emily Cosner gave the treasurer's report.

Cindy Warsaw discussed the scrapbook and demonstration requirements for the Cloverbuds, who were then dismissed to their meeting area. Brittany Slaubaugh and Vivian Geroski are new Cloverbuds. Club by-laws were read and approved.

It was noted that five members and one adult went skiing on the first 4-H ski day at The Wisp, and six members and two adults skied on the second 4-H ski day.

The club's snow policy, which remains in effect, was outlined. If there is no school the meeting is canceled, and in case of continued bad weather the make-up meeting is canceled until the following month.

Angie Beckman spoke to the club about the Garrett County Soil Conservation "Speak-Off" contest, which she won. Her winning speech was sent on to the state championships.

Four members and three adults attended the Livestock Association meeting. Demonstrations were conducted by Michelle Holler, with her lamb, and Marcella Moreland, with her puppy.

Plans for the upcoming fund-raiser dinner were discussed. The Brennemans and Fitzwaters of the fund-raising committee updated the club on recent profits realized.

SNOWY CREEK
by Shelby Glover,
Reporter

The Snowy Creek 4-H Club held its meeting on Thursday, Feb. 12. Michael Guard called the meeting to order. Drew Glover and Derrick Lowdermilk led the pledges. Seventeen members were present.

The club had two guest speakers. The first was Mrs. Valerie Frazee, who spoke to the club about the merits of public speaking. She said not to worry about speaking in front of others. She said, like Nike, "Just do it!" The second speaker was Ross Glotfelty, who spoke about the American and Maryland flags. He showed us the proper care and respect for the American flag, and also the correct way to fold the flag. At the end of his presentation, he presented the club with the flag.

The club has decided to do a woodworking project for next month. The leader helping us with this project will be Rick Lowdermilk. He brought in a birdhouse and birdfeeder. Each member can choose which one he/she would like to make. We will begin construction during next month's meeting.

Our leader, Wanda Guard, passed out our new 1998 4-H projects. The club has plans to go bowling on March 1.

COVER STORY

Betty Garrett's art imitates her life

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

Betty Garrett

In The Long Way Home, stage, screen and TV veteran Betty Garrett plays a woman who reunites with an old flame after decades of separation. Jack Lemmon co-stars in the CBS movie, which airs Sunday, March 1.

Lemmon plays Tom Gerrin, a retired widower whose children are downsizing his life. On a whim, he sets out cross-country with a poetry-reciting college coed (Sarah Paulson) to look up his first girlfriend (Garrett).

In a bit of stage irony, Lemmon played Garrett's beau 42 years earlier in the musical version of My Sister Eileen. Garrett also starred in Words and Music, Take Me Out to the Ball Game and her personal favorite, On the Town.

On television, Garrett played liberal next-door neighbor Irene Lorenzo on All in the Family and landlady Edna Babish on Laverne & Shirley.

When Garrett first read the script for The Long Way Home, it struck a chord with her.

"It's funny," she says. "When I read the script, I really had a feeling of deja vu, because a similar thing happened to me a few years ago.

"I grew up in Seattle, and I went up there to do my show, and my first boyfriend came to see it. And afterwards, we had a chance to sit down and talk.

"And I said to him, 'Why didn't you ask me to marry you?' Because we were very much in love, and my mother was taking me to New York to be in the theater. And he said, 'Your mother scared the hell out of me.' Evidently my mother talked to him and said, 'Don't you ruin her chances to go on the stage.' "

Garrett did go to New York with her mother, where she studied with Sanford Meisner before her Broadway debut in 1939. Soon she had a contract with MGM, and her actor husband, Larry Parks, was making movies as well. Young and idealistic, they took up social and political causes.

"It seemed the only people doing anything ... were (members of) the Communist Party," she says. "I was always doing benefits for things like better housing, anti-discrimination, or Spanish War orphans."

In the early 1950s, Parks was blacklisted.

"Larry only made one picture after that: Freud, with John Huston. I was able to get back into the swing. But it was heartbreaking for Larry because he never really could practice his career (again)."

Garrett writes about that time in her recently published autobiography, Betty Garrett and Other Songs. At age 78, she also teaches and acts with Musical Theatre West. Two years ago she took up yet another performance line.

"I was very ill (then). I almost died. I was in the hospital, and I remember having a ridiculous thought: If I live through this, I'm going to become a stand-up comic.

"So I've worked up some stuff, and it seems to get a very good response."

Garrett is thrilled to act and do a little singing with Lemmon once again. Though she is financially secure, retirement is not an option, she says.

"If I'm not working for money, I work for nothing," she says. "I can't imagine not working. It's so much fun."

Q: Did the same actress play both Dorothy Jane on The Torkelsons and Wyleen on Boston Common? My mom says yes, but I don't think so. –Megan via e-mail.

A: You are right, Megan. Dorothy Jane was played by Olivia Burnette; Hedy Burress, now co-starring in The Closer, played Wyleen.

Q: Is Tracy Scoggins of Babylon 5 the same actress who has appeared as the Immortal Cassandra on Highlander? –Pauline via e-mail.

A: Yes.

Q: Can you identify the movie in which Sir Alec Guinness played a Catholic priest and Leo McKern was a mayor? Thank you. –Joseph Hession via e-mail.

A: That was 1985's Monsignor Quixote, based on a novel by Graham Greene.

Q: I remember an old series called Coronet Blue. How long did it run, and did the show ever reveal the meaning of the title phrase? –Randy via e-mail.

A: Coronet Blue, which ran on CBS from May to September 1967, starred Frank Converse as an amnesiac who was muttering the title phrase to himself when he was pulled from New York Harbor following an attempt on his life. Since the show never ran a full season, the mysterious words were never explained.

Q: I seem to remember seeing S. Epatha Merkerson of Law & Order being questioned as a cleaning lady on an old case. Was this her introduction to the show? –Mike Merims via e-mail.

A: What a memory, Mike. Yes, before joining L&O as Lt. Anita Van Buren in 1993, Merkerson guest starred as Denise Winters in an episode that originally aired Feb. 26, 1991.

Q: There was a series similar to The Magnificent Seven that aired in the 1980s with Howard E. Rollins Jr. and William Smith. What was this show called? –T. Ellis, Charlotte, N.C.

A: Wildside, an ABC series that aired for one month in 1985, starred Rollins and Smith – along with J. Eddie Peck, John D'Aquino and Terry Funk – as members of a secret law enforcement group in the Wild West.

Q: Who had the lead roles in Head of the Class? Was Elizabeth Berkley of Saved by the Bell ever in the cast? –N. Condor via e-mail.

NOTICE

To All Property Taxpayers of Grantsville, Maryland

Senate Bill No. 93 of the Annotated Code of Maryland requires counties and municipal corporations to notify taxpayers of the availability of the semi-annual property tax payment option for owner-occupied residential property that is the principal residence of a homeowner.

If a taxpayer elects to make semi-annual property tax payments, ½ of the municipal taxes will be deferred until January 1. The second payment, due January 1, will incur a service charge reasonably equivalent to the anticipated lost interest income associated with the delay in the payment of the second installment and covering administrative expenses associated with the semi-annual payment not exceeding 25% of the charge of the lost interest.

To be eligible to make this election of semi-annual payment, all previous years' taxes must be paid in full by June 1. Taxpayers not making thier first semi-annual payment by September 30 are automatically waived out of the semi-annual plan and must pay the full tax bill.

Selection of payment schedule for property taxes may be made upon receipt of tax bill. If taxpayer wishes to pay in full, he must choose the appropriate coupon and return it with the proper payment. If the taxpayer wishes to participate in the semi-annual payment option, the appropriate coupon should be returned with the payment before the September 30 deadline.

It is the responsibility of the taxpayers to notify their mortgage company of their wishes to pay on a semi-annual basis if they have an escrow account. The town is not responsible for any involvement in the semi-annual payment process.

Whatever payment plan the taxpayer elects shall remain in effect until the taxpayer decides to change it.

By authority,
Mayor and Council of
Grantsville, Maryland

Community Action has requested that the Land be annexed into the Town of Loch Lynn Heights and has agreed in writing not to seek tax exempt status for such land if annexed into the Town of Loch Lynn Heights. More than 25% of the residents of the property to be annexed have requested annexation. The Mayor and Town Council has agreed to proceed with the process of annexation. Such annexation will require submission to the Town Planning Commission, compliance with the provisions of Article 23A, Section 11 et seq. with regard to the Charter Amendment; compliance with Article 23A, Section 19 with respect to Annexation and compliance with the provisions of the Loch Lynn Zoning Ordinance with respect to the required amendment to the Zoning Map of Loch Lynn Heights. If Annexation is successful all persons residing in the area to be annexed and their property shall be added to the corporate boundaries generally subject to the provisions of the Charter of the Town as the same may from time to time be amended. The Land will be annexed into the Town under the zoning classification of Town Residential. This classification allows Single and Two Family Detached Dwellings as Permitted Uses and Townhouse and Apartment dwellings as Special Exception Uses. In addition the Townhouse and Apartment Dwellings shall be annexed into the Town as a pre-existing special exception uses on pre-existing non conforming lot or lots. The Garrett County Planning and Zoning Office has certified that the above land uses are fully consistent with the plans and policies of the County Comprehensive Plan. This Resolution is introduced for the purpose of proceeding forward with the Annexation and the Amendment to the Zoning Map of Loch Lynn Heights, Maryland. The Charter Amendment is being addressed in a separate resolution.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED AS FOLLOWS:

1. That upon the request of Garrett County, Maryland, Community Action Committee, Inc., the owner of the Land, the Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Loch Lynn Heights propose to annex the land into the corporate limits of the Town.

2. The land to be annexed is described as follows:
Beginning at a corner fence post found at the end of the third line of Military Lot 917, and in the northeasterly line of the property owned now or formerly by Charles J. Martin (Liber 32 at folio 96), and at a point described as a concrete post at the original beginning of Military lots 880 and 919 in the description of the corporate boundaries in the Municipal Charter of Loch Lynn Heights; thence, with part of the said third line and part of the first line of Military Lot 919, and the outline of the limits of Loch Lynn Heights (North 27 degrees and 35 minutes East 1650 feet), a municipal corporation, North 23 degrees East, 450.00 feet to a set 5/8th inch by 36 inch iron rebar and plastic cap marked 126, hereinafter called "iron pin"; thence, leaving said Military lot line, and the outline of said municipal corporation, South 67 degrees East, 800 feet to a set iron pin; thence 23 degrees West 450 feet to an iron pin set in the fence line marking the fourth line of Military lot 917, thence with part of said fourth line, North 67 degrees West, 800 feet to the beginning, containing 8.26 acres, more or less.

3. Said land will be annexed by the Town under the zoning classification of Town Residential. Upon annexation the persons residing on the property to be annexed and their property shall be generally subject to the provisions of the Charter of the Town.

4. There is constructed on a portion of the land consisting of 95,173 square feet at the time of this resolution 24 dwelling units, an office and laundry facilities in 6 separate buildings. Under the Town Residential Zoning classification such use would require a Special Exception. In addition the number of single family attached units would require a variance with respect to density. However, since the construction is complete at the time of the annexation these uses and structures are being brought into the town as a pre-existing non-conforming lot and pre-existing use. Future development of the remainder of the land shall be in accordance with the Town Charter and ordinances.

5. All roads in the property will be constructed by Community Action, at its cost, to current Town standards. After annexation they shall be turned over to the Town and shall thereafter be maintained as Town Streets.

6. Upon annexation, the land shall be a part of the Town. All residents on the land annexed and their property shall be subject to the Charter and ordinances of the Town and shall be entitled to the rights and privileges of citizens of the Town in accordance with the provisions of the Town Charter.

7. That the Mayor shall cause to be published a public notice of this resolution in a newspaper of general circulation in the Town of Loch Lynn Heights and in the area proposed to be annexed not less than 4 times, at weekly intervals. This public notice shall briefly and accurately describe the proposed annexation and the conditions circumstances applicable. The publication of this Resolution and a map of the area to be annexed shall be sufficient for such purpose.

8. This public notice shall specify Monday, March 30, 1998 at 7:00 PM as the date and time and the Town Hall of Loch Lynn Heights located at 211 Bonnie Boulevard, Loch Lynn Heights, Maryland, as the place of a public hearing on the annexation of the land by the Town. This date is not less than 15 days after the date of the last publication described above.

9. Immediately upon the first publication of the public notice the Mayor shall cause a copy of the public notice to be sent to the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County, Maryland, to The Garrett County Planning and Zoning Office, to the Tri-County Council for Western Maryland, and to the Maryland Office of Planning.

10. The Mayor shall also cause to be prepared an amended zoning map for the Town which includes the annexed property shown under the classification of Town Residential.

11. The Mayor shall submit a copy of this Resolution and the related Charter Amendment Resolution to the Loch Lynn Planning Commission with a request that The Planning Commission review it and provide its comments to the Mayor and Town Council within 30 days.

12. The effective date of the annexation shall be in accordance with the provisions of Article 23A, Section 19 of the Annotated Code of Maryland.

Carroll Scholarship Unveiled, Honors Late SHS Teacher

FRED CARROLL

The Garrett Community College Foundation Inc. has announced the establishment of the Fred Carroll Scholarship for the 1998-1999 academic year at Garrett Community College (GCC). Memorial donations to the scholarship honoring the late educator who taught at several schools, including Southern High School, have topped $1,000. In addition to family members, Carroll's friends, colleagues, and former students have made contributions in his memory.

"The GCC Foundation gratefully acknowledges these memorial donations," said foundation president Ann M. Smith. "We want to extend our sincere appreciation to Helen Forman Carroll for her decision to honor her late husband in this manner. We at GCC thank the family and the friends of Mr. Carroll for the generous contributions to this scholarship."

Reflecting on her decision Mrs. Carroll said, "Fred realized the importance of education; his professional career in the field of education spanned nearly four decades. He was extremely devoted to his students. I believe this scholarship is a wonderful testimony to the life of my husband."

Fred Clark "Beck" Carroll, was born in Kingwood, W.Va., and graduated from high school there in 1929. An outstanding high school athlete, he was offered a football scholarship from West Virginia University. After enrolling at WVU, however, the death of his mother and the failing health of his father preempted his dream of a college education, and he returned to Kingwood to assume the responsibility for his father's horse-drawn mail delivery route. After his father's death in 1931, Carroll returned to WVU, where he financed his education by refereeing high school sporting events, waiting sorority house tables, and working in the college library. In 1935 he graduated with bachelors' degrees in science and physical education.

After graduation Carroll joined the faculty of Masontown High School in West Virginia, where he was a teacher and a football, basketball, baseball, and track coach for the next six years. In 1941 he moved on to Terra Alta High School to assume similar duties. After the outbreak of World War II Carroll enlisted in the United States Navy and served his country in both the Pacific and the Atlantic, receiving a lieutenant's commission. Following his honorable discharge in 1946, Carroll returned to teach at Terra Alta High School. During his tenure there, he simultaneously pursued and was awarded a master's degree and a principal's certificate from West Virginia University.

In 1953 Carroll was appointed principal of Bayard High School, where he served until 1966, when he retired to take up studies in vocational education at Fairmont State College and the University of Maryland. He went on to head the new vocational department at Southern Garrett County High School until his retirement from there in 1974.

Known for spending one on one time with his students, Carroll took it as a personal challenge to encourage them to graduate from high school and to pursue a college degree. He encouraged his wife as she completed her master's degree in education, and each of the collegiate endeavors of their three daughters were a source of pride for him as well. Rebecca Friend of Loch Lynn earned a bachelor's degree from WVU, Ann Sherrard of Accident earned undergraduate and graduate degrees from the University of Maryland and the University of North Carolina, respectively, and Jane Pritts of Roanoke, Va., earned her bachelor's degree from the University of Pittsburgh.

Carroll had 10 grandchildren — Corey, Emily, Laura, and Tyler Friend, Abby, Beck, Lake, and Sam Sherrard, and Griffin and Jill Pritts -- and lived to see his two oldest grandchildren pursue a college education.

"The Fred Carroll Scholarship attests to Mr. Carroll's lifetime dedication to education," said GCC Foundation Advancement Officer Bretta Reinhard. "Through these memorial donations Fred Clark Carroll continues to impact the lives of young people in their educational pursuits. We thank each and every person who honored the memory of Mr. Carroll in this fashion."

Glimpse of The Past . . .

LILLIAN RUSSELL is not a household name today, but it certainly was in the previous century, as Ms. Russell was a nationally known actress. The above photo, from the files of the Garrett County Historical Society, was taken around 1898 at Grant Studios in Oakland. A note on the back of the photo reads: "Lillian Russell, famous actress, here in Oakland on vacation. Picture taken by Henry Grant, noted B&O photographer. T.J. Peddicord escorted the actress around Oakland and the vicinity in a fancy surrey." Ms. Russell stayed at the Glades Hotel, which was located on the present-day site of the Oakland municipal parking lot.

A TRIP TO CHI-CHI'S RESTAURANT was the culminating activity to the South of the Border study unit for the Pre-K students at Route 40 School. Dressed in colorful clothing that represented rebosos and sarapes, the children toured the restaurant, and ate tacos and tortilla chips with salsa. Each student also received a peso and a free dinner coupon. The staff who arranged the outing were Debbie Brenneman, Laura Bolden, and Jennifer Dolan. The adults pictured left to right are Mary Ann Kamp, Donna Pape, and Kelli Rayner. The children are Kameron Kamp, Samantha Schrug, and Garrett Rayner.

OAKLAND

Romayne Fries and her mother Mary Alice drove to Winchester, Va., on Feb. 19. Romayne visited her friends and former co-workers in the information systems department of the Winchester Medical Center while Mary Alice shopped at the gift shop. Their day ended with a tour of the Castle just outside Berkeley Springs, Va., and dinner at the Country Inn in Berkeley Springs.

A donation to The Republican's
Warm the Children Fund was made by

Bear Damage Up, But Compensation Rate Stays Same

While the amount of crop damage suffered at the paws of black bears in 1997 appears to have nearly doubled since last year, Garrett County farmers will once again be compensated with less than half of the fair market value of their losses, according to the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR). The lack of public response to the Black Bear Conservation Stamp program, created by DNR two years ago in hopes of raising funds to compensate farmers, accounts for the shortfall.

John R. Griffin, DNR secretary, announced this week that he will supplement the bear conservation fund to ensure that landowners will be reimbursed for 42 percent of their damages attributed to black bears, a level similar to 1996's 41 percent compensation rate.

The 1997 damage figure is estimated at $41,445 by the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service (UMCES), nearly double last year's official damage estimates. Field investigations revealed that bear damage was most severe in cornfields in 1997, and it was estimated that over 90 acres of corn suffered damage from black bears in Garrett County.

"Crop damage from bears was scattered all over the county last year," said Extension agent Jim Simms, "with certain locations, like Bear Cove, the Hare Hollow Road area near Grantsville, and the Cranesville, Pleasant Valley, and Red House areas, especially hard hit. It appears that the damage increases are due to the increasing numbers of bears," he said, "and when there are more bears there will be more damage."

DNR points to hunger as a main cause for increased damage. "Black bear damage was more extensive mainly due to an acorn failure throughout western Maryland," said Michael Slattery, director of DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Division. "The black bear is a first-rate omnivore, and its diet is dictated by the sea-

Frostburg Man Arrested By GC Narcotics Force

After a two-month investigation, the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force arrested Scott Davis, 31, Frostburg, for distribution of marijuana.

According to a report released by Maryland State Police, Barrack C, LaVale, Davis was arrested on the strength of an arrest warrant. A search and seizure warrant was also executed on his residence. The report stated that in the search a quantity of suspected marijuana, cocaine, and drug paraphernalia were recovered.

Davis was charged with three counts of distribution of marijuana, four counts of possession of marijuana, one count of possession of cocaine, and one count of possession of CDS paraphernalia.

Also involved in the investigation were the C3I Narcotics Unit, Allegany County; Troopers from Maryland State Police Barrack C, and Allegany County Sheriff's Office.

GPU To Sell Deep Creek Lake; Officials Keeping Close Watch

GPU Energy -- the owner of the Deep Creek Lake buffer strip, underlying land, and power plant -- has announced its intention to divest of all its fossil fuel and hydroelectric generating facilities. This means the company intends to sell its Deep Creek Lake interests, as announced last week by county and state officials.

"This is a complete reversal from four or five years ago," stated Senator John Hafer, in reference to the company's decision to divest. "But these things happen. We just have to stay on top of it."

Delegate George Edwards echoed that sentiment, stressing to those attending his and Hafer's mid-session information meeting Saturday that the state is well aware of this issue and is concerned.

"This is not something that is just going to be overlooked by the state. We are all concerned and are keeping up with the information as it comes to light," Edwards said. "There's still plenty of time to get a handle on this."

GPU hosted a meeting last Thursday evening with Edwards, Hafer, the Garrett County commissioners, Department of Natural Resources (DNR) representatives, and other officials. The meeting lasted over three hours, during which the company representatives told the officials about the proposed sale. The company then released its timeline for the divestiture of the lake.

The breakdown of the lake ownership and management is as follows: the actual water is owned and managed by the Maryland DNR. In addition to the dam and hydroelectric plant, GPU owns the land underneath the water and the 100-foot buffer strip around the lake. This allows the company to control and oversee the water levels as needed. The docking fees paid by property owners go to GPU. State-owned land in the form of the Deep Creek Lake State Park constitutes part of the lakeside property, and the rest is owned by private businesses and permanent or part-time residents.

A 12-year water management agreement between GPU and DNR was to be upheld until 2003, and Edwards said at Saturday's meeting that he hopes the contract can be transferred intact to the new owner, although it will depend upon a variety of issues.

Garrett County currently receives approximately 53% of its assessable tax base from the lake area and from tourism, according to a report released by the commissioners' office this week. The report also indi-

Edwards, Hafer Defend Taylor's Land Dealings

Controversy arose last week when a front page news article in the Washington Post contended that Speaker of the House Casper Taylor (D-Allegany) had engaged in a questionable land swap deal with James Oberhaus, who is reportedly a close friend. The deal, in essence, gave Oberhaus the coal mining rights of land in the Potomac State Forest in exchange for 216 acres of land that he gave to the state.

Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Hafer signed letters of support for the deal, which was approved in Jan. 1995. At a mid-session information meeting Saturday, hosted by the two officials, they defended their actions in supporting the land deal.

The Post article contended that the deal was not good for Maryland, as appraiser Henry Moomau was quoted as saying he had been "pressured" by Taylor and other officials to lower his estimate per ton of coal from $1.25 to $1. This is the royalty that goes to the state. The article then asserted that an even lower amount — 60 cents — was finally agreed upon, unbeknownst to Moomau, and that this low amount has since cost Maryland about $1 million.

Taylor responded quickly and vehemently to the allegations, calling a press conference on the heels of the article's publication and defending his actions. He has maintained that he did what he thought was good for the state and for Western Maryland.

Edwards and Hafer were prepared for questions at

Oliver L. North To Be Speaker At Annual Lincoln Day Dinner

Oliver L. North will be the guest speaker of this year's Republican Lincoln Day Dinner, which is slated for Thursday, April 16, at Will O' the Wisp. A reception will be held for North from 6 until 7 p.m., with dinner to follow. Tickets, which are limited to 185, are $15 for the reception and $35 for dinner.

North is a combat decorated Marine, best-selling author, founder of a small business inventor who holds three U.S. patents, former candidate for the United States Senate, and a guest star on the television programs Wings and IAG. He claims, however, that his most important accomplishment is "being the husband of one wife and the father of four children."

North was born in San Antonio, Texas. He graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis and served 22 years as a Marine. His awards for service in combat include the Silver Star, the Bronze Star for Valor, and two Purple Hearts for wounds in combat.

Assigned to the National Security Council staff in the Reagan Administration, North was involved in planning the rescue of 804 medical students on the island of Grenada and played a major role in the capture of the hijackers of the cruise ship Achille Lauro. After helping plan the U.S. raid on Muammar Qaddafi's terrorist bases in Libya, North was apparently targeted for assassination by Abu Nidal.

His involvement in the Reagan administration's support for the freedom fighters in Nicaragua and the rescue of American

Health Department Reports Year's First Rabies Case

The office of Environmental Health Services of the Garrett County Health Department has reported the first laboratory confirmed positive case of rabies in the county this year.

On February 25 a raccoon came onto a property located along Maple Grove Road and fought with an unvaccinated dog. The owner of the property shot the raccoon and then restrained his dog while properly using gloves. There were also three other unvaccinated dogs on the property which were not exposed to the raccoon.

Testing by the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene Rabies Laboratory in Baltimore confirmed that the raccoon was positive for the rabies virus. The property owner opted to euthanize the exposed dog and had the three remaining dogs vaccinated against rabies the day after the incident.

This case reinforces the necessity for pet owners to check and keep current the

Friendsville And Crellin Students To Perform Musical For Governor

The chorus members from Friendsville and Crellin elementary schools will be heading for Annapolis next month to perform for Gov. Parris Glendenning.

The fourth and fifth grade students at the two schools are currently in rehearsal for the event, which will take place April 3 in the governor's mansion in Annapolis.

Chorus and music teacher Dan Taylor, who works with the children at both schools, has written a musical for the occasion. "It's called 'Everyone Needs A Friend' and the students are really working hard on practicing their parts," he said.

Taylor explained that there is a large group of students who are memorizing lines for their parts. "There are about 50 children involved. We want to give as many as possible the opportunity to do this," he noted.

The production company will go to Annapolis on Thursday, April 2, and perform Friday morning. "There will be a reception for them, a tour of the city and a tour of the Naval Academy," Taylor stated.

"Sen. John Hafer is also involved in this. His office has donated $500 toward the cost of the trip," he added.

The total amount that must be raised for the two-day trip is between $1,600 and $1,700. Fund raisers are being planned, including a walk-a-thon. Taylor hopes to get the support of the community for this undertaking. "The kids are really excited about this and they are working very hard," he emphasized.

Anyone who wishes to contribute to make the trip possible may contact Dan Taylor at Friendsville Elementary School 301-746-5100 or may send a donation to either school in his name.

POKING A LITTLE FUN at the classics, including the opera, is just one facet of the musical "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," that will be presented two more times locally and once "on the road" by the Ecumenical Youth Ministry of Oakland. After the quartet pictured above performs a choreographed dance routine to Beethoven's classic "Moonlight Sonata," Lucy Van Pelt sings to the same music in a one-sided discussion of marriage with Schroeder. Playing the roles of "little red-haired girls" are, pictured from left above: Rebecca Wotring, Kendra Durst, Gina Powell, and Keri Strubin. The two remaining local performances, slated for this Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in St. Peter's Parish Hall in Oakland are both sold out; however, persons may still place their names on a waiting list by calling St. Mark's Lutheran Church and then coming to the door on performance nights, as there are usually some "no-shows" whose seats will be made available just before showtime. The play will also be presented at Solomons Island on Sunday, March 15. The cast includes over 30 area young people, directed by Lynn Broderick, and a dozen-piece orchestra, directed by Michael Broderick.

RISING STARS GET INTO READING - Students at the Grantsville Elementary School had a special reading experience last week as part of Gov. Parris Glendening's initiative to encourage reading across the state. All students are challenged to read 10 books during this school year. Maryland State Police Officer Blair (Pete) Bittinger from Barrack W, McHenry, took the opportunity to read the story Tight Times to fourth grade students in Mike Warne's class. Tfc. Bittinger, who grew up in Grantsville, was a student of Mr. Warne when he was in the fourth grade. It seems that this teacher instilled an appreciation of books in his students then as well as now.

Busted Drug Deal Nets Guilty Plea In District Court

A planned drug sale in the parking lot of Grantsville's Burger King last December has cost the alleged customer in more ways than one, as Kevin Eugene Slagle was convicted last week on a charge of possession of drug paraphernalia. His guilty plea in Garrett County District Court drew a $555 fine and a probation before judgment (PBJ) ruling from Judge Ralph M. Burnett.

Slagle, 36, Friendsville, was arrested by Maryland State Police acting on an anonymous tip that Slagle had arranged to buy a large quantity of drugs from an Allegany County resident at a specified date and time. Narcotics investigators then set up stakeouts at each man's residence, and followed them as they left their respective homes to rendezvous for the deal at Grantsville's Burger King. After the pair were apprehended in the parking lot, allegedly in the process of carrying out the transaction, the seller produced a large plastic freezer bag that contained a quarter-pound of marijuana and said that Slagle was planning to buy it for $525. Meanwhile, a pat-down of Slagle revealed that he was carrying $525 in cash on his person.

Following his arrest, a search of Slagle's residence recovered marijuana smoking paraphernalia.

Slagle's PBJ means that if he complies with all the terms of his one day probation, the case will not reflect a criminal conviction. Additional charges of possession of marijuana and possession of marijuana with intent to distribute were not prosecuted by the Garrett County State's Attorney's Office.

In other District Court news, Richard Eugene Tasker, 39, Oakland, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated (DWI), while three additional traffic-related charges and one charge of resisting arrest were not prosecuted. Tasker was arrested by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office after a traffic stop in Mtn. Lake Park following a short pursuit. When deputies ordered him to turn around and place his hands behind his back he refused, and as he was being placed in a deputy's vehicle for transport to jail he physically resisted.

Tasker was handed a six-months sentence of weekend incarceration, two months of which were suspended, fined $755, and placed on two years of supervised probation.

Steven Joseph Eddy, 41, Oakland, pleaded guilty to charges of DWI and disorderly conduct by disobeying a lawful order of a police officer. The charges stemmed from Eddy's November arrest by sheriff's deputies for DWI in Oakland. At the time of the traffic stop, Eddy ignored repeated requests to cease use of harassing language in front bystanders, including his own small child, who had been a passenger in his car along with his wife.

Eddy was fined $555, handed a 60-day suspended sentence, and was placed on 18 months of supervised probation by visiting Circuit Judge W. Timothy Finan.

A late-night fight on the corner of Oakland's Alder and Sixth streets in September resulted in the convictions of a pair of 19-year-old Oakland men.

Ralph Thomas Lloyd, who was apprehended by a sheriff's deputy near the scene following a short foot pursuit, was found to be carrying a baggie of marijuana and a needle and syringe. His charge on marijuana possession drew a 90-day suspended sentence and two years of supervised probation. Additional charges of possession of drug paraphernalia and disorderly conduct were not prosecuted.

Lloyd also pleaded guilty to a second-degree assault charge which had resulted from his alleged beating of a nearby resident who had come outside to investigate the sounds of the fight. That conviction drew Lloyd a one-year sentence, with all but 90 days suspended, and a restitution order to pay the victim $676 to cover his medical expenses.

Brian Matthew Parker, who appeared in court several weeks ago on charges stemming from the same incident, received his sentence last week. Parker had pleaded guilty to charges of obstructing the lawful duties of a police officer and possession of a controlled dangerous substance (CDS). As Lloyd was being arrested and handcuffed, Parker allegedly interfered several times in violation of the deputy's order. After Parker himself was arrested, a search revealed that he was carrying a prescription medication in a pharmacist's bottle from which the label had been illegally removed.

Parker was handed a 60-day suspended sentence with all but four days suspended and placed on one year of supervised probation. Additional charges of disorderly conduct and illegal manufacturing of a prescription drug were not prosecuted.

Tommy James Meyers, 25, Mtn. Lake Park, who had pleaded guilty to three counts of reckless endangerment stemming from his February arrest by sheriff's deputies, received his sentence last week. The charges stemmed from allegations that Meyers pointed a rifle at, then fired into the air above, three subjects who had come to his house to collect on a personal debt. Meyers was handed a 90-day suspended sentence with all but 10 days suspended and was placed on one year of supervised probation. Three additional counts of second-degree assault were not prosecuted.

Randy Bruce Hall, 33, Friendsville, was sentenced on a charge of second-degree assault stemming from his November arrest. He was taken into custody after a joint investigation by the sheriff's office and the Department of Social Services into allegations that he had slapped a juvenile in his care. Hall was handed a 30-day sentence, of which all but seven days were suspended, and was placed on one year of supervised probation. An additional charge of child abuse was not prosecuted.

Ervin Filmore Nicholson, 23, Mill Run, Pa., pleaded guilty to one count of a felony theft scheme stemming from his August arrest by sheriff's deputies in connection with a series of boat and boat trailer thefts, with an estimated total value of $21,500, from Quality Marine Storage on Bishoff Road.

Acting on information from a Connellsville, Pa., resident who had unknowingly purchased a stolen boat and boat trailer from Nicholson, investigators were able to recover several stolen boats that he had allegedly sold to other Connellsville area residents and several boats that he had stored with the alleged intention of selling in the future. Nicholson defended his actions by saying that he had been given permission to take the boats, which was true for two boats and boat trailers, but did not account for an additional six boats and seven boat trailers that he was suspected of taking.

Nicholson was handed a six-month suspended sentence, fined $55, placed on three years of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 50 hours of community service. An additional eight counts of felony theft scheme were not prosecuted.

Ronald George Richter, 18, Grantsville, was found not guilty of second-degree assault after the alleged victim in the domestic incident refused to testify, invoking her marital privilege.

Michael Milton McRobie, 39, Swanton, was found not guilty of charges of second-degree assault and fourth-degree sex offense, and an additional charge of child abuse was not prosecuted. All charges stemmed from an alleged incident of McRobie improperly touching a juvenile female. The court records stated that the alleged juvenile victim and the adult witness who had initially reported the incident refused to testify against McRobie.

A fourth-degree burglary charge faced by Timothy David Hare, 26, Glen Burnie, was stetted with the condition that he complete 50 hours of community service. Hare was charged as a result of his October arrest by state troopers in Accident after a female acquaintance allegedly found him hiding in her bedroom closet with a butcher knife. In reporting that incident to state troopers, the complainant also claimed that two weeks beforehand Hare had allegedly tied her to a bed and had raped her three times over a 12-hour period.

Not prosecuted were additional charges Hare faced of one count of first-degree rape, two counts of first-degree assault, and two counts of second-degree assault that stemmed from the September incident, and one count on second-degree assault that stemmed from the October incident. The stet ruling in reference to the October incident means that the state can recall the case for trial within the next 365 days if deemed necessary.

A perjury charge faced by Tonya Renee Hook, 24, Oakland, was stetted as well. In June Hook filed a sworn affidavit with the court commissioner, claiming that a Jeff Priapi had injured her during a domestic altercation. That allegation, made under oath, led to Priapi's arrest by sheriff's deputies on charges of two counts of second-degree assault. At the defendant's subsequent court hearing, according to the case file, Hook "testified under oath that the application for charges she had filed was not entirely true, and that she had initiated [both] the incident and the physical altercation by pushing him first in the course of their argument."

WALK FOR HOSPICE SEEKS FEET - The third Walk for Hospice is coming up next month, and participants and pledges are being sought for the annual fund-raising event. Willing walkers can choose between a three-mile hike or a more leisurely one-mile stroll, through Deep Creek Lake State Park, slated to kick off at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 18. Persons interested in participating either as a walker or by making a donation to the Walk Committee to help buy prizes may call the office of Hospice of Garrett County at 301-334-5151. Money raised from the Walk for Hospice will be used to help provide services for the terminally ill in Garrett County. Shown above are some of the members of the Walk Committee who are hard at work planning the event: left to right, Bunny Shank of LAOC Coal Company, Brenda Butscher, Hospice executive director, Karen Ray of the Board of Education, and Hospice secretary Peggy Hardman. Absent from the photo are other Walk Committee members Carol Walker, Debbie Wine, and Judy Wilt.

GARRETT COUNTY SOCIAL WORK MONTH PROCLAIMED — The Garrett County commissioners this week proclaimed March as Garrett County Social Work Month, in conjunction with the National Association of Social Workers' national designation of the same. The proclamation signed by the three local officials states that 1998 marks the 100th anniversary of professional social work, and that these individuals should be recognized because they "strive to make a difference by helping people resolve problems, cope with distressing situations, and locate resources to improve their social functioning." The document also states that the diversity of the social work profession allows some to provide direct services to those who need help, while others aim to effect social change through work with communities and the political system. Social workers serve in a variety of roles, including advocate, resource coordinator, therapist, educator, and legislative lobbyist. "They touch so many lives by assisting, guiding, and helping others to successfully negotiate life challenges," the proclamation states. Pictured left to right are Rebecca Smoot, clinical social worker; Rick DeWitt, assistant director of the Garrett County Department of Social Services; Donna McClintock, geriatric evaluator with the local health department; Commissioners Wayne Johnson, Wayne Wilt, and Gary Fratz; and Mary VanSickle, director of social services at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

James Edward Regan Jr., 19, Grantsville, was found in violation of probation for a November marijuana possession conviction. A 28-day sentence was reimposed, and his probation was revoked.

The following cases involving sentences previously handed down from the bench were revised to reflect PBJs: Joel Daniel Taylor, 36, Beitsville, convicted for cocaine possession and driving under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs; and Joseph Edward Rhoten, 20, Friendsville, and Ethan Hubersmith, 22, Frostburg, each convicted for marijuana possession.

Katheryn Danielle Cline, 20, Oakland, was not prosecuted on charges of marijuana possession, possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Robin Leonard Moyer Jr. 25, Oakland, was not prosecuted on charges of resisting arrest and obstructing a police officer's duties.

McCain To Run For Re-Election As Town Mayor

Mayor Asa McCain has announced that he will run for re-election as Oakland's town mayor.

In his bid to win his sixth two-year term, he is running without opposition. "My goal is to finish the restoration of the Oakland station," he said.

The municipal election will take place next Monday, and town residents may cast their ballots at Oakland City Hall. Besides the mayoral slot, there are three council seats also on the ballot, and six candidates have filed for the positions.

GCC Sets Summer Center Program For Math, Science

Applications are being accepted for the annual Western Maryland Center for the Integration of Mathematics and Science, which will draw talented young people from across Maryland to Garrett Community College (GCC) July 5 through 11.

Commonly referred to as the "Summer Center," this year's program concentrates advanced hands-on coursework integrating math, science, and technology through the use of space exploration simulations. The summer center is open to interested students who will be entering the sixth through tenth grades this coming fall.

"The focus of this year's center," according to GCC math department chair Dr. Nancy J. Priselac, "will be space, geometry, statistics, and computer image processing. Participants will have the opportunity to merge the power of imagination with the excitement of discovery as they play the role of engineers and scientists preparing for a space mission.

"As students utilize GCC's distance learning lab — the classroom of the future — they will gain real-world experience in the use of advanced technology," Priselac said, "including the Internet, fiber optics, compressed video, multimedia, color graphic calculators, and Windows 95 Pentium processor computers."

The learning of new technology is not an individual endeavor, Priselac went on to point out. "In exploring the theme of space," she said, "we will work in teams exploring the connections among mathematics, science, and technology in a hands-on laboratory-based program. Decision-making and problem-solving skills will be tested as students communicate electronically to prepare for a simulated experience in mission control and work aboard a space station.

"The goal by the end of the week will be to assume the roles of astronauts and mission controllers in a realistic space mission simulation," said Priselac.

The seven-day program, slated to open at 1 p.m. on its first day and then run from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. throughout the following week, will include evening recreation and field trip activities, and meals will be provided at GCC's Lakers Cafe. The cost for area students who choose to commute is $200, which covers all fees and meals. Students who commute can participate in all activities provided they have transportation home.

On-campus residential dormitory housing is available also at an all-inclusive cost of $275 per student. A night guard will be provided for the dorm.

For an application form or further information, interested persons may contact Dr. Priselac by phone at 301-387-3045, or via e-mail at drp@gcnet.net. Persons interested in participating are urged to contact Priselac as soon as possible, as space in the program is limited to a first-come, first-served basis.

The public session will resume immediately following the executive session. The public is invited to attend.

According to the office of Environmental Health Services, the wearing of hand protection greatly reduces the possibility of any human exposure.

Martha Glotfelty And Jane Avery Named To Women's Hall Of Fame

MARTHA GLOTFELTY

JANE AVERY

The Garrett County Commission for Women (GCCW) recently announced that Martha I. Glotfelty and Jane B. Avery will be the inductees for the fourth annual Garrett County Women's Hall of Fame. The independent selection committee weighed the attributes of over a dozen submissions to this year's nomination cohort.

Glotfelty is credited with opening the political door for women in the county. She was the first woman ever to be elected from Garrett County to the House of Delegates of the Maryland Legislature, serving from 1962 to 1966. "She has had a remarkable public life, contributing notably to Garrett County," said Susan Athey-Oxford, GCCW chair.

The youngest of six children born to Hamill and Sadie Casteel of Hoyes, Glotfelty attended California State Teacher's College in California, Pa., and Waynesburg College in Waynesburg, Pa. She taught for three years in the public school system.

Glotfelty has been active in church and community affairs all of her adult life. Over the years she has served as organist for the Order of Eastern Star Chapter 67, and has also served in various capacities in Farm Bureau's Associated Women, homemakers clubs, the Parent Teacher Association, and the Loar Auxiliary. Glotfelty has also served on the Council of Farming for Better Living.

Other honors bestowed on Glotfelty have been the publication of her life story in 1967 in Outstanding Personalities of the South, and in 1969 in Thousand Women of Achievement.

Glotfelty, who has said "My life has fallen in pleasant places," was nominated for the Women's Hall of Fame by the employees of Martha Glotfelty.

Jane B. Avery educates by example as she celebrates "joy in what she teaches." Avery teaches theater classes at Southern High School, and, according to her nominators, she is able to "celebrate with her students the special magic of theater by breaking down the walls of shyness and silence, in promoting self-esteem, feelings of self-worth, and respect for one another."

Avery is a graduate of Tarkio College and the University of Pittsburgh, and has collaborated on numerous community dramatic productions featuring local performers.

Last year she purchased the former museum facility of the Garrett County Historical Society to provide a home and performance space for a new community theater venture. Her inspiration and leadership are credited by her nominators with developing a new theater organization to "encourage the growth of knowledge and positive action in our community . . . to open the mind, inspire the imagination, animate the senses, nourish the spirit, and propagate humor."

Avery was nominated for the Women's Hall of Fame by the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland and the Garrett County Arts Council.

The Garrett County Women's Hall of Fame induction banquet will be held on Saturday, March 21, at the Will O' The Wisp. Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. and the country breakfast buffet follows at 10. Persons interested in participating in this event must pre-register by Friday, March 13. The cost of the event is $12.

Final List Of Candidates In Oakland Noted

The Oakland municipal election, which will select a mayor, treasurer, and three councilpersons for two-year terms, will be held Monday, March 9, with polls open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Running uncontested for the mayor's seat is Asa McCain, the incumbent, while incumbent Blair Glass is the only candidate for the office of treasurer.

Six persons, including three incumbents, have filed for three seats on the town council. The incumbents are Harold "Moose" Cannon, Donna M. Cook, and Mary Lou Stemple, while challengers for their seats are Margaret "Peggy" Jamison, Mark Proulx, and David Saba.

Holdover councilpersons are Harvey "Jay" Moyer, Arthur Naylor, and Willard Ringer.

Mayor McCain and the council encourage all eligible Oakland voters to come to the Oakland Municipal Building on Monday and cast their ballots.

4-H STATE WINNERS HONORED - Mountaineers 4-H Club of Garrett County boasts two winners in the 4-H State Wildlife Invitational. Kristen and John Gregory, Grantsville, were the only representatives from Garrett County to enter this multi-part challenge on knowledge of wildlife. The five parts of the competition included wildlife management practice, creation of a wildlife plan, viewing aerial photographs for interpretation and recommendation of wildlife habitat, knowledge of wildlife foods, and development of an urban wildlife plan. John, 13, took a fourth place spot and Kristen, 14, earned first place, making her the state champion. They are now members of the state wildlife invitational team. Both Gregorys are juniors so they were not eligible to proceed to the national team but hope to participate in the competition again this year as seniors. The event was held in Carroll County.

No Time to Panic...

The announcement this week that GPU Inc., the owner of the property under the water of Deep Creek Lake and the buffer strip around the lake, intends to sell this real estate within the next 15 months is creating various reactions throughout the county, ranging from total apathy to moderate concern to panic.

When one does the math and realizes the value of Deep Creek Lake to Garrett County, at least moderate concern about the announcement is justified. The lake and the properties which surround it, which include both private homes and businesses, generate over half of Garrett County's property tax income. In real numbers, it accounts for approximately $410 million of the county's entire assessable tax base of $775 million. In addition, there is no question that the lake is the focal point of Garrett County's tourism industry, which in 1996 generated an estimated $182 million in sales and provided nearly 3,000 jobs.

So, when one hears that the lake is for sale, on the open market, it conjures up scores of "what ifs," any one of which, and certainly a combination thereof, could significantly affect the lives of every single citizen of the county.

However, we believe there is no need for panic concerning this announcement, which came as news to most of us, but was not a great surprise to some in decision-making capacities. In fact, some members of the Deep Creek Lake Property Owners Association have known since last fall that the announcement was coming, and have been considering a variety of possible scenarios that could actually make things better for everyone.

A few comforting facts to realize are: 1. The waters of Deep Creek Lake are owned by the state of Maryland, and have been managed well by the Department of Natural Resources. This will not change, regardless of who purchases the property. 2. GPU Inc., the DNR, and the county have had a good relationship to date, and we believe GPU will be selective and continue to work in good faith with the county through the transaction. GPU really did not have to make public its intentions so far ahead of the sale, but did so to give the county and state time to consider all options. 3. We believe there is opportunity here for the county to make an investment that could reap a healthy return.

We have some opinions as to how we would like to see Deep Creek Lake owned and managed, but we will save those ideas for a later column. In the meantime, we suggest that now is not the time for panic, but for communication, discussion, and equal consideration of all the options.

To the Editor;

The Maryland Attorney General's office has ruled that Garrett County cannot vote to determine where to build the international trade corridor.

The idea for the referendum originated with Congressman Roscoe Bartlett when I advised him last fall that there is substantial opposition to a new freeway here. I stress that Bartlett did not suggest that the county vote on where to build the freeway, but whether to build it. There is a vast difference!

I encourage our legislators to stop playing semantical games and enact legislation that would allow us to choose whether to build a new freeway in Garrett Co., period!

To overcome the legal obstacles (of a referendum) the attorney general has cited, the wording in the legislation authorizing this vote could specify that it is not a referendum and is not legally binding. In other words, whatever the electoral results, legislators would still have the freedom to honor or ignore the outcome as each sees fit. Actually, the only legislator whose opinion would matter at that point is Bartlett, who has assured us he will not build a super highway where it is not wanted. This vote would merely provide the most equitable avenue available for determining precisely how the county as a whole feels about this topic.

Otherwise, we can and should assume that the attorney general has given us fair warning that the trade corridor can be built on any (or anyone's) property the state desires.

Garrett County's participation in the international trade corridor is voluntary, not compulsory, as Congressman Bartlett ha made clear.

To the Editor:

Although I've enjoyed reading your letters for over 25 years, I've never felt strong enough about any issue to express my opinions in your paper — until now.

Currently, the Southern basketball teams are in the midst of state playoffs and many of us Ram fans are extremely proud of the student athletes' success and dedication. Our kids are a great reflection of hardworking people we have in our community. Certainly we have also been blessed with having some outstanding coaches here at Southern High School over the years. Coach Tom Bosley and Coach Don Stemple and their staffs are among the very best in the state at what they do.

About four years ago Dave Bender and Fred Gregg began the Service Club Basketball League. in fact, many years ago Dave Bender began the Rotary Dribblers club. The SCBL has proven to be an excellent feeder program for our SHS teams. The current varsity and JV squads are made up of members from the SCBL's first year's teams. When they entered SHS as freshmen, they already had a considerable amount of game experience and quality coaching. Coach Bender and Coach Gregg put in many hours to ensure they had an instructional league with certified coaches.

My purpose for writing is to give these two men the credit that they deserve for the hard work that they did to get the SCBL started. To some, the success of our young WMIL champions was a surprise. Don't be surprised if Southern brings home its first basketball state championship in the next few seasons. The lady Rams also have some future prospects that are entering high school with considerable game experience. Thanks goes to Dave, Fred, and all the league coaches. The community and the basketball fans of Southern High School appreciate your efforts.

Sincerely,
Doug Oxford

To the Editor:

In last week's issue of The Republican you ran a letter to Congressman Roscoe Bartlett written by Attorney Robert O. Kazary supporting the Farm Bureau's position on the elimination of federal estate taxes. Attorney Kazary, as an attorney who deals with estate planning for individuals in Western Maryland, and as a part-time farmer, suggested that a common sense solution might include valuing farm property for estate tax purposes according to its farm use and not its development use, as long as the heirs continued the farm operation for five years after inheriting the property.

Attorney Kazary and others in the agricultural community will be pleased to learn that the Internal Revenue Code and the Maryland Annotated Code each already include special valuation sections which allow for farm use valuation as opposed to fair market value in computing estate and inheritance taxes.

Internal Revenue Code Section 2032 provides relief from the federal estate tax (which at its highest marginal rate is 55%) for qualified real property including farm property. While IRC Section 2032 has complex requirements in order for the property to qualify for special use valuation, generally speaking, qualified real property in farm use by the decedent for five out of eight years before death may be valued for federal estate tax purposes at its farm use value, provided that the heirs continue the property in farm use for 10 years after the decedent's death The decrease in value resulting from the special use valuation of the property for federal estate tax purposes cannot exceed $750,000.00. The code also provides for the recapture of estate taxes if the farm use does not continue for 10 years after the decedent's death.

The Maryland Annotated Code also provides for special use valuation for farm land in computing Maryland inheritance taxes (currently 1% for children and grandchildren and 10% for others inheriting property). Section 7-211 of the Tax General Title provides that farm use property that is assessed for real property taxes as agricultural may be valued for inheritance tax purposes at its assessed value. This section excludes the homesite from special use valuation; therefore, the house and surrounding land must be valued at fair market value. The property must continue to qualify for agricultural assessment for 15 years following the decedent's death. The Code provides for recapture of the Maryland inheritance tax if the property ceases to qualify for agricultural tax assessment within 15 years of the decedent's death.

To determine whether the state or federal special use valuation rules could apply to your farm operation and be made a part of your estate or business succession plan, it is important to consult with an estate planning professional who is knowledgeable about current tax law and about the business of farming.

Sincerely,
Criss Kepple Sweitzer

To the Editor:

In response to Richard Hill's letter, I just have one thing to say: "I can't stand it!!" Not only did it hit the target dead center, but it was so well written that not even I could top it (this time). However, I would like to offer the following analogy for consideration.

Just imagine for one moment that a major sports contest is about to ensue. The Southern and Northern basketball teams have devoted hours of practice in preparation for the big game. Friends, family, and the entire community have anxiously awaited the night of the cross-county rivalry. Fans pile into cars and drive to the host school. They stand in line to purchase tickets and are then ushered into a state-of-the-art auditorium complete with a stage comfortable seating, and perfect acoustics. Then, at the top of the hour, the basketball teams take the stage and commence to play on what appears to be a make-shift basketball court. There is a basketball goal at each end and foul lines have been painted on the floor, but it is certainly less than an adequate facility. Consequently, what should have been the best basketball game of the season turns out to be a disappointing event for both players and fans alike.

Sounds ridiculous, doesn't it? But that is what students involved in performing arts are forced to deal with every time they wish to stage any sort of production, from a school play to a combined band and chorus concert. Close to 150 students from Southern Middle School and Southern High School combined their talents last December to present an outstanding performance of seasonal music. Even though friends and family had to sit on bleachers and listen to the music that echoed through the gymnasium, which was serving as a make-shift auditorium, the spirits of the young musicians and singers were undaunted. Their hours of preparation were evident.

It's not that I feel that sports are not important. This county can be very proud of many state championships and outstanding athletes. However, it would be nice if the county's leadership would allocate funding to nurture all the fine talent that could also make this county proud. We all know that it takes an enormous investment of time, hard work, and money to achieve worthwhile goals, which brings me to my second point.

Thanks to the generosity of many people, "Our Town Theatre" is well on the way to being ready to open the doors. Appearing in this week's edition of The Republican is a list of all the contributors that have made it all possible. Please take a few moments to read this impressive list. These names will be on a Charter Membership plaque at the theatre, and we want to make sure all the information is accurate. If you find any errors please contact Jane Avery at 301-334-4359 or Richard Hill at 301-334-1739. (I was supposed to give my number, but I'm sure he won't mind if you call him instead!) And, again, thank you all!! This magnitude of support is certainly proof positive that our community does have a genuine interest in promoting and preserving the arts!

Sincerely,
Jann Dehus

READING TOGETHER

For years it had been on my mind. I wanted to gather a small group of people in my home to discuss books we were reading together. If that sounds like school, it is very like school—or, at least, what I think school should be.

I had picked the three books to be read together. And I had thought about the people I might invite to such a seminar. Some of them were good friends, longtime friends. Others were people I knew pretty well, and respected.

As I worked on the list, the invitees had to have the ability and desire to make the commitment of reading three books together in a two-month period. As the list emerged on paper, I saw that the invitees were all leaders in one way or another.

The books have never been on a bestseller list. The authors' names are not household words. The first book was The Unsettling of America, Culture and Agriculture by Wendell Berry. Anybody interested in farming or agricultural policy should read that book. It is also a wonderful book for anyone thinking about what America has been and what it should become.

The second book was Ivan Illich's Tools for Conviviality. This is the most radical of the three works, and is one of the greatest influences on my life. If you want to think about the basics of life, this is a great book, but it is not for those of feeble spirit. It is only 110 pages long, but Illich holds the reader's finger in the flame the whole time.

The third book, Disturbing the Peace, was a kind of an autobiography by Vaclav Havel, who led the 1989 "Velvet Revolution" in Czechoslovakia. He has been the president of that country and, since the split of the two halves, of the Czech Republic.

There are many fascinating aspects to this work: Havel is by occupation a playwright; he never held public office before he became president of his country; he was jailed two months before he became president, and on and on. It is an astounding tale.

So we began meeting on Thursday evenings, a total of eight participants. I set up a table in our living room in front of the fireplace. The setting was cozy and we have had, in Illich's words, a convivial time together. Tonight is our last gathering, and I think we shall be sad to see it come to an end.

We have wrangled together week by week in the most congenial possible way. It is a wonderful grace to argue without having an argument. And that is what we have done week by week. For me it has been a life-changing, friendship-deepening experience.

One of the essential beauties of our seminar is the leisure of it. We have a schedule, but it is a schedule of leisure; leisure to read, to think, to talk, leisure to grow. In this busy world in which there seems to be not enough time, time must be carved out of other things in order to have the leisure which deep learning requires.

For the rest of our lives the eight of us shall have the shared experience of the eight evenings together reading three books. There is a common basis for reference which we shall always have and which, in that one way, puts us in a world of our own—in the best possible way.

In France their core education is constructed like that. There is a list of books which literally every French citizen has read. I am no proponent of national standards, but what if a community decided that everyone going to the local school would all have the shared experience of reading a list of books?

We would wrangle, of course, over what books should be on the list, but that would be part of the point. We would wrangle together, and together arrive at a list which spoke to that which we hold in common and to that which we aspire in common. It is one way of ensuring that our schools arise from our communities and communities from our schools.

Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, reported a two-vehicle accident on Bittinger Road that sent one man to the hospital.

The incident occurred on Wednesday morning around 10 a.m. as Max Dubansky, 24, Grantsville, was westbound on Brenneman Road.

According to the report, Dubansky failed to stop at the stop sign at Bittinger Road (Route 495). A second vehicle, driven by David L. Coleman, 57, Swanton, was traveling northbound on Bittinger Road at the time. Coleman was reportedly unable to stop in time to avoid the collision when Dubansky drove through the intersection.

Dubansky was taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital by Northern Rescue Squad. He was treated and released. Bittinger VFD had also responded to the scene.

Dubansky was charged in the incident.

IT'S TOTALLY COOL TO EAT BREAKFAST AT SCHOOL - Breakfast is a great, healthy way to start the day, and Garrett County schools offer a nutritious meal each morning to get young scholars started for the day. In recognition of School Breakfast Week parents were invited to join their children at breakfast tables around the county. In the photo top left County Commissioner Wayne Johnson and his wife Jackie joined students at Broad Ford Elementary School. At Friendsville Elementary, bottom left, tucking into a hot breakfast of french toast and applesauce are, left to right, Robert Funk, Colton Tressler, and Sylvia Redman and her son Jacob. At Kitzmiller Elementary the goal was 100% participation in breakfast. In the photo above it certainly looks like they hit the mark! Superintendent Wendell Teets in the left foreground of the photo joined in the breakfast get-together. Below Dr. Teets is seen chatting with phys. ed. teacher Tom Bosley.

County Staff Reports Heard Last Tuesday

As was reported in last week's issue of The Republican, the monthly staff meeting of county directors was held with the Garrett County commissioners on Feb. 24. Updates were given by several staff leaders and the following is continued coverage of those reports.

Emergency Management

Brad Frantz, the director of Garrett County Emergency Management, told the commissioners that his staff is currently working on a capital project with state funds to place flood warning systems on three rivers. Those waterways to be monitored are the Youghiogheny, the Potomac, and the Savage, Frantz said. The devices would alert Frantz's office of rising water and would help his staff be more prepared for potential flooding.

A flood warning system for the town of Shallmar is currently "in the hands of the county attorney," Frantz said, explaining that the system is ready to be put in place, but that a few legal issues have to be settled.

"There are no problems," Frantz said. "It's just the final legal issues with a landowner along the river, and she has been very agreeable and helpful. It shouldn't be long at all."

Chamber of Commerce

Diane Wolfe of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce reported that the chamber has recently had representatives attend several promotional "shows," during which literature about the county is distributed. The shows in February were in Harrisburg, Pa.; Columbus, Ohio; Monroeville, Pa.; and Chantilly, Va. Another is planned in March in Cleveland, Ohio. Wolfe said the shows have been "tremendously successful" with people "literally standing in line" to receive information about the mountaintop.

The annual Garrett County Vacation Guide is being published and Wolfe reported that 24 pages were added this year because of the popular demand for advertising space.

The chamber is currently in the process of upgrading its home page on the Internet, Wolfe said, to make it a more effective and attractive promotional tool. It is to be completed by March 31.

Extension Service

Alice Hevner, director of the Cooperative Extension Service, reported that the seventh shipment of rabbits was sent out last week as part of the new small meats program in the county. She reported that the project has been successful so far and that persons interested in starting their own small meats project should contact the Extension Office. A meat goat management plan meeting will be held on March 7, she reported, and persons are invited to seek information about it as well.

The Garrett County 4-H Public Speaking Contest is slated for March 13 and Hevner said judges are needed for the event. She also announced that her office will host the Farm Safety Day Camp this year on July 25.

Food For Thought

The explorers who found the New World also discovered the rich flavor of chocolate, long a favorite of the Aztecs.

To make hot chocolate Mexican style, bring whole milk to a simmer with a cinnamon stick, broken in half, a few whole cloves, a pinch of anniseed, chopped semi-sweet chocolate and a little cocoa and brown sugar. Let steep half an hour, then strain and reheat.

For the crispest pie crust, use a shiny metal pie tin. It conducts heat better than ceramic, glass, nonstick or dark pie plates. Tip: bake the filled pie on a cookie sheet to catch any drips.

Shopping for ham? "Fully cooked" on the label means it's ready to serve, but it tastes best warmed to 130 or 140 degrees.

Super dessert: home-made rum-raisin ice cream. Whether it's a do-it-yourself version created in your ice cream machine or a softened store-bought frozen dessert, blend in a cup of raisins and 2/3 cup dark rum.

Art Honor Team From SHS Earns Museum Award

Members of the Southern High School Art Honor Society Grand Challenge Team recently received an award of $500 in a competition sponsored by the Baltimore Museum of Art.

The competition was based on the collection policies for aquisition and exhibition of the Victoria and Albert Museum, England. Art students from across the state were invited to participate. "There were a total of 18 schools competing, and we were among six winners of $500 prizes," explained Sonia Pratt, art teacher at Southern High School.

Garrett County students were up against some difficult competition. Among the entrants were students from magnet schools. "These schools focus on visual and performing arts," Pratt said.

The guidelines provided to entrants in the contest list the five criteria for judgment as: aesthetics, technical, historical, documentary, and space.

The student-artists were required to develop a showpiece which had an imaginative yet workable design. The piece was also to demonstrate excellent craftsmanship.

To complete the presentation, students were asked to submit documentation of the production process and a proposal of acquisition justifying how the work meets the criteria of the Victoria and Albert Museum.

The entry submitted by SHS was The Victorian Tea Table, which symbolized the Victorian period. The outside was designed with the illusion of a four-legged tea table, representing the formality of the society. The sides opened and a miniature pedestal table lifted out, revealing a hidden interior compartment.

Challenge team member Frannie Coviello explained the time frame of the group project. "It took us about three months to complete and we worked on it once a week," she said.

Rilene Lloyd, another member of the art society group, talked about working as a team. "We had some disagreements working as a team, but mostly we worked well together," she noted.

The student-artists traveled to Baltimore to see the other entries and hear the judges' results. "It was really fun. I think we learned a lot from it. Some of the other work in the contest was really amazing," Lloyd said.

Coviello, who is looking forward to college studies in art and graphics, said she enjoyed seeing all the other displays in the show. "A lot of the work was very technical and very interesting," she stated.

Along with prize money, the students were guests at a reception at the Baltimore Museum of Art and toured the exhibit "A Grand Design, The Art of Victoria and Albert Museum."

"There was also one grand prize given: a trip to Europe. We came so close," Pratt said.

Frostburg State Counseling Center Receives Grant

Frostburg State University has received a $100,000 grant from the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Administration for its project "Frostburg State University ATOD (Alcohol, Tobacco and Other Drug) Prevention Center."

The grant will create programs to prevent substance abuse on campus and to raise awareness in the community. The grant will also help to improve current community resources.

Dr. Spencer Deakin, director of the FSU Counseling Center, says the grant will enhance the university's substance abuse prevention efforts. The grant money will support peer education and increase the number of prevention education programs," he said.

The ATOD Prevention Center programs will be open to FSU students, community residents, and participants of support programs at other regional colleges. The goal is to reduce the incidence of substance abuse in the student community.

For more information on the ATOD Prevention Center, persons may call the FSU Counseling Center at 301-687-4234.

Head Start Center: Growing To Meet Community Needs

The Head Start Center in Jennings has expanded to meet the needs of the community by opening a new classroom Feb. 19. The space allows the center to serve an additional 17 children.

The new addition was created from two adjoining areas in the Jennings Community Center which combined to form one large classroom. The space is divided by tables, shelves, and play equipment into separate activity areas for the children.

Teacher Sherry Niner and assistant teacher Jana Parks have joined the staff to work with the 3 and 4-year-olds who have enrolled in the new class. The new class opened with 13 students, seven boys and six girls.

For some of the children in the new class, this is the first opportunity they have had to interact with others in an educational environment. The students come from the Finzel, Grantsville, and Lower New Germany areas.

With the expansion of the Head Start program, another office has opened at the Jennings center. Gina Bender is the new family service provider, who will be working with parents of children in the program. She will help in establishing goals and working toward them, and will assist families in accessing necessary services.

A program of Garrett County Community Action Inc., the Head Start center began accepting children over 30 years ago. The number of students that could be served at any one time was limited by classroom size to 19 children. This recent expansion has permitted the facility to accept almost twice that number.

Proulx Seeking Oakland Town Council Seat

Among the candidates who will be on the ballot in Monday's Oakland municipal election will be Mark Proulx, who is seeking a seat on the town council.

Proulx is the owner/operator of Proulx Investigations and Security and a former Oakland City Police detective and Garrett County deputy. He is a veteran of the U.S. Army and a former member of the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

He is a graduate of Southern High School and Garrett Community College, and is currently a senior at Frostburg State University with a major in justice studies.

"I am running for this position with three primary objectives," he said. "First, to work with other council members in the development of economic policy, which I hope will help Oakland business people compete and grow in an increasingly competitive market place; second, expansion of parks and recreation, with the hope that area youths will become involved in positive, adult-supervised programs; and third, using my knowledge as a former police officer to initiate training programs and update procedures within the Oakland City Police Department which, hopefully, will lead to a community-oriented police department."

Proulx added that he is "a firm believer in open government," and, if elected, would encourage citizens to contact him with problems and concerns about the city of Oakland and its government.

Huskies Top 15 Teams To Win 1A/2A Region Tourney

Outstanding achievement in the sport of wrestling has become a trademark at Northern High School, and the 1997-98 team continued that winning tradition this past weekend by capturing first place in the 16-team 1A/2A West Regional Tournament, held at North Hagerstown High School. Seven members of Coach Scott Stough's team, which finished the regular season with a 15-1 mark and repeated as the Bi-County champion, placed among the top four at the regional tourney, thus qualifying them for this week's state tournament.

While Northern has been among the strongest teams in the region for many years, it was the first time that the Huskies ever took first place in the regional tourney.

Meanwhile, Garrett County's other team in the tournament, the Southern High Rams, placed a respectable fifth place, and will be sending five grapplers to the state event. The Rams are coached by Northern High graduate Kurt Lear.

The Huskies amassed 148 points to edge second-place Williamsport, which finished with 144.5 points. Francis Scott Key was third with 105 points, followed by: North Hagerstown, 99; Southern, 93; Catoctin, 87.5; Walkersville, 84; Middletown, 66; Beall, 64; South Hagerstown, 46; Smithsburg, 32; Urbana, 26; Boonsboro, 22; Fort Hill, 6; Westmar, 5.5; and Allegany, 0.

Individual champions for the Huskies were Brandon Stein and Jimmy Warnick, while Southern's Russell Crosco also captured first place in his weight class. Stein pinned Ian Young of North Hagerstown in the championship round of the 112-pound division, Warnick recorded a major decision over Aaron Shoemaker of Beall in the title round of the 130-pound class, and Crosco decisioned Francis Scott Key's Jason Wiles in the championship round of the 189-pound division.

Earning runner-up honors for the Huskies were Jesse Shimrock (135) and Jimmy Green (140), and for the Rams, Tommy Sweitzer (145) and Nick Dolan (152).

Winning their consolation matches and thus placing third were Northern's Roy Holliday (103), Seth Huber (119), and Nate Kauffman (152), along with Southern's Eric Rexrode (135). A fourth place was captured by John Hayhurst (160) of Southern.

The state 1A/2A tournament will be held this Friday and Saturday at Western Maryland College in Westminster.

HUSKIES WIN REGIONAL TITLE - The long winning tradition of the Northern High School wrestling program continued this past weekend, as Coach Scott Stough and his Huskies defeated 15 other teams in the 1A/2A West Regional Championships, held Friday and Saturday. Seven members of the Northern team, all pictured here, finished among the top four and thus qualify for this weekend's state championships. Above left, Northern's Brandon Stein controls Jon Showe of South Hagerstown. Stein was the champion in the 112-pound division. Above center, Jimmy Warnick handles Beall's Aaron Shoemaker in the 130-pound title bout and goes on to capture the match with a major decision. Above right, Roy Holliday manages Jason Thomas of Beall in a 103-pound division match. Holliday went on to place third in that class. Below left, Northern's Seth Huber nearly pins Brian LaVoie of Catoctin, but settles for a major decision to win third place in the 119-pound division. Below center, in what looks like too many arms and legs for just two wrestlers, Northern's Nate Kauffman ties up Jason Romberger of North Hagerstown to win third place in the 152-pound division. Below right are Jesse Shimrock and Jimmy Green, who finished as runners-up in the 135- and 140-pound divisions, respectively. Southern High School also fared well in the tournament, finishing in fifth place and qualifying five Rams for the state tourney. They are: Russell Crosco, the 189-pound champion; Tommy Sweitzer and Nick Dolan, runners-up in the 145- and 152-pound divisions, respectively; Eric Rexrode, third place in the 135-pound class; and John Hayhurst, fourth place finisher in the 160-pound division.

The Pen-Mar Baseball League will hold its first meeting of the 1998 season this Saturday, March 7, at 3 p.m. at the Grantsville Holiday Inn. All managers and officers are "strongly encouraged" by league organizers to attend this organizational meeting. This season will be the 50th consecutive season for the semi-pro adult baseball league, that has teams from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia.

The Pen-Mar league is a showcase for many current and past area college baseball players. The league has featured many players who went on to play professional baseball. Most of the tri-state area baseball coaches have played at one time in the league. The league also provides a forum for many adults who want to continue playing the game of baseball beyond high school and college.

New teams are always welcomed to the league. Persons interested in getting a team in the Pen-Mar league should call Terry Helbig at 800-662-6573 or 301-334-4491. Interested players should also contact Helbig.

Arsenal Soccer Teams Fare Well In Bridgeport Tourney

The Arsenal Club, which consists of several Garrett County traveling indoor soccer teams, made its presence known at a recent tournament in Bridgeport, W.Va., as both under-18 teams played in their respective division finals.

The Arsenal team consisting of Steve Allison, Andrew Grant, Dustin Slider, Jacob Snodgrass, and Ricky Vecchioni first played a team from Clarksburg, and the match ended in a 3-3 draw. Snodgrass scored twice, once on an assist from Slider, who re-corded the third goal unassisted. Allison made six saves in the game.

In its second game, Arsenal competed against another select team sponsored by Hazmat, and earned a 2-0 victory on two more goals by Snodgrass and an assist by Andrew Grant. Allison collected eight saves.

After drawing a bye in the first tournament round, Arsenal played a strong Bridgeport United team for the opportunity to play in the division finals. Arsenal recorded a hard-fought, 4-2 victory. Snodgrass again had two goals and Vecchioni added two more. Assists came from Allison and Grant. Allison also made nine stops in goal.

In the division final, Arsenal played the excellent select Wolfpac team from Bridgeport. The Garrett County squad took a 1-0 lead only five seconds into the game on a goal by Snodgrass, but the lead would not stand, as Arsenal ultimately fell by a 4-1 score. Allison made 11 saves in goal.

Each member of the team received a medallion for its third place finish in the tournament.

Arsenal Green, consisting of Chris Friend, Nick Glotfelty, Bo Jonson, Chad Lovett, Jeff McDaniel, and John Menker, was equally successful in playing for the other division final. Had both Arsenal teams won their respective finals, they would have played each other for the tournament championship.

In the first game, Arsenal upset the second seeded team from Morgantown by a 3-1 score. Goals were scored by John Menker, Nick Glotfelty, and Jeff McDaniel. Assists were recorded by Menker and McDaniel. Bo Jonson gathered 10 saves as keeper.

In the second game, Arsenal struggled against number one seed Wolfpac, falling by a 4-0 score. Jonson had 6 saves in the game. In their third game, the local booters played the Garrett County Kickers from the northern area of the county, and won by a 2-0 score in a hard-fought contest. Lovett scored both goals while Menker had an assist for Arsenal. Jonson made six stops in goal.

In the fourth game, the winner of which would proceed to the division finals, Arsenal took command early and won, 4-0, over a team from Clarksburg. Menker collected two goals, while Lovett and McDaniel recorded one apiece. Lovett and Glotfelty had assists, and Jonson had six saves.

In the division final, Arsenal fell to eventual tournament winner Blue/Gray United by a 4-0 score. Jonson made 15 saves.

Coach Mel Menker said he was "very pleased" with the progress the teams are making. "In our first year (1997), we never won a game," Menker said. "With the steady improvement we have made, we are now a very competitive club. We are still behind in our overall skill work, but our strides have been tremendous in such a short time."

Arsenal also had four other teams in the tournament. The members of the U-16 boys' team made "great progress" in their play, according to Menker, in spite of losing the three games they played. In the first game, Arsenal played the Hazmat team, falling by a 4-0 score. Brian Cathell and Brian Oxford had numerous blocks and Chris Menker collected the ball 18 times as keeper. In the second game, Arsenal fell by a 2-0 score to a select team from Clarksburg. Cathell again had a number of blocks and Menker made 12 saves. In their third game, Arsenal fell 5-0 to a team from Charleston, despite 15 saves by Menker.

Other members of this team are Caine Chorpenning, Jim Hart, Michael Pariseau, Nick Pratt, and Andrew Rounds.

The Arsenal U-12 girls' team, consisting of Sarah Anderson, Becky Archer, Erin Oxford, Alasha Rush, Sabrina Scheffel, and April Teets, also played very well against stiff competition. In their first game, they lost 1-0 to a strong Penn Trafford, Pa., team. Archer made 17 saves in goal. In the second game, Scheffel scored three goals and Anderson added another for a victory. Archer made two saves.

In the seeded rounds, Arsenal's day came to an end in a heartbreaking 1-0 overtime loss to another select team from Pennsylvania. Archer finished with seven saves.

The Arsenal U-16 girls' team played well in its first match against an outstanding Penn Trafford club team before falling by a 2-0 score. Becky Martin had 11 saves in goal. In their second game, the girls tied a team from Buckhannon, 1-1, with Brittany Naylor tallying the goal and Martin making nine saves. In the third game Arsenal took a 1-0 victory from another Buckhannon team. Again Naylor scored the goal, with Martin gathering the ball six times in goal.

In the final game, Arsenal again played the outstanding Penn Trafford team, losing by a 3-2 score on a last minute score by the opposition. Bonnie Riley scored on an assist by Teets, while the second goal was scored on a ricochet off a Penn Trafford player. Martin made eight saves for the match.

Other members of the team are Laura Hollingsworth, Kristen Oxford, Miriam Sincell, Sarah Teets, and Alison Ulino.

The Arsenal U-15 boys' team, consisting of Eric Archer, Brian Cathell, Brandon Heselbach, Chris Menker, T.J. Nine, Bryce Taylor, and Matthew Vecchioni, also competed in the tournament. Statistics from their games were not available.

Arsenal will begin its outdoor schedule on Sunday, March 29, as members of the West Virginia Travel League, playing against clubs from Morgantown, Weirton, Wheeling, Bridgeport, Charleston, Parkersburg, Kanawha Valley, and other cities.

ARSENAL PLAYERS EARN MEDALS - Both under-18 teams in the Arsenal Football (soccer) Club captured runner-up medals in a recent tournament held in Bridgeport, W.Va., as the local booters have rapidly advanced from recording no victories last season to being one of the dominant forces in similar tourneys this season. The teams are coached by Southern High School assistant coach Mel Menker, along with a number of other Mountaintop Soccer Association personnel. Team members pictured above, from left, are: Chris Friend, John Menker, Bo Jonson, Chad Lovett, Nick Glotfelty, and Jeff McDaniel. Members of Arsenal's other U-18 team pictured below are: Jacob Snodgrass, Dustin Slider, Steve Allison, Andrew Grant, and Ricky Vecchioni. Arsenal had several other teams involved in the Bridgeport tournament. See story for the details.

BIGS SKI WITH LITTLES - Thirty-four local youngsters who are served by the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program recently spent an afternoon of skiing at the Wisp Ski Resort in McHenry, with over two dozen local adults who volunteered to be "bigs" for the day. Leaning on each other in the photo above are Derek Ashby with his "little brother" Travis, and below, "big" Ron Boyer serves in the role of a ski lift for his "little sister" Carrie. BB/BS extended its appreciation to Jerry Geisler at the Wisp, to all the volunteers, and to Garrett Automotive for making this outing possible. A spokesperson for BB/BS said that the agency regularly offers recreational/educational activities for "unmatched" youths in order to assess what type of volunteer they would be best matched with, to let each child know that the organization is still looking for a match, and to provide the one-on-one relationship with a volunteer when possible. The need for more "bigs" continues, as matches are currently being sought for 33 children throughout the county. Interested persons are asked to call 301-334-3591 for information.

Rams Nipped In Finale, But Earn Spot In Playoff Semifinal

After dropping a defensive heartbreaker to Preston County in their regular-season finale last Thursday in Oakland, 30-29, the Southern High School boys' varsity crushed visiting Beall in a quarterfinal game of the Maryland 1A West Region Tournament Tuesday. The Rams advance to the regional semifinals and will face Westmar this evening at Northern High School.

The contest with Preston County was not meant to be a slow-down variety by either team, but both squads played outstanding defense from beginning to end. The Rams trailed 7-4 at the end of the first quarter, were down 14-10 at halftime, and went into the final stanza behind 26-21.

The Rams cut the Knights' lead to what would be the final score, 30-29, with 1:38 remaining behind a field goal and a free throw by John Andrews. The Southern defense then kept Preston from scoring, and the Rams had possession of the ball with 16 seconds left. After taking the ball out under the Preston basket, the Rams called timeout with 12 seconds left. However, they were never able to get a shot off in the final moments.

Andrews and teammate Mike Paesani were the only players in the game to reach double figures, with 13 and 12 points, respectively. The only other Rams to score at all were Nathan DiSimone and Jonathan Price with two points each.

The Knights finished with a balanced scoring effort, as Jason Bolyard, Nate Haskiell, and Shaun Myers each scored eight points.

The Rams wrapped up their regular season with a 14-8 mark, and went into the regional tourney as the top seed.

The Southern junior varsity team concluded an outstanding season by winning the preliminary game, 40-37, over the Preston jayvees. Justin Stephens and Justin Liller each scored nine points for the Rams, while Dane Ridenour netted a game-high 20 points for the Knights. The win gave the Rams a 17-3 mark for the season.

The Rams' excellent defensive efforts continued Tuesday night in their playoff game against Beall, as the Mountaineers managed just 21 points in the contest. The only lead the visitors had was 2-0 in the opening moments.

The Rams were up by just two, 8-6, at halftime, stretched their lead to 20-13 by halftime, and were on top 31-14 at the end of the third stanza.

While none of the Mountaineers scored over five points, Andrews again paced the Rams in scoring with 16 points and Mike Paesani netted 12 and pulled down 13 rebounds. Two of Andrews' five field goals were from three-point range and he was perfect at the foul line (4-for-4).

Scoring five points each for the Mountaineers, who finished their season with a 7-17 mark and scored only one field goal the entire second half, were Ryan Raley, Nick Marsh, and Tom Leasure. It was the fourth time this season that Southern had topped Beall.

"This was a super defensive effort by our kids," stated Southern coach Tom Bosley. "We prepared well for the game, and our players executed the plan."

RAMS MASH MOUNTAINEERS - The boys' varsity of Southern High School had relatively no trouble earning a spot in the semifinals of the Maryland 1A West Regional Tournament, as they rolled over the visiting Beall Mountaineers, 41-21, in a quarterfinal contest Tuesday night. The stingy Ram defense has given up an average of only 39 points per contest this season. They will face Westmar this evening at Northern High School in the semifinals, and will hope to meet either Williamsport or South Hagerstown on Saturday in the regional championship game. Among the Ram team leaders is Mike Paesani, pictured at left, who scored 12 points and grabbed 13 rebounds in the win over Beall. Above, Aaron Janes goes to the hoop uncontested by the Beall defense. Also identifiable is Southern's Jesse Coddington, #23. Southern is 15-8 overall, while Westmar, a team the Rams have defeated twice this season, is 13-11.

TONIGHT'S GAME

The Rams will be the favorite in this evening's contest against Westmar, a team that they defeated by reasonably comfortable margins in both of their regular-season games, 59-47 at Lonaconing and 51-42 in Oakland. However, the Wildcats, who are currently 13-11, have won four of their last five games and have scored at least 80 points in three of those contests. They crushed Clear Spring in another quarterfinal game Monday, 93-63.

On the other hand, the Rams have the stingiest defense in the region, having given up an average of only 39 points per outing for the season. They have also won eight of their last 10 games, with the only losses coming to Preston County, and both of those by just one point (30-29 and 34-33).

This is the seventh straight year that the regional championship game will involve either Southern or Westmar, since the winner of this game will advance to Saturday's title game to face either Williamsport or South Hagerstown. The Rams were in the championship game in 1994 and 1996, with Westmar making it the other four years. The Wildcats are the defending Region 1A champion, having topped Beall in last year's finale, 46-40.

Scoring leaders for the Rams are John Andrews, with a 14.4 ppg average, and Mike Paesani and Mike Pamepinto both averaging 11.5. The duo of Andrews and Pamepinto are the area's top two foul shooters, with 83.3 and 83.0 percent, respectively.

Pacing the Wildcats in scoring is Joey Langham with a 19.2 average, ninth best in the area, followed by Troy Morris with a 13.5 mark.

Tipoff for tonight's game, to be played at Northern High School, is 7 p.m.

Ram Freshmen Conclude Best Season Ever

The Southern High School boys' freshmen basketball team concluded its season with an impressive showing in the Westmar Invitational Tournament. The Rams embarrassed Bishop Walsh, 63-7, in the opening round and then played their best game of the year with a resounding 55-34 victory over Keyser. The Rams then advanced to the title game to face Allegany, a team they had already defeated two times by a total of four points. Southern lost in a double-overtime thriller, 64-63.

The Rams never trailed in the Bishop Walsh contest and held the Spartans scoreless for the second and third quarters. Jamie Bosley scored 19 points, while Mike Saturday and Josh Stephens combined for 14 points. Jason Lottman and Keith Bennett played well defensively for the Rams. Chip Stoner and Steve Eiswert led in rebounds.

The next opponent was the Keyser Golden Tornado, which had just defeated the Rams two weeks earlier. The contest was close for three quarters, but Southern pulled away in the final stanza by out-scoring Keyser 20-8 to advance to the championship game. Three Rams scored in double figures, led by Keith Steyer's 14 points. Bosley and Ryan Ewing combined for 21 points. Josh Sharon and Justin DiSimone led the defense with five steals.

"This was probably our best game of the season. We worked very hard on defense and executed our offensive game plan effectively," stated Ram coach Jon Hegeman.

Hegeman described the championship game against Allegany as "the most exciting of the year." Alco had a tremendous height advantage over the Rams and blocked 14 Southern attempts. The Rams trailed 13-10 at the end of one period, but rallied to take a 27-21 half-time lead. The Rams were clinging to a 38-36 lead at the end of the third stanza and the teams were close throughout the fourth period and both overtimes.

Steyer paced the attack with 19 points, including two key baskets to force the first overtime. Bryan Panther scored nine of his 13 points in the second half and led the rebounders with 10. Bosley scored six of his 12 points in the overtimes to keep the Rams close.

The Rams trailed 64-63 with 15 seconds, when Panther stole the ball and passed to DiSimone, who threw a half-court shot that fell short. The ball was rebounded by Sharon, who put a shot up that just fell short. Bosley also got a chance for a tip-in that also fell short.

"This loss was a hard one to take. Our kids played their hearts out. Even when we were down in the overtime we found a way to fight back. The team effort was outstanding," Hegeman said.

Bosley and Panther were selected to the all-tournament team and Steyer was chosen as the Most Outstanding Player. The regular season produced a 14-5 record, which is the most wins for the Southern freshmen in recent years. The Rams won two more games in the Westmar Tournament.

"The season was a complete success. We improved almost every day and our confidence level went up. This group will be something to watch in the next few years," stated Hegeman.

Rams Down Hancock, Then Drop Heartbreaker To Westmar

A valiant comeback by the Southern High girls' basketball team fell short in a swirl of controversy last night as a disputed possession ruling gave the ball to Westmar with 20 seconds to go. After an intentional foul, the Wildcats hit two free throws to ice a 59-54 Class 1A West Region semifinal victory at Northern, and bring the Rams' 12-11 season to a close.

Southern had advanced to last night's contest by downing Hancock 57-43 on Monday night. The Rams led throughout that game, up 13-4 at the end of the first quarter, 25-18 at the half, and 40-32 at the close of the third quarter.

Bridget Miller's 22 points led Southern's scorers, while Jessica Saturday contributed 18 points and Laura Friend took down 11 rebounds. Hancock's Amanda Fleming took scoring honors for the night with 26 points and rounded out a fine individual performance with seven blocked shots and three assists.

Against Westmar, the Rams trailed by large margins throughout much of the contest before coming together in the final minutes to battle back to nearly pull off the win. The Wildcats were up by 10 at the close of the first quarter, 15 at the half, and 19 at the opening of the final stanza.

The fourth quarter showed the Rams' heart as they pulled together to put on a 24-5 run, which knotted the score at 54-54 with 1:18 to go. A pair of Westmar free throws made it 56-54, Southern then missed a pair with a minute left, and the Wildcats hit a third foul shot to make it 57-54 with less than 30 seconds remaining. A jump-ball call led to the possession ruling which, according to Southern head coach Bill Dignan, went against the arrow pointing in the Rams' favor.

"We then called a time-out to set up a play to try a three-pointer," Dignan said later, "but when we came out of the huddle the officials ruled that it was Westmar's ball." A pair of Westmar free throws later, it was over.

"The officials really didn't give me an explanation on the possession," said Dignan. "All they said was 'Westmar's book had it going Westmar's way,' but the tape indicated that it was supposed to be our arrow. I'm at a loss, because I really didn't get an explanation from the refs."

Miller's 26 points and 13 rebounds led the Rams, while Michelle Teter scored 12 points, Liz Paesani added six points, and Saturday contributed five points. Helene Duncan led all scores with 33 points for the Wildcats, several of them coming on solo drives the length of the court.

"Westmar played well," Dignan commented, "and we wish them nothing but the best of luck Friday night against Williamsport in the West Region championship."

After Peaking At Mt. Savage, Huskies Fall To Williamsport

"It turned around real quick," said Northern High's head coach Harv Speicher of the final minutes of a heartbreaking loss to Williamsport. "They got hot and we got cold." Outscored 15-1 over the last three minutes, the Husky girls were eliminated from West Region Class 1A tournament competition by a 52-40 margin.

The Huskies had advanced to Monday night's quarterfinal contest after defeating Mt. Savage 49-43 on Friday. In hindsight that game was a reverse image of the Williamsport matchup, for the Indians led throughout much of the evening before going cold in the face of stiff defense and the Husky shooters began to find the bottom of the net. Down by one at the close of the first quarter, Mt. Savage was up by three at the half and six at the opening of the final stanza. In that decisive fourth quarter, the Huskies worked to close the gap and eventually took the lead on four straight unanswered baskets, outscoring Mt. Savage 18-6.

"I have to credit the team for their defense in the fourth quarter," Speicher was later quoted as saying. "It was a great high school basketball game and we were able to pick it up well late in the game.

Power forward Brooke Brenneman's 24 points led all scorers, and she also took rebounding honors for the Huskies with 14 pull-downs. Laurel Wolf had 10 rebounds, and Jill Speicher handed out seven assists and hit six of seven free throws. Heather Abucevicz scored 21 points for the Indians and took down 10 rebounds.

Against Williamsport Monday night, the Huskies had their Igloo rocking as they led 14-10 at the close of the first quarter, 24-22 at the half, and 34-29 at the opening of the fourth quarter. The hard-fought contest began to take its toll in the final stanza, however, as Williamsport's size and depth advantages began to wear down the home team.

"We had been playing really hard, but they started hitting their shots and we got cold," said Brenneman. Speicher commented that "It was a great game and both teams played hard."

Senior Brenneman scored a game-high 20 points and nabbed 10 rebounds for the night, as she and fellow seniors Speicher, Wolf, and Kathy Arnold took the final bows of their illustrious careers on the Northern gym court. "Those seniors have played together for four years," Speicher reflected, "and the whole team had a great year this year, especially considering we had lost two very strong players from last year. I'm very proud of everyone on the team."

Brooke Weimer's 14 points led Williamsport scorers, and Megan Andrews added 13 points and Jess Rouser contributed 11 points.

The Huskies 1997-98 season stands at a final record of 13-1.

Huskies Conclude Season With Playoff Loss To Mount Savage

The 1997-98 basketball season came to an end for the Northern High School boys' varsity Friday night when the Huskies dropped a 63-49 decision to host Mount Savage in a Class 1A West first-round playoff contest. Coach Mike Friend and his team finished with an overall mark of 6-17.

Northern played well in the first half of the game, leading 17-15 at the end of the first quarter and down by just four, 29-25, at halftime. But the Indians outscored the Huskies in the third stanza by a 20-13 margin to take an 11-point advantage, 49-38, into the fourth quarter.

Dustin Long was the only Northern player who reached double figures, as he hit a game-high 23 points. Scott Sisler and Rob Dozier each netted eight points. Sisler was held well below his average in scoring, primarily by Mt. Savage's Mark Miller.

Pacing the Indians (11-12) was Carl Crawford, who recorded 21 points and 16 rebounds. Miller also hit double figures with 13 points, as did Larry O'Baker with 12 and Joe Shaffer with 10.

The Indians moved on to face, and lose to, Williamsport in a quarterfinal game Tuesday.

Local Gymnasts Vie In Tampa, College Park

Southern High School junior Andi Bender traveled to Tampa, Fla., last weekend to compete in the 10th annual Gasparilla Classic, a national invitational meet which attracted over 3,000 gymnasts from 26 states. Competing in rotations of 48 girls, Andi earned a ninth place award for her balance beam routine against other level 9 gymnasts. A back injury forced her to scale down her routines and withdraw from the all-around competition.

Southern Middle School student Laura Preston competed with her level 8 teammates from Morgantown at the 10th annual Columbia Challenge Invitational in College Park last weekend. Gymnasts were from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio,

Youth League Ends Season With Playoffs, Pizza, Guest Speaker

The Service Club Basketball League ended its fourth year of existence with a flurry of activities on Saturday at Southern High School, including playoff finals, a pizza party, and a featured speaker.

The day began with the Business and Professional Women hanging on to defeat the Oakland Women's Civic Club, 19-18. BPW was led by Emily Lynch (8 pts.) and Jodi Kulak (6 pts.). Katie Richter played excellent defense and Kayla Nazelrod chipped in with 3 points. OWCC was led by a strong performance by Melissa Durst, who scored 10 of her team's 18 points. Stacy Holler and Amber Bernard made defensive contributions.

In the championship game of the Girls' Division, Catholic Daughters of America finished a perfect season (15-0), holding on to outlast the American Legion Auxiliary, 34-30. The game was nip and tuck in the first half, with the Legion leading for much of the half on balanced scoring and intense team defense. Five different players scored in the half. Strong inside play by Ashley Keeys late in the half helped CDA take a 16-14 half-time lead. After the half, CDA jumped out to a 10-point lead behind a strong defense by Kim Teter, Autumn Uphold, and Sharon Harvey. But the Legion wasn't finished. Jackie Uphold, Brittany Naylor, and Laura Hollingsworth led a Legion surge that tied the game with two minutes on the clock. But again, Ashley Keeys put the game out of reach for CDA.

Keeys led all scorers with 16 points. Uphold led Legion with 10 points and was also aided by defensive hustle by Emily Cosner. The Legion ended its season with a 8-7 record.

In the Junior Division (5th, 6th graders) consolation game, the Veterans of Foreign Wars (5-9) squeaked out a two-point win over the Masonic Lodge, 29-27. VFW was led offensively by Justine Pagenhardt (8 pts.) and Emmett Michael (9 pts.). Derek Nutter controlled the boards and chipped in with 6 points. Robby Stemple led the Masons with 12 points. Brad Reese played excellent defense and added 9 points. Sabrina Scheffel added hustle and ball handling.

In the championship game, American Legion jumped out to a 16-8 half-time lead behind the play of Chris Hoff, only to hold on for dear life to squeeze out a 34-26 victory over the Fraternal Order of Police. Justin Baylor helped American Legion fend off FOP run by scoring 12 of his 14 points in the second half. Aaron Louden chipped in with six points. Billy Reams and Cory Tressler provided excellent team defense and ball handling. Cory Bosley led FOP's big second half run, scoring all 12 of his points after the half-time break. Derrick Rhodes and Ron Coleman provided scoring and defense inside and Robbin Gregg and Mike McCauley provided inspired hustle to contain the high-powered American Legion offense.

American Legion ended the season at 13-1, while the Fraternal Order of Police ended with a 10-4 record.

In the Senior Division (7th, 8th graders) consolation game, Bryson Meyers dominated the boards and played excellent inside defense while scoring 20 points to help his Lions defeat the Knights of Pythias, 46-41. Joel Helbig added 11 points and Brandon Louden scored 10 points. Bubba Lemley and Ashley Liller added excellent ball handling and defense to help the Lions to their third win of the season.

Chad Panther led the K of P with his playmaking and led his team in scoring with 14 points. Joe Davis added 13 points. Jonathan Sypolt and Eric Martin controlled the defensive boards for K of P. Danny O'Brien excelled on defense and Jeremy Durst displayed all around hustle and heads-up play.

In the championship game, the Elks (13-1) came from behind to pull away from Rotary (8-6) for a 50-37 victory. D.R. Parsons led the Elks' comeback by scoring 13 of his 19 points in the second half, as well as controlling the boards. Ricky Reams's effective ball handling and clutch scoring helped diffuse the Rotary full court press. Ryan Uphole and Bryan Houser helped Parsons plug up the middle defensively as well as chipping in with eight and six points, respectively. Matthew Stephens and Toby Stoner provided timely defense and ball handling. Mike DeWitt scored nine of his 15 points in the first half to help push his team out to a 25-19 half-time lead. Danny Harvey scored 8 points. Dennis Tressler helped rebound and play inside defense for Rotary. J.B. Murphy provided perimeter defense and A.J. Bender provided solid ball handling in that first half of play.

The championship games were followed by a league pizza party in the Southern cafeteria. The celebration was sponsored by Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Cumberland, Oakland Foodland, and Little Caesar's Pizza of Oakland.

After the party League directors Dave Bender, Fred Gregg, and Russ McConnell recognized the volunteer officials, coaches, and high school student volunteers. Each championship team was recognized. This year's All-Star teams were announced from the Girls' Division: Amber Bernard, Megan Burner, Laura Hollingsworth, Ashley Keeys, Brittany Naylor, Kim Teter, Molly Thayer, and Autumn Uphold will represent the Service Club Basketball League in the first Girls' Open Tournament, to be held Saturday, March 21, at Southern Middle School and Sunday, March 22, at Southern High School.

From the Junior Division, Justin Baylor, Cory Bosley, Robbin Gregg, Chris Hoff, Michael McCauley, Derek Nutter, Justine Pagenhardt, and Billy Reams will represent the Service Club Basketball League in the 2nd Annual Junior Division Open Tournament to be held Saturday, March 14, at Southern Middle School and Sunday, March 15, at Southern High School.

From the Senior Division, Chad Panther, Ricky Reams, D.R. Parsons, Joel Helbig, Ashley Liller, Mike DeWitt, J.B. Murphy, and Bryson Meyers will represent the Service Club Basketball League in the 3rd Annual Senior Division Open Tournament, to be held this Saturday, March 7, at Southern Middle School and Sunday, March 8, at Southern High School.

The ceremonies closed with the featured speaker, Southern High School head basketball coach Tom Bosley, who addressed the league participants on the importance of "Attitude." His remarks centered on the importance of how one should approach learning how to successfully play team basketball. Coach Bosley connected those attitudinal skills (goalsetting, team work, hard work, dedication, commitment, respect for each other, respect for oneself) to success in life in general, and ended his remarks with an inspirational reading.

Fly Fishing Guide Certification Offered At GCC

The Adventuresports Institute (ASI) is offering certification testing in professional fly fishing guiding, according to Mike Logsdon, director of the Adventuresports program at Garrett Community College (GCC).

The goal of the fly fishing certification program is the enhancement of the ability of local professional fly fishing guides to serve their clients with a quality outdoor experience. The test is totally voluntary, as no such certification is required to offer guided fly fishing excursions on a professional basis. The certification process is credited, however, with providing a better understanding of generally accepted practices within the industry and the development of good judgment skills in the area of risk management.

With the recent national publicity garnered by Garrett County's fly fishing waters, the Adventuresports program recognized the need for establishment of certification requirements. Fly fishing experts from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Fisheries Division, Maryland Natural Resources Police, the Youghiogheny Chapter of Trout Unlimited, and the Appalachian Laboratory of the University of Maryland assisted the Adventuresports program in drawing up certification guidelines.

The certification involves both written and practical skills examinations. The written examination is divided into five parts, including questions about fly fishing technique and equipment, fishing regulations, stream ecology, local natural and cultural history, and guiding etiquette.

The practical skills portion involves testing in the ability to properly assemble and rig a fly rod, demonstrating accuracy and distance in casting, proper identification of 24 locally used fly patterns, properly tying a number of often used knots, and an overall rating of the applicant's ability to instruct.

Applicants must register by Friday, March 13, in order to be included in a one day certification review exercise to held at 10 a.m., Saturday, March 14, at GCC. During this session, applicants will be able to review the materials to be included on both the written and practical exam components. Members of the advisory committee will also be available for questions and answers concerning the overall process of guide certification.

The actual certification examination is set for Saturday, April 4, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., at GCC. The total combined cost for the review session and the testing session is $60. For registration information, interested persons may call the ASI at 301-387-3032 or e-mail the ASI at crystal@gcnet.net.

Garrett County Outdoors

By Robert Yonke

This sure has been a strange winter; big snows, big thaws, little ice for ice fishing. It makes a lot of folks look ahead to spring and in Garrett County that means fishing and it means spring gobblers.

The 1998 spring turkey hunting season will open April 18 and run through May 16. The limit is one bearded turkey, unless no turkey was taken in the fall, and in that case, two bearded birds are permitted. Hunters are reminded that a tag must be completed and attached to the bird before removing it from the place of harvest. And within 24 hours, all harvested turkeys must be checked at a checking station in the county where killed.

New for this year is the regulation that permits the use of blinds in the spring season. Hunters must wear the required orange while in transit to their blind and it is recommended that they mark their blind by placing an orange band in a tree close by.

POTENTIAL DNR VOLUNTEERS, PLEASE NOTE

We recently had mentioned in this column that the DNR was looking for volunteers with outdoor interest and expertise to join the (1) Maryland Natural Resources Police Reserve Officer Program, (2) TREE-MENDOUS Maryland, and (3) The Volunteer Ranger Program. Since then, we received a letter from Patricia Manown Mash, DNR public affairs officer in western Maryland, with these corrections.

Anyone interested in the Natural Resources Police Reserve Officer Program should call NRP Cpl. Lester Engel at 301-777-7771. He is the specific contact person for this region. Regarding the Volunteer Ranger Program, even though the Annapolis number previously given is correct, individuals may contact any of our local parks or forests for more information.

TROUT STOCKING TIME

Put-and-take trout fishermen will be glad to know that the DNR has stocked local streams and lakes with over 122,000 trout of catchable size. Distribution is as follows: Bear Creek, 11,000; Savage River, 11,000; Savage River Reservoir, 9,000; New Germany Lake, 4,500; Youghiogheny River at Friendsville, 6,000; Youghiogheny River at Oakland, 6,000; Mill Run, 4,500; Muddy Creek, 3,000; Herrington Creek, 800; Little Youghiogheny River, 4,500; North Branch of the Potomac, below the dam, 21,000; North Branch at Kitzmiller, 3,000; North Branch at Gorman, 2,000; Deep Creek Lake, 18,000; Piney Reservoir, 7,000; Broadford Lake, 3,000; Herrington Lake, 3,000; Accident Pond, 1,300; and Jennings Randolph Lake, 4,000.

In the same DNR bulletin on the trout stocking, it was noted that whitewater releases are scheduled for the North Branch of the Potomac below the Jennings Randolph Dam for April 18-19, May 2-3, May 16-17, and May 30-31. For up-to-date water release information, call 410-962-7687.

FISHING IN VIRTUAL REALITY

At the recent Allegheny Sport Travel and Outdoor Show at the Pittsburgh Expo Mart, I saw a demonstration of a computer that simulates the fishing experience and does it amazingly well. At first, I was skeptical of anything electronic being able to mimic real fishing; but, after Paulette Anderson of Reel Fishin' Productions handed me the rod I guess you might say I was hooked.

The experience goes something like this. The fisherman in the equation holds a regular rod with the line attached to the simulator and watches a bass trailing his apparent lure on a TV screen. The fisherman senses the pulsation of the lure, feels the bass strike, sets the hook, and the fight is on. Too much slack results in the bass throwing the lure, too much tension and the bass breaks off. The battle lasts two minutes and the fisherman's performance is scored.

In addition to the bass experience, the manufacturer offers a fight with a 40-lb. King Salmon, a deep sea battle with a sailfish, and a hook-up with a lake trout. I don't think this will ever replace the enjoyment of being on the water. But, for a trade show, club entertainment, training tool, maybe? For information on The Sportfishin' Simulator, contact Paulette Anderson at 724-929-9492.

ARCHERY LEAGUE REPORTS

Winter archery competition in area leagues is about at its midway point, and Dan Milavec of D & B Sports Shop in Deer Park said that the team of Jamie Streets, Ricky Jones, and Mike Droppleman has retaken the lead in their league. Jamie had a particularly outstanding round last week, scoring 226 out of a possible 240 points.

Jimmy Iden of Appalachian Mountain Crafts reports that Keith Harman is leading their men's singles league and Cheryl Iden is heading up the women's division. Both have had outstanding rounds recently. Keith shot a 279 out of a possible 300 and Cheryl a 262.

WALLEYE FISHING TOURNAMENT COMING UP

The Garrett Bassers are sponsoring their annual open walleye tournament on Deep Creek Lake this coming April 18. Over 100 boats are expected, which translates to 50 two-man teams. It is a team competition; the tournament scores the weight of the boat's catch rather than individuals. The cash payment to the winners depends on the number of entries; but, last year the first place team took away $1,200. There will be food, refreshments, and prizes given away at the weigh-in. Registration fee is $65 per boat in advance or $70 on the day of the event. The state park launch area will be the center of activities.

Interested competitors should contact Jimmy Iden at AMC. The phone there is 301-387-7064. There are also applications at most sport shops in the area.

DINE WITH THE HUNGRY WOLVES

The Wolf Den Hunting Club will be staging its annual banquet on Saturday, March 28. Tickets are $15 per person and can be obtained at D & B Sports Shop in Deer Park or from a member of the club.

Edwards, Hafer Give Reports On Session Progress

District 1-A Delegate George Edwards and Garrett-Allegany Senator John Hafer met with approximately 50 constituents Saturday morning in the Garrett Community College auditorium to give reports on the progress of this year's General Assembly. Numerous legislative topics were discussed, ranging from farmer support bills to child support issues.

Edwards opened the meeting by explaining that he and Hafer support one another's bills, generally by introducing identical House and Senate proposals.

"The House bills have my name on them and the Senate bills have Sen. Hafer's name on them, but they are really our bills. It's just the way the system works," Edwards said. The two have also entered bills together as the Western Maryland Delegation.

He and Hafer then enumerated several bills and gave brief explanations of them. Some of those are as follows:

HB 237
SB 285

These bills will allow local dairy farmers to join the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact. The advantage of becoming part of the compact would be for the farmers, who would be able to get a higher price from the processors.

According to Hafer, the state has lost 82 dairy farms in the past year. Virginia and Pennsylvania belong to the compact and have found it to be helpful in keeping dairy farmers in business, the officials reported.

This bill was entered at the request of the Garrett County commissioners, who wished to expand their authority to finance certain capital improvements or buying property. The bill increases the commissioners' finance allowance from $500,000 to $1.5 million.

Edwards explained that the county officials would still be required to hold public hearings on any purchases and to follow all other laws pertaining to such activity.

HB 443

Making English the language of Maryland law is the purpose of HB 443, Edwards said. He is the lead sponsor on this bill.

"This bill simply proposes that the English language be recognized as the 'language of law,'" he said. If passed, the law will have no effect on any private group; it merely states that, unless otherwise requested, the bills and laws will be printed in English.

"If we all spoke German here and we were discussing the bills, we could still have them printed in German. This bill just proposes that the first printing of these things be done in English," Edwards said. "It could save us great expense in printing and materials."

HB 569

House Bill 569 proposes that Garrett County Sheriff's Office employees all be placed in the employment category of classified service. In essence, this provides some job protection to deputies at the time of the installation of a new sheriff.

"This bill protects deputies from being fired for no reason when a new sheriff comes in," Edwards said. "As it stands now, if the new sheriff just doesn't like the deputies, he can get rid of them. This would change it so that he would have to go through all the proper channels if he wanted to let someone go."

Edwards noted that this protection would not extend to the chief deputy, as this individual is generally appointed by the sheriff.

HB 785

These bills were introduced at the request of the Garrett County Liquor Control Board and focus on the board's local control. HB 785 would give the liquor board the authority to further penalize an offending alcohol seller if the courts have already given the seller probation before judgment.

"Basically, if a seller is charged for selling alcohol to a minor or an intoxicated person and then is given probation before judgment, there isn't anything else the liquor board can do. This would give them authority to further penalize the offender," Edwards said. "It allows the liquor board to have more authority in curbing sales to minors and intoxicated persons."

Senate Bill 701 would give the board the authority to conduct a background check on anyone applying for an alcohol license or license renewal. This could include fingerprints and police records, the officials explained.

"This doesn't mean the board is required to do a check," Edwards said. "It just gives it the authority to do one if the members feel it is needed."

House Bill 841 prohibits various stages of nudity and "certain sexual acts" in an establishment where alcoholic beverages are sold.

Other issues discussed by the two officials included a bill by Hafer that focuses on persons who are delinquent in child support payments, yet they receive funds from the state for caring for foster children.

"It's outrageous to me that someone who is not supporting his or her own child can get money from the state by housing foster children," Hafer said. "This is just not right and needs to be changed."

Hafer has also sponsored a bill (HB 425) that would require judges to prescribe joint custody in divorces unless there are solid reasons not to do so. In other published reports, opponents have expressed their fear that this would not be in the best interest of the children, as one parent may be a spouse abuser. Hafer and his supporters feel that sole custody rulings are "outdated" and that both parents should be given the opportunity to make major life decisions about their children.

Opponents have voiced the opinion that presumed joint custody could put more women in danger of being put in contact with a former abuser. They have also noted that two people who cannot get along will now be forced to make decisions together, which could be damaging to a child. The bill supporters, however, contend that a sole custody ruling makes one parent "suddenly become a visitor in his or her child's life" and the judge decrees that the excluded parent's only responsibility in his/her child's life now is to pay child support. Hafer said he feels the bill will benefit Maryland's children.

Edwards discussed a bill introduced to obtain funding for the business incubator project at Garrett Community College. The needed state funding is approximately $1.1 million, offsetting the total cost of the project, which is about $2.6 million. Edwards said money is expected from the state economic development office, the Appalachian Regional Commission, and other sources. The local cost will be about $75,000, he said.

The project will be for the benefit of local persons who wish to start a business but cannot afford the start-up costs. Their businesses will be "incubated" for a time at the GCC facility, until they are able to become independent.

Edwards and Hafer said they are open to and welcome telephone calls and other correspondence from their constituents. Information about their bills can also be seen on the Internet at http://mlis.state.md.us.

Tax Relief For State Homeowners Passes House

A vote of 114 to 16 in the Maryland House of Delegates soundly passed a tax relief bill for state homeowners. The plan lowers the property tax rate in Maryland by at least five cents, which would reportedly send back to homeowners approximately $58 million of the $238 million budgetary surplus.

The one-time reduction in state property tax is to lower the current property tax rate from 21 cents per $100 of assessed value to no more than 16 cents per $100 for one year.

According to Speaker Casper R. Taylor (D-Allegany), the tax cut can be achieved because "the economy is booming right now."

"I am pleased that members of the House supported a fiscally responsible approach to the surplus rather than indulging in a premature shopping spree of programs and tax cuts that we may not be able to afford to pay for in future years," Taylor said.

Several alternative spending plans are presently before the lawmakers, including a proposal to accelerate a five-year income tax cut that was approved during the 1997 General Assembly.

According to the Department of Policy Analysis, a homeowner who occupies a house valued at $121,843 (the median assessed value of a single-family home in Maryland) would keep approximately one-fourth of his property tax from last year, or about $25 of a tax bill.

GPU To Sell

cated that the lake is "essential to the operating budget of the county."

Early interest solicitation will be accepted until March 15, according GPU's timeline document. Persons or entities expressing interest will then be provided with more information about the divestiture. The commissioners stated that they will be submitting a letter of interest.

"We just don't know very much about it yet," said Chairman Wayne Wilt. "It's hard to comment on it until we get more information."

The news of the sale has spread statewide, with reports in other newspapers of residents' "anxiety and concern" about the sale. However, local officials have this week expressed cautious optimism about the potential positive aspects of the change.

"It is a little unsettling, but I truly think this will turn out all right in the end," said Fratz. Johnson said in a later interview that he, too, feels the outcome could certainly be positive for the county.

"We're not panicking," said Gerald Polansky, president of the Deep Creek Lake Property Owners Association, who said his organization has known about the sale since October. "We have been very methodically and logically looking at the best alternatives. We truly see it as more of an opportunity than anything."

The commissioners, the property owners' group, and other officials seem to be in agreement that local ownership would be an optimum alternative.

"This might be the first time since the lake was built in 1925 for local ownership and local control," Polansky said. "It's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity."

Polansky said he has personally met with officials from DNR, the state, and GPU.

"I have been very pleased in all the conversations with these people. Everyone, including GPU, has given full support of what we would like to see here in Garrett County," he said, adding his opinion that GPU has been a "good corporate citizen" in the dealings so far. "They are well aware of how important the lake is to us here. I believe they will work closely with the county and state."

GPU has in fact offered to include the county and state representatives in the bidding process, and has reportedly pledged to keep the officials informed of all developments as the process continues.

In the divestiture timeline, bids will be taken in July, after the preliminary early interest letters and qualification requests are completed. The final binding bids are due on Nov. 30, and the winning bidder will be selected on Dec. 30. The closing on the deal is slated for June 30, 1999.

The actual price of the lake has not been formally announced by any official to date, although an article in The Sun on Tuesday states that a GPU spokesperson said the book value of the lake and plant is $4.6 million. However, according to the article, the sale price will most likely be more than twice that amount. County and state officials declined to publicly speculate about the monetary worth of the lake.

Saturday's meeting, as Edwards had brought with him a folder containing a full account of his and Hafer's part in the deal. A public meeting was held on the issue in December 1994 at GCC. At that time, the report from constituents was favorable, Edwards said. He also noted that other groups giving favorable responses to the deal were the Savage River Advisory Board, the Potomac River Advisory Board, the Department of Natural Resources, and General Services.

"There was nothing done out of the ordinary in this deal," Edwards said. "It was out in the open and up front. The record is very clear on this issue."

hostages held in Beirut, Lebanon, propelled Oliver North into international prominence. He remained in the public eye as he became a focus of the Iran-Contra hearings in the mid-'80s. He has been characterized as conservative, charismatic, and controversial.

Colonel North has lectured at Oxford, Cambridge, and Trinity colleges, as well as numerous American universities. He now broadcasts the nationally syndicated Oliver North Show, which is aired Monday through Friday, 3-6 p.m., on the Common Sense Radio Network. The studio is headquartered Washington, D.C. The Oliver North Show is reportedly one of the top 10 radio talk shows nationwide, with an audience of 2.5 million listeners on more than 100 stations from coast to coast, a spokesperson said.

North also serves as the honorary chairman of Freedom Alliance, the conservative public policy organization he founded in 1990. Freedom Alliance is committed to strengthening morality in the country's public institutions and restoring honesty and integrity to the political system, according to the spokesperson.

"The Freedom Alliance is dedicated to the maintenance of a strong national defense, the protection of the rights and freedoms of individual citizens, and the adoption of policies that promote free enterprise," the spokesperson said. "Through educational programs and humanitarian efforts, Freedom Alliance and its more than 100,000 members work to achieve the preservation of traditional American values and institutions, especially the fundamental principles embodied in the Declaration of Independence and Constitution."

sonal availability and abundance of food," he said. Last year's combination of a late frost and a wet spring has been cited by area hunters as primary factors in the reduced acorn production.

"Acorns are a very important food source for black bears during the fall of the year." Slattery continued. "Bears feed on acorns to fatten up for the winter. When acorns are in short supply, bears are forced to find alternative food sources. Unfortunately, one of these alternative food sources is corn," he said.

Under Maryland law landowners may be compensated between $200 and $3,000 per year for documented bear damage. If the money in the fund is not sufficient to satisfy all the claims in any given year, an equal percentage of each claim shall be paid. Last year total black bear damage claims eligible for reimbursement amounted to $21,140, but funds were not adequate to pay damages in full.

Landowners who apply for bear damage compensation must report the claim to DNR in a timely manner. DNR then conducts a field investigation to verify that the damage was caused by black bears. Then an appraisal of loss is determined by the UMCES.

During the last 20 years, according to DNR, improved forest habitat in Western Maryland, combined with successful black bear management programs throughout the Appalachian Highland Region, have resulted in significant growth in Maryland's black bear population. "Black bears are an important part of Maryland's natural heritage," Griffin said, "but as the population has increased, so have general nuisance complaints and agricultural damage."

DNR initiated a Black Bear Conservation Stamp program in 1996 to raise funds to reimburse landowners for agricultural damage caused by black bears. Stamp sales have been continuing since October of 1997, with all proceeds going to Western Maryland farmers. However, stamp sales have not generated sufficient funds to reimburse landowners in full, hence the announcement to supplement compensation to bring it to the 42 percent level. He added that the recent addition to this year's compensatory funding does not come from the operating budget of DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Division.

"The Black Bear Conservation Stamp Program, which funds compensation for agricultural damage, is an important step toward increasing landowner tolerance of black bears," Griffin commented. "I encourage all Maryland citizens interested in the conservation of black bears to purchase a Black Bear Conservation Stamp. The future success of this program is dependent upon citizen support. The department is hopeful that the Black Bear Conservation Stamp Program will become self-sufficient."

DNR also announced that the 1998 Black Bear Conservation Stamp, as designed by Middleton Evans, will be available soon. Information and order forms are available at all DNR Regional Service Centers, by calling 1-800-638-7337, or on DNR's homepage on the Internet at www.dnr.state.md.us.

U.S. MARSHALS

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 2:13

Being a sequel to a movie that is generally thought of as one of the best of the genre is a difficult assignment for any movie. The Fugitive (1993) received an Academy Award nomination for Best Picture, and Tommy Lee Jones won for Best Supporting Actor. Now, with U.S. Marshals, we must continue without Harrison Ford, without that film's four-man writing team, and without the distinction of being first, which is important. Still, director Stuart Baird has packed U.S. Marshals with nail-biting moments; in fact, the early plane crash sequence is one of the most exciting I've ever seen.

Unfortunately, the film continues to lose altitude even after the jet is on the ground. Flying a group of federal prisoners to another facility, Chief Deputy Marshal Samuel Gerard (Jones) is head of the group of federal lawmen in charge. Sheridan (Wesley Snipes) is one of the prisoners, who has been accused of murdering two top G-men. But when one prisoner explodes a bomb, a large hole is blown in the side of the plane, causing it to decompress just like in Airport (1970). But this time there is no Dean Martin to bring the plane in safely. It flops upside down into a lake in the middle of the night, and the marshals round up survivors. In the morning, Sheridan is the only one missing. So the manhunt begins.

Much to Gerard's dismay, he and his team are not going to be allowed to conduct the search by themselves. The federal agency who employed Sheridan's alleged victims have a vested interest in bringing in the killer, so agent John Royce (Robert Downey Jr.) is assigned to tag along. Gerard is forced to deal with a new man in his group, a loose cannon who wants to out-tough-guy the tough guys.

Apart from Kate Nelligan, who plays Gerard's boss (and who can't seem to deliver a line effectively), the acting isn't bad in this movie. Jones, Snipes, and Downey all are excellent as usual. But let's face it--they're not exactly breaking new ground character-wise. Writer John Pogue has stuck closely to the action/adventure formula in his first outing since being one of 8 co-writers for Arnold Schwarzenegger's 1996 vehicle Eraser. The plot is nothing new either: federal agents chasing a stunningly inventive criminal who believes he's not guilty, and lots of shooting. The "who's the real good-guy" device is also becoming old hat, and though it does add a few mildly surprising twists, there's not enough character development for us to really care.

And just when you think this movie's going to end, it goes on for another half hour. Any police thriller that lasts longer than two hours runs the risk of outstaying its welcome, and this one passes up a few good chances to wrap it up. Jerry Goldsmith's music is exciting and effectively complements the roller-coaster action sequences, but if you're interested in more than cheap thrills and bravado, you may be disappointed. ★★★

KISSING A FOOL

Rated R - Running time: 1:33

I went to this movie expecting it to be another insipid romp with a Friends castmember (in this case, David Schwimmer). I was pleasantly surprised. Kissing A Fool delivers some real acting and humor. But it can't decide whether it's just lighthearted fun or a deep probe into the true meaning of love, and neither can director Doug Ellin.

The movie opens at a wedding, with hostess Linda (Bonnie Hunt) telling a couple of guests the story of the marital couple's meeting and romance. The couple is not clearly shown; we are supposed to guess who's getting married. I won't tell, but anyone who can't figure it out in the first 15 minutes isn't paying attention.

Jason Lee plays Jay Murphy, a novelist who has been dumped by the love of his life and is now writing his tragic story. His childhood friend Max Abbitt (Schwimmer) is a locally famous TV sportscaster who is living the life of a playboy and living it full tilt. But Max's carefree lifestyle comes to an end when he falls head over heels in love with Jay's editor, Samantha Andrews (Mili Avital).

Soon after Max and Sam decide to get married, he gets cold feet, wondering if Sam can be faithful to him. So he wants Jay to get close to Sam and "test" her. Jay wants nothing to do with this, but he can't help that he feels something for Sam. Meanwhile, Sam seems to care for both men; she sleeps with Max but spends most of her time with Jay. Can you guess who's the happy couple yet?

The script for this movie, written by James Frey with help from director Ellin, is inconsistent. For instance, an adult trying to get his best friend to seduce his fiancée in order to test her fidelity is right out of a sophomoric TV sitcom (like Friends, for instance). And the characters are stereotyped, like the lonely writer of beautiful love stories, or the jocky sportscaster who "hates books." But the dialogue is written in a no-nonsense style, and Ellin seems to take the story very seriously. There are some rather intense moments, too intense for the silly frat-prank premise.

These actors, particularly Lee, do an astounding job of rising above the script, however. Lee has an incredible sense of spontanaeity, which he showed us in Chasing Amy. His delivery is absolutely genuine. Avital also lends a simple reality to her performance--she is breezy and likeable; we enjoy getting to know her. Schwimmer struggles to be different from his Ross character on Friends, and succeeds--moderately. And Hunt gives us some out-loud laughs as the narrator. Her role is probably unnecessary, but she's so good she justifies its inclusion.

All in all, Kissing A Fool is better than average for a romantic comedy. The soundtrack featuring several snappy numbers by Harry Connick Jr. helps, but I think the lion's share of credit must go to the three leads. ★★★½

DARK CITY

Rated R - Running time: 1:43

At first, this movie appears to be set in the 1940s in some large city in America. We soon find that that is not the case; in fact, nothing and no one is what it seems. And that's what makes it so interesting.

John Murdoch (Rufus Sewell) wakes up from a nap and realizes that he doesn't know who or where he is. But he does notice one startling thing: there is a dead woman on the floor. As he begins to search for his identity, he finds that he is a wanted man; a serial killer of prostitutes is on the loose, and he is the prime suspect. Seems kind of hard to fight the accusations of Inspector Frank Bumstead (William Hurt) with this bloody lady in his apartment. He soon discovers that he has an estranged wife (Jennifer Connelly), a loving uncle (John Bluthal), and an intriguing past, none of which he can recall. And he also has a strange power: he can move, create, or destroy things with his mind.

He comes in contact with Dr. Daniel Schreber (Kiefer Sutherland), a psychiatrist who says he knows what's going on: John's memory has been erased by a group of aliens. Dr. Schreber has agreed to help them in exchange for his life. John's strange power is called "tuning." The aliens all can do it, but John is the first human with the ability. With this ability, he must find out who he is, where he's from, and why (or if) he committed these violent crimes.

This movie is a good blend of solid acting and interesting special effects. The aliens, a society of Uncle Fester lookalikes led by Mr. Book (Ian Richardson) and Mr. Hand (Richard O'Brien), fly around the city every night while the entire human population sleeps. With their minds, they create new buildings which inflate and change before our eyes. These effects are done with computer graphics, mainly, and are fun to watch. The resulting city is an intricate mixture of all styles and architectural periods.

Sewell shows us a man in search of himself, slowly uncovering fragments of memory and subtle elements of his past. His incredulity grows as he discovers he is not the only victim. Sutherland maintains high energy with his edgy character, adopting a number of nervous mannerisms and a breathing style that makes us all short of breath. This is a departure for him. And Hurt, Connelly, and Bluthal offer compelling support as pawns in a huge game none of them understands.

Writer/director Alex Proyas has achieved a dark texture to complement his sinister story. At first it is quite stifling and we seem to be in for a depressing journey, but the plot is intricate enough to engage our interest early on, forcing us to put the pieces together alongside the protagonist. That one's memory dictates what is or is not real is a thought-provoking subject; Proyas presents a fascinating puzzle for us to ponder.

Trevor Jones's music, incorporating passages from Stravinsky's Rite of Spring, is an excellent choice to add tension and also lend a gothic feel to the proceedings. The climactic sequence is a little over the top, and consequently threatens to hamstring the seriousness of the subject matter. But the effects are breathtaking nonetheless. ★★★★

Part 2

This article concludes coverage of the Garrett Technology Futures Forum, a gathering of local leaders from the fields of education, government, and business, which was held recently at Garrett Community College (GCC). The forum's purpose was to address the challenge of how best to bring Garrett County into the "Information Technology Age," and how to go about providing a quality workforce ready to capitalize on coming developments in the technologically modern workplace.

Dr. Steve Herman, president of Garrett Community College, addressed the forum about Garrett Rural Information Cooperative (GRIC), crediting Don Storck, GCC's director of information systems, with playing a crucial role in making GRIC possible. Herman also thanked Governor Parris Glendening for the state's support and funding in the establishment of GRIC, citing this as an example of using teamwork in implementing information systems.

Herman then introduced the forum's keynote speaker, Karl Damanda, assistant director of Maryland's Office of Information Technology. The thrust of his address was "Talk to us more!" Noting that Maryland had earmarked $4 million for technological development across the state this year, Damanda suggested that Garrett County needed to be more aggressive in asking for these funds to research and develop the county's information technology projects. "It's tough to respond when you don't know [the needs]," he said.

Damanda stressed partnerships among all stakeholders in the development of technology: the citizens, county officials, teachers, students, administrators, the state, federal government, and most importantly business. He also stressed that technology is not an end in itself but a tool to help government reach certain goals and objectives. Primary among those goals is to make government more responsive to the citizens of the state by providing universal citizen access through technology.

"The citizens are our customers, if you will," Damanda said. "We want to maximize customer satisfaction by providing better access to government services. Perhaps the office time and information needed by our customers can be supplied at their convenience through technology and not only at the hours that government sets," he suggested.

"I need to hire seven people today, and I can't find them . . ." — Dusty Huxford

The participants then broke into small groups, brainstorming to identify actions that would further the county's technological goals. Following that exercise the forum reconvened to hear presentations from local leaders in several fields likely to feel the full impact of the coming technology wave.

In regard to education, Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of the county's public schools, said that "technology is going to play a greater role in the future than it ever has. An active partnership with business will become more and more critical. We need to look to business for realistic information in developing curriculum, to make our curriculum alive to the world of work. The public schools have had a staff member this past year to coordinate technology throughout the county," Teets added, "which shows the impor-

THE FUTURE IS NOW could have been a theme at the recent Garrett Technology Futures Forum. Above left, Dr. Steve Herman, president of Garrett Community College, speaks with Karl Damanda, assistant director of Maryland's Office of Information Technology, and Marvin Gordon of Business Systems Management Inc., on the cooperative role that education, business, and local and state government can play in bringing Garrett County and its citizens "online" in the new world of high technology. Damanda was the keynote speaker at the forum, which gave participants from a wide variety of fields a wide-angle view of how the county is taking advantage of technology now and in the future to provide jobs and opportunities for local residents.

"Sit on the Lid and Laugh"

"Build for yourself a strong box, build it with great care.
When it's as strong as your hands can make it,
Put all your troubles there.
Store all your disappointments…each bitter pill that you quaff;
Next, close down the top upon it,
Then sit on the lid…and laugh!"

–Author Unknown

Each week as we study and learn of God's love, as we build our faith on His promises, we build our strength of spirit so that we may give our cares to Him and be joyful. By not fretting over them, we are exercising patience and trust in His strong love and great wisdom. Our Heavenly Father is continually at work in our lives. Begin building your "strong box" this week as you worship at the church or synagogue of your choice.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE ADVANTAGE OF A 'LONELY PLACE'
March 8, 1998

Background Scripture: Mark 1:21-45.
Devotional Reading: Acts 9:32-42.

Can you remember when you were first attracted to Jesus, not because someone else told you who and what he was, but because for yourself you recognized his authority for your life?

When I was a child I went to Sunday school (which I basically didn't like) and worship (which I tolerated) because my parents took me. Experientially, I had always believed in God and I accepted Jesus as God's Son for the same reason I accepted that the world was round—that is what I was taught.

That didn't really change until, as a 9th grader, I began to go steady with a pretty brunette who had just moved to town. She began to tell me about the "great" Youth Fellowship she was attending at a local church. To be with her, I went along to that YF, as we called it. The thing that really hooked me was that these kids could be both devout and a barrel of fun at the same time. When the girl and I "broke-up" I continued going.

Then, they told me that, if I really enjoyed the YF, I would love going with some of them to Perkasie, a one-week denominational summer youth camp. I did and I remember well my first day there. I was sure I had made a huge mistake. The park was not all that inviting: an unattractive frame building that doubled as a dining hall and girls' dormitory, a few wooden cottages for the boys and a barn-like, semi-open 'Tabernacle' leftover from the emotional camp meeting days.

THE DELL

That evening, however, we had the first of our daily vesper services in the Dell, a simple woodland amphitheater. There was a crude wooden cross and lectern and logs cut in half to provide low seats on the tiers. A Dell tradition was that we would observe silence from the time that we passed the last cottage on the way to the Dell and returned after vespers, except, of course to sing some hymns. Those who led the service usually did so from behind the assembled group. Otherwise, there was a lot of silence.

There in that beautiful woodland silence, I found that in his life and teachings Jesus spoke to me with an authority that seemed to come directly from God himself. His authority for me no longer came from a book, parent or teacher. I can appreciate, then, why Mark tells us that "they were astonished at his teaching, for he taught them as one who had authority, and not as the scribes" (1:22).

So, when and how did you make that discovery?—assuming you have.

Inspiring as the stories of healing and his ability to command unclean spirits are, it would mean little to me in the long run if I were not able to find him exercising that same kind of power in my own experience. I am eternally thankful for Mark's recounting of these events that speak so winningly of Jesus' power and authority, but without confirmation of this in my own life I do not think I would continue to look to him as my Lord and Master.

WHERE IT STARTS

You see, believing Jesus can do it is not enough. The unclean spirits believed that: "What have you to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth?...I know who you are, the Holy One of God" (1;24). Unless we act upon our belief, it is worthless. Eventually, the disciples discovered what the unclean spirits knew. Eventually, I found for myself what the disciples learned. A quiet, lonely place called The Dell was where it all started for me. What about you?

I remember well, if not verbatim, the words of the Dauphin (the French heir apparent) to Joan of Arc in Jean Anouilh's play, The Lark. Complaining bitterly of Joan's visions, "Why doesn't he speak to me?" he wants to know. She replies in effect, "He does speak to you, but you don't listen to him."

Are YOU listening?

COVER STORY

Pitillo Rules in evolving NBC sitcom

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

Maria Pitillo

Prime time gets noticeably more delightful as winsome actress Maria Pitillo (Partners) returns in a new sitcom called House Rules.

The series, which also stars David Newsom (Homefront) and Bradley White (the man who kissed Jamie on Mad About You), begins a seven-week trial run on NBC Monday, March 9.

Rules focuses on three childhood pals, now roommates sharing a large house in Denver. The main concept is that the characters – attorney Casey Farrell (Pitillo), medical student William McCusky (Newsom) and reporter Thomas Riley III (White) – have become so joined at the hip after 20 years of friendship that they unwittingly torpedo outside romances that threaten their unity.

The role of Casey is first cousin to Pitillo's sexy but smart character on Partners, a Fox sitcom that ran only one season but ignited a bidding war for her talents after its cancellation. The actress selected Rules on NBC and helped put together the rest of the deal.

Chris Thompson, creator of the cult hit Bosom Buddies and the original, superior format of The Naked Truth, was called in to punch up some jokes in the pilot episode. NBC turned the show over to him halfway through the pilot week.

"I came into this four days into the pilot," he recalls. "The pilot wasn't quite going where they wanted it to go, ... and we essentially (redid) the show in three days. I wrote 90 percent of a new script. ... I mean, this was really born in flames and hot cinders."

White recalls that the original script cast him and Newsom as a pair of odd-couple roommates who suddenly get a lovely blonde as a new roomie. Thompson immediately noticed that the setup invited a leering approach, which would not play to Pitillo's unusual combination of assets.

"Maria is that rare thing, a 'smart, hot chick,' " Thompson explains. "She's absolutely beautiful, but she also projects a very strong intelligence and commands respect. I didn't want to do a Three's Company thing where the guys are snickering, 'Hey, let's go peek at her in the shower!' "

Instead, Thompson came up with a far fresher notion focusing on the intense emotional bond among the main trio.

"I treat all the stories as a domestic comedy," he says. "Here's this relationship (that's) intricately woven together. What can I bring in that will threaten the status quo, to make them band together?

"They're in love with each other, really, but they can't really spoil the idyllic friendship they have by acting on it, because one's going to be out in the cold there. ... 'Doomed Romantics' was one of the titles I wanted to call this."

The pilot veers off course in a scene that shows the two men drooling over a sexy visitor (guest star Lisa Rinna).

"You live and learn," Thompson shrugs. "You won't see that again.

"We've done seven shows and I think each is better than the previous one."

He's right. The second episode fires on all cylinders and is laugh-out-loud funny, something NBC desperately needs on its otherwise limp Must She TV Monday lineup.

Maryland First To Allow Online Tax Registration

Maryland is the first state in the nation to allow new businesses to register for tax accounts online using a personal computer, State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced in Baltimore on Monday.

"Thanks to a partnership between our office, Microsoft Corporation and Dynatech Integrated Systems in Columbia, Md., we've created an interactive feature on our website at www.comp.state.md.us where new businesses can complete Maryland's combined registration application online any time 24 hours a day, seven days a week—quickly and efficiently," Goldstein said. "This is the first interactive multiple business tax application in the nation."

The online combined registration application allows businesses to use one application to establish accounts for sales and use tax, employer withholding, unemployment insurance, admissions and amusement tax, tire recycling fees, and transient vendor licenses.

The comptroller's office received 61,000 paper combined registration applications in 1997, or as many as 200 per day.

"As part of Microsoft's continued commitment to advanced technology solutions, we are pleased to partner with the comptroller of the treasury to improve public access to information and enhance online services to Marylanders. The interactive combined registration application, built on Microsoft's industry-leading back-office technologies, is the result of the strong partnership between the comptroller's office, Microsoft, and Dynatech Integrated Systems. We expect this solution to save time for the people of Maryland as well as to reduce costs to the state and to provide a higher level of customer service," said Kim Tubbs, Mid-Atlantic District account executive for Microsoft.

"Previously, all businesses had to fill out a paper form by hand, mail it in or fax it to us, wait for us to review the form, make corrections, and sometimes contact the taxpayer. Now all you have to do is visit our website and follow a few brief instructions," Goldstein said. The interactive application prompts the user with questions and eliminates the need to deal with parts of the form that don't apply to the user's situation.

Designed to handle up to 200 applications simultaneously, the comptroller's interactive registration process will reduce the need to contact businesses for clarification, because an incomplete application cannot be submitted.

"This will save us a lot of time and effort and is a greater convenience for the taxpayer," Goldstein said. "The combined registration process will be one link in the new Business License Information System being constructed by the Department of Business and Economic Development to allow businesses to more easily find out what licenses, permits, and registration they need in Maryland."

"Maryland is once again improving life for small business. As accountants, we are fully aware that simplicity is the key to compliance with regulations. By making the registration form easy to use and available to everyone with a computer, the Maryland comptroller's office is helping accountants and businesses reduce the burden of paperwork," said Phyllis Burlage, president of the Maryland Society of Accountants.

The comptroller established a one-stop registration service for Maryland businesses in July 1980, helping new businesses fulfill many tax registration requirements in one application. He later expanded the service by creating a Taxpayer Registration Assistance Center (TRAC) to provide walk-in, one-stop assistance to help new business taxpayers fill out the combined registration application, set up tax accounts, and obtain other helpful information. TRAC is located in Room 206 of the State Office Building at 301 West Preston Street in Baltimore.

Taxpayers can also download the combined registration application from the comptroller's website at www.comp.state.md.us or request it by fax from the comptroller's Forms-by-Fax system by calling 410-974-FAXX (3299). The paper application is also available at any office of a clerk of the circuit court or any of the comptroller's 20 taxpayer service offices.

Public Invited To Review MDE Draft 303(d) List

The Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE) is seeking public review and comment on a draft of Maryland's 1998 list of Water Quality Limited Segments (WQLSs), also known as the 303(d) list. The draft list identifies Maryland water bodies where technology-based effluent limitations and other required controls cannot achieve water quality standards, and it names the specific pollutants that are causing the failure to attain the standards. The list also provides a priority ranking of these waters for the establishment of Total Maximum Daily Loads for the pollutants preventing the attainment of water quality standards.

The draft WQLSs list, which was developed using existing information on waste sources, water quality, water uses, and quality criteria, is available for review and copying at the main branches of county libraries, including the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland. The draft WQLSs list and the list of participating county libraries also are available by writing to Mark Jacobs, Maryland Department of the Environment, Water Management Administration, 2500 Broening Highway, Baltimore, MD 21224, by telephone at 410-631-4492 or by downloading from MDE's web site http://www.mde.state.md.us. Anyone wishing to review the draft list and supporting information may call Jacobs during normal business hours.

Written comments concerning the draft WQLSs list may be submitted to MDE on or before March 20, 1998, and should be addressed to Jacobs at the above address. All comments received during the comment period will be considered and the list revised as appropriate. Once the list has been established following the public comment period, it will be subject to approval by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Several Students Complete Career Planning Class

The New Horizons/New Dimensions programs of Garrett Community College recently completed the first spring series of a five-week, 10-session career planning class taught by Mary Kirkland, intake/counselor specialist with the New Horizons Program of GCC. The class included learning about job hunt strategies, getting to know oneself, what self esteem means to a nontraditional student returning to classes or to the work world, ways to build self esteem, what stress is and how to handle it, combining working with family obligations, time and budget management, résumé writing, and job interview techniques.

Several interest tests were administered to participants to determine their career interests. These tests included the Career Assessment Inventory (CAI), the Holland Code Self-Directed Search, and the GATB (General Aptitude Test Battery). Three students enrolled in the Medical Language Specialist class at GCC who were program participants of New Horizons completed only the interest testing part of the class.

The recent group of students enrolled in the class included: Katie Allen, Mary Rounds, Stephanie Shay, and Anna Waldon. Those enrolled in the Medical Language Specialist class who completed only the career testing were: Kimberly Glotfelty, Donna Heinrich, and Naomi McKenzie.

The next career planning class is scheduled to begin on Monday, April 6, at Garrett Community College, McHenry campus. Anyone interested in enrolling in the class should call New Horizons weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at 301-387-3071 or 301-387-3102 for complete information. "The class is a great beginning for a support group and has proven beneficial for re-entry individuals to make career decisions and to enter training in their areas of interest," stated Barbara Frey, program director for New Horizons and New Dimensions.

The New Horizons Program is jointly funded by the Maryland State Department of Education and Garrett Community College. Grant funds in the amount of $45,000 are made available to the program through Career Technology and Adult Learning, which is 90% of the total program budget, with Garrett Community College contributing an additional $5,200, which is 10% of the total budget for New Horizons. The New Dimensions Program is 100% funded by the Department of Human Resources, Community Services Administration, Women's Services Division, in the amount of $14,998.00.

FSU Visitors To Speak About Living With HIV

When Joel Goldman discovered he was infected with HIV, the virus which causes AIDS, his life changed dramatically. As he began the process of calling friends, family, and fraternity brothers, he came to understand the tremendous challenge of life with HIV.

Today, Goldman and T.J. Sullivan, Goldman's fraternity friend from his days at Indiana State University, are touring the U.S., bringing their message to college students. The two will speak at Frostburg State University on Monday, March 9, at 8 p.m. in the Physical Education Center's Main Arena. The talk is free and open to the public.

In addition to challenging stereotypes about AIDS, Goldman and Sullivan are teaching students how to reduce their own risk of HIV infection and the risk of their friends. In doing so, their program, "Friendship in the Age of AIDS," has become one of the most popular on the nation's college circuit. Since the pair began traveling in 1993, more than 350,000 students have seen the program, which blends humor and real-life college scenarios to drive the prevention message home to the college audience.

For more information, persons may call FSU AIDS educator Sherri Schubert at 301-687-7429.

FSU To Host AIDS Exhibit

The Frostburg State University Campus Activities Board is hosting "Project Face to Face," an interactive multimedia exhibit on AIDS. The exhibit is slated to run Monday, March 9, through Friday, March 13, in the FSU Lane Center Lounge.

"Project Face to Face" offers a unique way to "meet" a person with AIDS. Handcrafted "life" masks are hung above tape recorders, allowing viewers to look into another human being's face and hear in that person's own words the reality of living with AIDS.

Previous audiences have deemed the exhibit "a powerful experience . . . one that is deeply moving."

For further information, persons may contact the FSU CAB office, 301-687-4192.

Persons with disabilities may request accommodations through the ADA Compliance Office, 301-687-4102, TDD 301-687-7955.

Local Income Tax Revenue Is Distributed

"Our office is distributing a record $526.1 million in local income tax revenue to Maryland's 23 counties and Baltimore City based on employer withholding and individual estimated tax attributable to the fourth quarter of tax year 1997, a 12.3% increase over the $468.7 million distributed for the same quarter of 1996," said Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein.

According to the comptroller, the $57.4 million increase in the local income tax revenue, which his office collects for the subdivisions at rates set by local officials, was due to taxpayers cashing in on large capital gains, as well as wage gains and end-of-year bonuses.

Garrett County received $1,402,916.19, or 11.7% more than that received the previous tax year ($1,255,990.65).

"Fourth quarter employer withholding payments rose a very strong 9.4%, due to accelerating wage gains and large end-of-year bonus payments, reflecting a profitable year for area employers," Goldstein said. "Preliminary estimates suggest that employment in Maryland increased by 2.3% for all of 1997, with gains closer to 2.5% in the fourth quarter. That's a good indicator that Maryland's economy continues to expand at a steady pace."

Estimated income tax payments increased by 22% in the fourth quarter, compared to 14% for all of tax year 1997. "Because of the stock market's steady climb, many taxpayers have accrued sizable capital gains. After the new lower federal capital gains tax rate, effective for sales made after May 6, 1997, was approved in August, investors evidently cashed in on those gains as they made end-of-year tax planning decisions, resulting in the strong fourth quarter estimated payments," Goldstein said. Capital gains reported by state income taxpayers rose an estimated 35% in tax year 1996. An even greater increase is expected for tax year 1997.

The comptroller cautioned local officials that the next local tax payment, reflecting final tax payments made with returns due April 15, 1998, may show slower growth. "The extremely strong growth in withholding and estimated tax payments raises the possibility that taxpayers will have met more of their full year liability through withholding and quarterly estimated payments and will have smaller balances due in April. Therefore, later adjusting distributions for tax year 1997 may be smaller than adjusting distributions in recent years," he said.

Q. My blue-green glass kettle says "Souvenir of Detroit." The rim and the feet are painted gold. Can you help me with any information?

A. Your souvenir originally held hard candy. It's worth about $25.

A similar candy container in a kettle shape and embossed with the words "Boston-Bean Kettle" is worth about $70.

Q. I just purchased a rattan living-room set that includes a couch, a two-tiered end table and a lamp. The rattan is smooth. The couch rests on a base of eight bands of rattan. If it is possible, I'd like to know when it was made and by whom.

A. It's rare to find a maker's name on rattan from the 1930s or '40s. Paul Frankl first designed a sofa with a nine-band arm and five-band base. It was copied and changed by many manufacturers. It is often referred to as Frankl's design.

Here is a tip to attempt dating rattan: Sofas with 10-band bases were made in the 1930s; nine-band bases in the '40s, and eight-band bases in the '50s.

Q. Back in 1966, I met Walt Disney inside Disneyland. He autographed a Disneyland ticket book for me. Does it have any value beyond sentimental?

A. You were lucky to meet Walt Disney. You were even luckier to see him sign the ticket book. Many "autographed" Disney items were never signed by him. Others on the staff signed for him.

To an autograph collector or Disneyana collector, your autographed ticket book has a value of about $50.

Home Tips

CUCUMBER TIP — It is generally accepted that a great deal of the nutrition in fruits and vegetables is in the skin. We peel cucumbers mainly because the skin tends to be tough.

If, after thoroughly washing an unpeeled cucumber, you take a fork and run it lengthwise along the vegetable and then slice thinly, you will have none of the toughness and all of the extra nutrition. In addition, there is the decorative effect. I have done this for years and everyone loves it. Christine P., South Euclid, Ohio

IRON TRICK — When I iron, I keep a pair of scissors handy for trimming threads from garments as I go. This keeps me from forgetting to do this. Jeannie C., Seneca Falls, N.Y.

EASY STORE, EASY POUR — I always save empty dishwashing liquid plastic bottles with the pop-up tops. The new short ones are best.

I refill them with shampoo and creme rinse for my kids' shower. There's no more spilling of shampoo, broken-off flip-tops, missing lids or shampoo that's half water from no top. They are easy to squeeze and great for camping. Leslie G., Fayetteville, N.C.

KEVIN KLINE: DOING IT ALL

In a field so hard to crack even Harrison Ford was forced to work as a carpenter, Kevin Kline has always had one occupation: actor. And he has an Oscar, two Tonys and an incredibly varied resume to show for it. He's a superb, loose-limbed comedian, but he's also a dazzling dramatic actor. He's a movie star but he turns down roles so he can work on stage, where he wins raves for comedies, musicals, dramas and classics. (His nickname around Hollywood is Kevin Decline.)

Last fall, he starred simultaneously in the comedy, "In and Out," the drama, "Ice Storm" and an off-Broadway production of Chekhov's "Ivanov." Despite this, Klein is still able to stroll the streets of Manhattan, where he lives with his wife, actress Phoebe Cates, and their two children, Owen and Greta.

Featured in March's Biography magazine, Kline originally planned to become a concert pianist. While watching auditions for a campus production of "Macbeth," he decided to try out, winning a small part and eventually falling in love with the Bard — and the theater. He switched his major to drama and, after graduation, headed to New York and the inaugural class of John Houseman's drama department at Juilliard. Classmates included Patti LuPone (with whom Kline was romantically linked for seven years) and William Hurt. The three were among the founding members of Houseman's Acting Company.

In "Sophie's Choice," Kline made his screen debut opposite Meryl Streep. While more screen plums followed, he always managed to interlace them with theater, never worrying about occupying a permanent place on Hollywood's A-list. His wife helps keep his ego in check. When he tried to put his Oscar for "A Fish Called Wanda" on his desk, Cates dressed it in a Barbie tutu. It went back in the closet — unlike Kline's talent, which will undoubtedly entertain us in theater and in movies for as long as he chooses.

Storck addressed potential technological applications from both GRIC's and GCC's perspectives. "Compressed video (live face-to-face communication over the Internet) is coming on very strong and very fast," he said. "We're working on web course development and the delivery of courses over the web; we're planning to set up remote video and computer studios in the community — the National Guard Armory is one location; we're working with the hospital and public health service to set up compressed video service. These are just some of the areas."

Mikal McCartney, president of the Maryland Rural Health Association, said that "last year a partnership between the GRIC, Garrett County Memorial Hospital, and the Garrett County Health Department applied for a grant, and will do so again this year, called the Community Care Link. [It] would develop a web presence that would host all sorts of applications, bulletin board applications of immunization clinics, [and/or] WIC clinics that the health department might be having," she said.

McCartney said she also envisions the Community Care Link as assisting the local health care industry in "developing our own applications, such as support systems for content about health and issues relative to our community, providing the scale for e-mail and Internet access with physicians and other healthcare providers, plus trying to get everybody into the technology of communicating with each other."

Technology is only as good as the people who use it, according to Dusty Huxford, president of Financial Computer Support Inc. Huxford commented that "one thing we crave desperately is educated people" experienced with personal computers, who are also "articulate on the phone. I need to hire seven people today and I can't find them. It's a problem I have and I think it's one a lot of businesses have," he said.

"We [also] need high speed access," Huxford continued. "That's something that's actually limiting us. Garrett County needs a POP (point-of-presence, a long-distance phone line switching facility) in order to attract new telecommunications businesses to the area. Some improvements need to happen that would help us all out in terms of employment and in the future."

Jim Hinebaugh, director of the county's Office of Economic Development, applauded GCC and GRIC, saying, "I'm not sure we all fully recognize or appreciate what GRIC is doing and has done for the county. We need to recognize that the college took a risk when [it] entered into this. Fortunately [GCC] had the vision, saw the potential and took the risk. GRIC provides affordable, reliable telecommunications [and is so] very, very important.

"The county is still short on infrastructure," Hinebaugh went on to say, citing the lack of POP referred to by Huxford. "We've worked with a number of telemarketing and teleconferencing firms but haven't been able to get one to Garrett County because there isn't a switch here. [Yet on the plus side] we have a great school system. Our educational system has good leadership. Those leaders have good vision and a lot of ambitious objectives; that's part of the solution we're looking for."

Speakers and participants appeared come to a consensus that to be competitive Garrett County needs to continue an aggressive agenda to foster technological advances, train its citizens, and improve the current infrastructure. Hinebaugh likened a lack of information technology and infrastructure to a lack of railroad connections in communities of the 1800s. "If the railroad didn't stop in your town, the town dried up and went away."

Illustrating just one "railroad" of today, Hinebaugh referred to the POP concept, which would allow communications companies to operate competitively here. According to Hinebaugh, a 300-seat telecommunications operation would have to pay an additional $10,000 a month in long distance fees just for the privilege of doing business here rather than the nearest POP switch, which is currently located in Cumberland.

Huxford commented that "a united effort [of local, county, state governments] has to be made concerning future technology . . . . If we don't do this, work together, the effort is going to fail."

Forums project director Susan Athey-Oxford indicated that a united effort is getting underway, as "a countywide Information Technology Strategic Plan that is inclusive will be sought."

Keynote speaker Damanda, who had challenged local participants to become more involved, rose to his own challenge and offered to provide a liaison from the Maryland Office of Information Technology to identify ways the state government can help Garrett County.

Charlene Pullias of GCC supplied the information for the articles on the Garrett Technology Futures Forum.

Saba Announces Bid For Oakland Town Council

David Saba announced recently that he will seek election to the Oakland Town Council in the election to be held on March 9.

A resident of Oakland for over four years, Saba lives on Second Street with his wife Lee and their two daughters, who attend Dennett Road Elementary School.

Saba is a 1983 graduate of the United States Naval Academy, with a bachelor of science degree in engineering. He was selected to attend flight school in Pensacola, Fla., from which he graduated with honors. He was stationed in Jacksonville, Fla., to fly SH-3H helicopters.

Saba served in the Navy seven years, achieving both the Battle E for squadron excellence, and the Navy Achievement Medal for leadership. He held positions of legal officer, maintenance officer, quality assurance officer, and tactics and flight instructor. Before leaving the Navy, he earned his master's degree in engineering management.

After leaving the Navy, he was employed as an engineer and manager for Michelin Tire Corporation in Columbia, S.C., before moving to Oakland to work for Bausch & Lomb. After working there for two years as an engineering manager and production supervisor, he accepted his current position as vice president of operations for RehabSolutions.

RehabSolutions is a provider of occupational, physical and speech therapy, and audiology at 35 sites throughout Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, and Virginia.

Saba and his wife also started the Deep Creek Brewing Co. in June of 1996. This company now markets Deep Creek ales in Maryland and the District of Columbia, with plans to expand in 1998.

Saba serves on the Garrett County Memorial Hospital board of governors and on the strategic planning and bylaws committees. He is also the senior warden on the vestry of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, and fund-raising chairman for the Save Oakland Station group.

He has served on the middle school curriculum committee and also helps coach soccer for his daughters' soccer teams. "I feel it is critical to have a broader experience base on the town council. I can bring a well-rounded set of skills developed from a diverse career to move Oakland forward into the future. There is so much that will happen over the next two years, we need some very progressive leadership to ensure Oakland's success. This is why I got involved with the railroad station effort and why I am now running for Town Council," Saba stated.

He said he believes that with Simon Pearce moving into Garrett County, Oakland can create opportunities for new business success. Critical to that success, he said, is the need for a consistent theme in the town, improved attractions such as the railroad station, and new retail business.

Saba ended by stating, "The town of Oakland can be a spectacular tribute to the rich history of this area. We need to complete the hard work that Mayor McCain has started and build on that success. We must have a strategic plan that creates a truly great town, while still maintaining the safety, family focus, and services that are currently available."

Local Pharmacist Participates In Planning Forum

To assist the National Community Pharmacists Association, NCPA, in developing association policies and planning its activities for the future, local pharmacist Gerard Herpel, owner of Deep Creek Pharmacy, went to the nation's capital recently to participate in three days of meetings covering a wide range of community pharmacy issues.

NCPA's National Independent Pharmacy Forum brings together the association's nine committees to share information on the current needs of independent pharmacists and to develop recommendations on policies and actions the association may undertake to support its members and their patients.

NCPA's committees cover consumer affairs and public relations, home health care pharmacy services, independent pharmacy chains, long-term care pharmacy services, management, national legislation and government affairs, pharmacist care, professional relations, and third-party payment programs. Each addresses various professional and proprietary concerns of pharmacists, as well as the needs of the public.

The ideas and suggestions developed throughout the three-day forum will be considered by NCPA's House of Delegates at the association's annual convention in October.

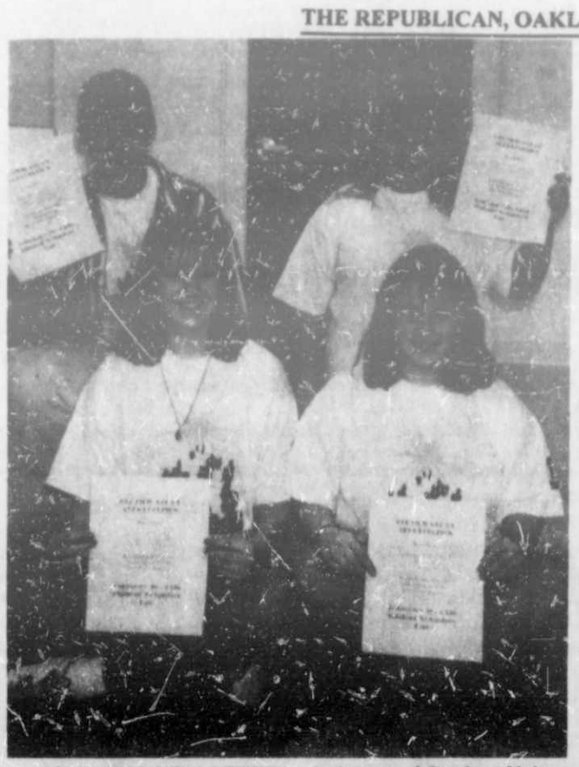
The National Community Pharmacists Association, formerly NARD (the National Association of Retail Druggists), represents the pharmacy owners, managers, and employees of nearly 30,000 independent pharmacies across the country.

Conference For Landowners Set In Hagerstown

Farmers, woodland owners, natural resources professionals, and others interested in learning how to successfully choose and manage a private land income opportunity are invited to attend a conference being held April 5-7 in Hagerstown. The three-day Natural Resources Income Opportunities on Private Lands Conference is designed for individuals interested in developing an enterprise or hobby, and public and private sector professionals who work with landowners.

More than 35 speakers from Vermont to Arkansas—including landowners, consultants, foresters, and Cooperative Extension service faculty from several states—will share their expertise on a variety of income-generating opportunities, including fishing, hunting, timber management, ecotourism, aquaculture, and the production and marketing of such products as maple syrup and ginseng. They will also explore issues involving finances, liability, insurance, and environmental impact.

"Private landowners are becoming increasingly interested in income opportunities that allow them to use their land to generate some income while maintaining the character of the property. They need the best possible information to make wise decisions," said Jonathan Kays, regional natural resource specialist, Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. "This conference is designed to give them that information." Participants will qualify for 13 Society of American Foresters continuing education credits (category one).



HONORING VOLUNTEERS - in honor of Student Volunteer Day recently, Service Learning students from Northern High School were recognized for their volunteer service. They have dedicated their time to the after-school program sponsored by Garrett County Community Action Inc. at the Grantsville Senior Center. In appreciation for their commitment and effort, they were presented with T-shirts, bookbags, and Certificates of Appreciation. The student volunteers seated are Cindy Mitchell, left, and Bobbie Jo Beltzel. Behind them are Ron Mitchell and Samantha Flanagan.

The Natural Resources Income Opportunities on Private Lands Conference is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Services of the University of Maryland, Cornell University, Ohio State University, Penn State University, Virginia Tech, and West Virginia University, along with several federal, state, and regional agencies and organizations. The registration fee is $95 if postmarked by March 16. After that, the cost increases to $115. The fee includes admission to all conference presentations and events, two lunches, two dinners, break refreshments, and a complete copy of the conference proceedings.

For a brochure of all activities and a registration form, persons may contact the Garrett County Extension Office at 301-334-6960. Rooms at the Ramada Inn, conference headquarters, are only $55 for up to four people.

Swanton Center Slates Dinner

The Swanton Community Center will serve a roast beef dinner on Saturday, March 14, beginning at 4 p.m. The cost will be $6 for adults and $3 for children. Carry-outs will be available.

All proceeds from the dinner will be used to support the various community projects of the center.

Thank You

Garrett County Habitat for Humanity wishes to thank everyone for making our Fifth Annual Sparkles and Sweets benefit held Friday, February 20, an unqualified and overwhelming success.

Martin Heise, Wendy Friend, and the fine staff at Will O'the Wisp presented the desserts in such spectacular fashion that even the most dedicated dieter had to relent momentarily. The special Dinner for Two was outstanding. And most importantly, they did everything graciously.

David Sheetz provided wonderful piano music for our listening pleasure.

Dave Zimmerman, the one and only Mr. Z, spun CDs with his usual flair and hosted the Karaoke singers with good humor.

Future Harvest Project Supports State Pollution Control Bill

The Future Harvest Project has strongly endorsed Maryland legislation that would expand usage of the state revolving fund by allowing low interest loans to farmers and other private landowners making capital improvements to reduce run-off of phosphorous, nitrogen, and other nutrients into the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries. Excess application of phosphorous on the Eastern Shore has been linked to last year's outbreak of pfiesteria piscida.

According to Future Harvest, a four-year effort by local residents, farmers, and prominent agricultural and environmental groups to promote the economic, environmental and social sustainability of agriculture in the mid-Atlantic, Senate Bill 177 and House Bill 493 would establish a program that could help dramatically cut nutrient run-off from farms, homes, and homeowner associations and reduce stormwater and septic system pollution in the Bay and surrounding waterways. It said that while Maryland has offered low interest loans to local governments to plan and implement wastewater treatment projects through the State Water Quality Revolving Loan Fund, current law prohibits similar state financing incentives for private landowners and farmers. That, it said, must be rectified through passage of Senate Bill 177 and House Bill 493.

"This legislation would address a serious and long-standing void in the state's pollution control efforts," declared Michael Heller, executive director of the Future Harvest Project and manager of Chesapeake Bay Foundation's Claggett Farm. "In doing so, it would benefit farmers. It would benefit homeowners and homeowner associations. And it would benefit our Chesapeake Bay. It is win-win legislation that should be approved without delay."

The proposed Maryland program would provide an affordable source of funds to farmers for sediment control ponds, manure storage facilities, and related systems to homeowner associations for new or improved stormwater management facilities and to homeowners for septic system repairs or replacements, shoreline erosion control, and wetlands creation projects.

Future Harvest Project participant Richard Pritzlaff pointed to the state of Ohio, which has successfully provided nearly 100 loans through its four-year-old program. He said an Eastern Shore pilot project developed by Future Harvest and modeled after the Ohio effort was well received by farmers, banks, Soil Conservation districts and the Maryland Departments of Agriculture and the Environment and predicted similar support for an expanded program here.

The Future Harvest Project is a collaborative effort established with a grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation. Future Harvest collaborators are the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, the Cooperative Extension Services of the University of Maryland and Delaware State University, Accokeek Foundation, American Farmland Trust, Chesapeake Wildlife Heritage, Maryland Farm Bureau, Maryland Department of Agriculture, Maryland Organic Food and Farming Association, and the Maryland/Delaware Sustainable Agricultural Association.

Farming In Maryland.....

Goat Kidding Workshop Set

Dr. Joyce Colbert from Deer Park Veterinary Services will conduct a goat kidding workshop at 10 a.m. on March 21 at the Garrett County Extension office, Oakland.

Dr. Colbert will be discussing kidding practices, such as how to detect labor, when to call the vet, what is normal and what is not, and other related topics. This will be a free seminar offered by the Advanced Technology Center at Garrett Community College in cooperation with the Garrett County Cooperative Extension Service.

For further information or to register, those interested may contact Patsy McKenzie at 301-387-3122 by March 19.

March Ag Survey Underway For Maryland Farms

Beginning February 27, around 560 Maryland and Delaware farmers are being contacted for the March Agricultural Survey. For this survey the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service and the Maryland Department of Agriculture will be asking for acres operated, crops to be grown in 1998, and crops stored on each operation. The results of this survey will help give an early picture of what is planned, as well as an update on stocks of grain.

Those operators selected will receive a mail notice along with an information copy of the survey. Regardless of the size of the operation, every report is important to the accuracy of the results and their information is kept confidential. The enumerator for Garrett County is Carolyn Ganoe.

Stream Buffer Strips Aid Conservation

With all the current controversy about mandatory nutrient management requirements, now is the time for all Maryland farmers to consider voluntarily establishing stream buffers, advised James M. Voss, Maryland state executive director of the USDA Farm Service Agency. Creation of these buffers between cropland and waterways is one of the few proven techniques to minimize unwanted nutrient transfer to both ground and surface water, he added.

No longer do developing buffers need to end up as out-of-pocket costs for land removed from crop production, Voss continued. Maryland producers can now enroll in 10 to 15-year contracts which will assure them of annual cash rental rates ranging from 50% to 70% above normal rental rates. In many cases this will result in earnings well in excess of $100 per acre for each and every year of a producer's contract. In addition, costs associated with the establishment of acceptable cover and other practices needed on the buffer can be reduced to nearly zero. These benefits are available through the joint efforts of the local USDA Service Center agencies, Soil Conservation districts, the Maryland Department of Natural Resources and Ducks Unlimited, working through the Chesapeake Bay Foundation.

"This represents a lot of players from several governmental agencies and public interest groups who are working together with farmers toward an improved environment for agriculture," Voss said.

"The stakes are high. Well over $200 million from federal, state and private sources have recently become available to Maryland producers through the Federal/State Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP). Vice President Gore and Governor Glendening launched the program last October. Now every Maryland farmer needs to dig into the CREP details before nailing down 1998 farming plans.

"I encourage each of you in production agriculture to visit your local USDA/FSA or Soil Conservation District office to get the specifics on what enrollment in CREP can do to improve your bottom line as well as improve water quality for you and your neighbors. Our sign-up is continuous, but don't wait until planting time in April. Let's take advantage of resources in hand to voluntarily address this pervasive issue of nutrient management concerns," Voss concluded.

Maryland Crop Price And Value Costs Reported

The average price for Maryland soybeans, wheat, barley and oats for 1997 is down from the 1996 marketing year prices. Corn, hay, and potatoes all increased in price from 1996. Growing conditions across the state were generally favorable for small grains, such as wheat, barley, and oats, resulting in increased yields.

On the national level, prices were down for corn for grain, oats, winter wheat, barley, and soybeans. However, prices for hay and potatoes were up for the year.

Now Is The Time To Review Crop Insurance Coverage

Larry Atkinson, Raleigh regional director of the USDA Farm Service Agency, announced that the sales closing date for 1998 crop insurance is March 15 for most Maryland spring planted crops.

Sales closing dates are significant because signing up for insurance, changing the crop insured or level of protection, and changing insurance providers must be done through a crop insurance agent prior to the announced date. Sales closing dates vary by crop and location.

Waivers of administrative fees for producers who qualify as limited resource farmers are available from all crop insurance companies. Private agents are willing and prepared to assist those qualifying producers with determining eligibility for waivers. A listing of crop insurance agents may be found in all local Farm Service Agency offices.

Management of yields or risk through the purchase of crop insurance transfers risk from the producer to others for a price which is stated as an insurance premium. Crop insurance is an example of a risk management tool that not only protects against losses but also offers the opportunity for more consistent gains. When used with a sound marketing program, crop insurance can stabilize revenues and potentially increase average annual profits.

Crop insurance provides two important benefits. It ensures a reliable level of cash flow and allows more flexibility in your marketing plans; if a producer can insure some part of his expected production, that level of production can be forward-priced with greater certainty, creating a more predictable level of revenue.

With the elimination of ad hoc disaster payments and deficiency payment, crop producers will no longer receive government aid during years of crop disasters or price support payments during low years. Crop insurance provides partial replacement for the federal safety net.

The Risk Management Agency, formerly known as Federal Crop Insurance, now offers a wide variety of crop insurance protection and coverage levels, with crop insurance premiums being subsidized by the federal government.

Crop insurance is currently available on more than 60 crops, and for those crops not insurable a producer can apply for the Noninsured Assistance Program (NAP). Although the NAP requires no premium fees, it must be applied for prior to planting of the crop and producers should file an annual acreage report with the local Farm Service Agency office.

Maryland Egg Supply Noted

Maryland laying flocks produced 71 million eggs during December 1997, of which 63 million were table eggs and 8 million were hatching eggs. The average rate of lay was 61.5%. The average number of layers on hand during December 1997 was 3,188,000. On January 1, 1998, 9.5% of the layers in Maryland were being molted and 34.0% of all layers had been through a molt.

Control the Colorado Potato Beetle at Planting

The Colorado Potato Beetle (CPB) has been a serious pest to potatoes in our area. The CPB has the strong ability to develop resistance to insecticides. Admire, a relatively new insecticide, seems to provide season-long control of the CPB. Admire is applied in the furrow at planting at a rate of 0.9 to 1.3 fluid ounces per 1,000 feet of row. Since we know that the CPB has the ability to develop resistance we should use other control measures in conjunction with Admire. Rotation to nonsolanaceous crops (crops other than potato, tomato, eggplant, and pepper) is extremely important in reducing CBP problems. Admire does have some restrictions; therefore, read and follow the label.

Md. Farmers' Market Coupon Program Receives Record Funding

Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Virts, D.V.M., has announced that the 1998 Women's, Infant's and Children's Farmers' Market Nutrition Program (WIC/FMNP) will receive record federal funding in Maryland of $303,333 for this upcoming season. In addition, the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene has agreed to provide the necessary matching funds of $90,000, in conjunction with the Maryland Department of Agriculture's $40,000, for a grand total of $433,333.

"Because of this increased funding, an extremely successful program that benefits needy recipients and farmers alike has just gotten better. This summer we will be able to expand our average allotment of coupon books from 20,900 to 33,500. The residual impact of this boost will provide food for 44,925 family members and potential revenue for small farmers of some $384,000," Virts said.

Since its inception in 1989, the program to allow WIC recipients to purchase fresh fruits and vegetables with farmers' market coupons has spread to all areas of Maryland. The goal is to expand the use and awareness of community farmers' markets, and to provide additional resources and nutritional education to WIC participants. The Maryland Food Committee provides the financial administration of the coupon redemption process by processing coupons and issuing reimbursement checks to farmers.

"Because of this WIC farmers' market coupon program, our farmers are getting new customers and the WIC recipients can purchase some outstanding fruits and vegetables for their families. This is a program where everyone is a winner," said Virts.

For more information on the Farmers' Market Nutrition Program in Maryland, interested persons may contact the Maryland Department of Agriculture, Marketing Services, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401, telephone 410-841-5770.

Measure Would Help Curb Regs

Because farmers and ranchers incur more than $20 billion annually in expenses to meet federal regulatory guidelines and requirements, Farm Bureau last week renewed its long-standing call for regulatory relief and rollback.

On the whole, federal regulations tap the U.S. economy to the tune of $688 billion each year. To put that figure into perspective, the cost to meet federal regulations is 20 times the amount of last year's projected federal deficit of $34 billion. Because farmers and ranchers depend on heavily regulated land, water, air and labor, they are hindered by regulations more than any other sector of the U.S. economy.

"The real costs of federal regulations are the lost opportunities for farmers and other producers," said American Farm Bureau Federation President Dean Kleckner. "Instead of working on better ways to produce and deliver the bushels, bales, pounds and hundredweights of food, feed and fiber, farmers are wasting more of their creative human capital and management time on useless paperwork."

The Senate Governmental Affairs Committee last week held a hearing on a Farm Bureau-supported bill (S.981) that would make a number of improvements in the current regulatory process.

The bill, sponsored by Sens. Fred Thompson (R-Tenn.) and Carl Levin (D-Mich.), would mandate a cost-benefit analysis for all new regulations; improve risk assessment requirements for federal agencies; and require that a risk-assessment and cost-benefit analysis accompany any new rules to allow easier analysis by courts examining questionable regulations.

The Thompson-Levin measure would bring needed discipline and clarify the regulatory process, Kleckner said in a letter to Thompson. The farm leader praised the legislation's "right-to-know" provision and said the measure will help fix "a broken process" by requiring agencies to make their rules more transparent and open to the regulated community.

"Few farmers or citizens currently understand the goals of federal regulations," Kleckner wrote. "[Your bill] will get at this problem by enhancing a citizen's right to know how and why federal regulations are made and what they are supposed to accomplish in plain English. Good public policy means that average citizens know what the government is trying to accomplish."

The Senate Governmental Affairs Committee is slated to mark up the regulatory reform measure this week.

Farm Bureau is urging passage of the Thompson-Levin bill.

Maryland Sheep & Lamb Inventory Up 3 Percent

All sheep and lamb inventory in Maryland on January 1, 1998, totaled 33,000 head, up 3% from 1997's 32,000 head and up 32% from two years ago. Breeding sheep inventory at 28,200 increased 2% (600 head), from 1997's 27,600 head. Breeding ewes at 20,200 head increased 2% from the 19,800 for 1977. Market sheep and lambs at 4,800 increased 9%, 400 head over the 4,400 in 1997.

Cover Crops Conference Set For Md. Ag Leaders

Cover crops during the winter months seem like a great idea for keeping farmland nutrients from leaching into the Chesapeake Bay. So why have agricultural producers been slow to adopt their use, as recommended in Maryland's tributary team plans?

Recent scientific research and field experience address many of the previous cover crop limitations. So the University of Maryland's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources has scheduled a two-day Cover Crops Conference to share these findings with agricultural, natural resource, and environmental professionals. The conference also will be of interest to public officials, farm and environmental groups, and farmers themselves.

The two-day event is scheduled March 18 and 19 in the Tidewater Inn at Easton. Support is being provided by the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service, with supplementary financial support from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Northeast Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education (SARE) program.

Registration information is available from county offices of the university's Cooperative Extension Service throughout Maryland, or call Barbara South at the university's Wye Research and Education Center near Queenstown; phone: 410-827-6202. The registration deadline has been extended to March 11.

A $50 registration fee includes lunch on the first day and breakfast on the second day, plus morning coffee breaks and bus transportation for a field trip. The late and on-site registration fee is $70.

Activities on the first day get under way at 9 a.m. with check-in and a morning coffee hour. Program sessions will begin at 10 a.m. The afternoon agenda will include a field trip to the Wye Research and Education Center to observe various species of cover crops with two planting dates and learn about ongoing cover crop research and demonstrations.

The second day begins with breakfast at 8 a.m. Program sessions will run from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Topics will include soil quality, cropping systems, pest interactions, alternative cover crop species, and farm management economics.

Local Resident Participates In Riding Program

Thelma M. O'Brien of Swanton recently earned an award for logging 750 hours in the American Quarter Horse Association Horseback Riding Program. The program provides AQHA members recognition for time spent riding or driving American Quarter Horses.

A unique aspect of the program is its simplicity. Current AQHA members complete a program application and pay a one-time $25 enrollment fee. Each enrollee receives an official AQHA log sheet to record their hours driving or riding their American Quarter Horse. Participants need not own their horse, but all official hours must be accrued with a registered American Quarter Horse.

The first award, a program recognition patch, is given after only 50 hours have been logged and verified. Patches and nine subsequent awards are presented at 100 to 5,000 hour levels and range from merchandise gift certificates from Drysdale's Western Store to a Montana Silversmith trophy belt buckle at the highest level.

Other awards provided by AQHA corporate sponsors include a $25 gift certificate good towards any item from Drysdale's Western Store, at 750 hours a headstall valued at $22 from Cowboy Tack. At both 1,000 hours and 3,000 hours award recipients receive recognition in The Quarter Horse Journal, AQHA's monthly magazine. Jim Bret Campbell, AQHA manager of the Horseback Riding Program, said, "AQHA is so proud to offer this program rewarding people who enjoy riding and driving American Quarter Horses. Enrollees are doing such diverse activities that it's obvious this program literally fits everyone who likes spending time with horses."

AQHA actively encourages horseback riding as a recreational activity that can be enjoyed alone or shared with family and friends.

Prices Received Mixed For Jan.

Prices were relatively down for crops for the month of January. The only exception was corn for grain, which increased by four cents, and oats, which remained unchanged. The U.S. prices seem to reflect the same pattern in that corn for grain improved by five cents and hay increased by forty cents per ton.

U.S. Total Sheep & Lamb Inventory Down

All sheep and lamb inventory in the United States on January 1, 1998, totaled 7.62 million head, down 4% from 1997 and 10% below two years ago. Inventory has slowly declined since 1942, when all sheep and lambs reached its peak of 56.2 million head. Breeding sheep inventory declined to 5.54 million head on January 1, 1998, down 5% from January 1, 1997's 5.85 million head.

Ewes one year old and older, at 4.53 million head, were 6% below last year. Market sheep and lambs on January 1, 1998, totaled 2.08 million head, down slightly from January 1, 1997. Market lambs comprised 96% of the total: 23% were lambs under 65 pounds, 15% were 65 to 84 pounds, 30% were 85 to 105 pounds, 28% were over 105 pounds, and 4% were market sheep.

Hudnall To Perform At MBSC Eastern European Dinner

Harold F. Hudnall, referred to as "Mr. Music" by hundreds of past and current students at Dennett Road Elementary School, will be performing at Mary Browning Senior Center on Sunday, March 22, during a special ethnic dinner featuring eastern European cuisine. Sponsored by Community Action's Area Agency on Aging, the event is set to begin at 12:30 p.m., and is the first of several ethnic-themed dinners slated for coming months.

Proficient on a variety of instruments, Hudnall will entertain guests during the meal with music flavored to match the special dining fare. According to a spokesperson for the Area Agency on Aging, "Mr. Hudnall's presence should add to the atmosphere of the afternoon as he will be playing regional European pieces on the piano and violin. We are hopeful mature individuals (ages 55 and up) will come out and see what the Agency can offer beyond our traditional services," she said.

Hudnall brings to the performance 35 years of music teaching experience, 25 of which came in the Garrett County public school system. He obtained a bachelor's degree in music education from Charleston University in West Virginia, and holds a master's in music education from Frostburg State University. He also attended Glenville State College and West Virginia State College, and graduated from Mason College of Music and Fine Arts.

Hudnall's musical experience includes four years with the West Virginia All-College Symphony and two years with Charleston Symphony Orchestra. He also served as Civil Air Patrol Lt. Commander of Middle East Region and Maryland Wing Band Squadron.

I think it is time for Lloyd and me to have a little vacation. Claire had a school project due today, which was to be a model of water power. We strained our brains trying to figure out how to make the water wheel in a mill work. We exhausted our home library to find any information. We finally found one good picture in an old National Geographic, which is the best source for a family with school-age children. Although it took a lot of time, we just paged through a big pile of magazines until we found what was needed.

But, it was fun to browse. And now we must deal with the Accident Elementary School Talent Show. Our littlest one, Meredith, and her friend, Jessie Biser, last year won a first prize for their version of "Macarena." So we need to find some good music for this year. We came up with an old Wilson Pickett song. I found a nice costume and I think Jessie's mother can easily match it. Now the rehearsals. Only two weeks to showtime. Plus, we need to convince them that just because they won last year, doesn't mean they will win again this year.

Antidepressants May Relieve PMS Symptoms

Premenstrual syndrome, or PMS, refers to the physical and mental (emotional) symptoms that occur in women a week or so before their monthly menstrual periods. Physical changes typically include lower abdominal pain, breast tenderness, and slight weight gain due to fluid retention. Mental changes may include increased irritability, restlessness, and depression. Some physicians prescribe tranquilizers for the mental symptoms and diuretics for fluid retention.

Two recent studies indicate that a type of antidepressant may be useful in relieving PMS symptoms. The class of antidepressant evaluated in both studies was the selective serotonin re-uptake inhibitors. The most recent study involved 200 women in 12 centers. Over 60% showed "much" or "very much" improvement in mental symptoms.

"BUILDING A PEACEFUL WORLD" was the theme of the ninth annual Lions Clubs International Peace Poster Contest. Justin Bailey is shown above in the foreground holding a $50 U.S. Savings Bond presented by past Lions president Eugene Moreland for his first place poster in the local round of the contest. A sixth grader at Union Educational Complex in Mt. Storm, Bailey created a poster portraying a large body of water with two hands stretched across the waves in an offer of friendship. Fellow contestants are shown left to right: In the row behind Bailey are Ashley Minnick, Chris Elders, Jacob Reed, Alex Carr, and Aaron Hartman. In the back row are Kayla Paugh, Logan Kitzmiller, Kevin DeWitt, Roy Shillingburg, and Dewaine Jones. The contest recognizes Lions Clubs' activities throughout the world, and the fact that Lions Club International was one of the organizations involved in the planning and formulating of the United Nations Charter. Bailey's poster now advances in the contest, with the final winner receiving an invitation to U.N. headquarters in New York City on Lions Day, along with scholarship funds.

SCHOOL NEWS

Krista Hayes is reportedly pleased to have Aaron Shaffer back in the classroom with his second grade friends and with his vision restored. His eye was injured while playing with his basketball, and he was hospitalized at Monongalia General Hospital for a period of time.

Hayes reports that her class has successfully completed its goal in the Pizza Hut Book It reading program and can look forward to their reward party.

Terri Winters reports that her kindergarten class celebrated the 100th day of school on February 19. Bags of beans were counted, necklaces of 100 Fruit Loops were made, and a 100-item snack was made to consume. The students have also been producing a daily newspaper since the beginning of school. Each day a different student gives information about weather, important events, and a comment about the school. All of the students then "read" the paper and it is posted in the room. The student who was the helper for the day takes his "paper" home. This has been a great motivator for learning simple sight vocabulary, letter recognition and beginning sounds, sentence structure, grammar and punctuation, plus reading, according to Winters.

Valerie Carlson, art instructor, reports that she has conducted three dental poster workshops for fifth and sixth grades, has aided teachers by helping classes do reading program related projects in grades K-4, and has helped with the ongoing study of the rain forest by using tropical birds and related inhabitants as subjects of projects. She is planning an art show for May 28 when this work will be on display.

The school spelling bee Was held February 25 with Cody Fauber of fifth grade set to enter county competition on March 24. He is the son of Buddy and Tandy Fauber of Aurora. The alternate is Adam Pifer, son of Pete and Debbie Pifer, Terra Alta Pike.

The Preston County Science Fair will be held at the Craig Civic Center on March 25. Entering from Aurora are school winners: Laurne Roth in consumer science; Jennifer Sullivan in earth and space; Joshua Mullenax in physical science; Nathan Myers and Seth Feather in life science; and Nicole Britner and Jessica Fazenbaker in energy and environmental sciences.

READING OLYMPIAD

A Reading Olympiad is being held at Aurora School to emphasize both reading and fitness. Parents are asked to cooperate by encouraging each child to read at least four nights weekly, with K-3 grades reading 15 minutes, and 4-6 grades reading for 30 minutes. Together reading (parent and child), and reading alone or aloud is recorded on a "medal" and is sent to school on the Monday of the week following recording. The students also are given Olympic Footrace "feet" to be signed for each book read. Feet will be placed on school walls, going for the gold. A special reward should come at the end of the four-week program period.

Bidder may elect to provide a maintenance bond for one hundred percent (100%) of the construction cost in lieu of the five percent (5%) retainage.

The Owner may for any reason whatsoever determine that it is not in its best interest to award a Contract. In that event, the Contract award will not be made by the Owner and the Owner will not then be liable for any payments whatsoever to the Bidder. Extension of time beyond the ninety (90) day period of the award may be made only by mutual agreement between the Owner and the Bidder.

The Owner within ten (10) days of receipt of an acceptable Agreement signed by the party to whom the Contract was awarded will sign the Agreement and return to such party an executed duplicate of the Agreement. Should the Owner not execute the Agreement within such period, the Bidder may, by Written Notice, withdraw his signed Agreement. Such notice of withdrawal shall be effective upon receipt of notice by the Owner.

Award will be made by the Owner to the lowest responsive and responsible bidder.

All applicable laws, ordinances, and the rules and regulations of all authorities having jurisdiction over the work shall apply to the Contract throughout.

MAYOR AND TOWN COUNCIL OF LOCH LYNN HEIGHTS, MARYLAND
RESOLUTION NO. 1996-I

RECITALS

Garrett County, Maryland, Community Action Committee, Inc. (Community Action) is the owner of 3.26 acres of land by virtue of a deed from Henry F. Moomau dated and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland in Liber 685 at folio 870 (the"Land"). This land is adjacent to the town. Community Action has constructed on a portion of the Land a rental housing project consisting of 24 single family dwelling units, a laundry facility, and an accessory office for the project in 6 separate buildings configured in such a manner so that approximately 10 of the units are Townhouses under the terms of the Loch Lynn Zoning Ordinance and approximately 14 of the units are Apartments under the Loch Lynn Heights Zoning Ordinance. The portion of the Land which is appropriated for the multi-family housing project is 95,173 square feet for the project, 46,433 square feet for the Storm Water Management site serving the project and 65,660 square feet making up the roadway on the Land. This construction is complete as of the date of this Resolution. The remainder of the Land is to be divided into lots for either Single Family Detached Dwellings or Twin Dwellings. All roads are to be built to current Town Standards at the expense of Community Action. Community Action has requested that the Land be annexed into the Town of Loch Lynn Heights and has agreed in writing not to seek tax exempt status for such land if annexed into the Town of Loch Lynn Heights. More than 25% of the residents of the property to be annexed have requested annexation. The Mayor and Town Council has agreed to proceed with the process of annexation. Such annexation will require submission to the Town Planning Commission, compliance with the provisions of Article 23A, Section 11 et seq. with regard to the Charter Amendment; compliance with Article 23A, Section 19 with respect to Annexation and compliance with the provisions of the Loch Lynn Zoning Ordinance with respect to the required amendment to the Zoning Map of Loch Lynn Heights. If Annexation is successful all persons residing in the area to be annexed and their property shall be added to the corporate boundaries generally subject to the provisions of the Charter of the Town as the same may from time to time be amended. The Land will be annexed into the Town under the zoning classification of Town Residential. This classification allows Single and Two Family Detached Dwellings as Permitted Uses and Townhouse and Apartment dwellings as Special Exception Uses. In addition the Townhouse and Apartment Dwellings shall be annexed into the Town as a pre-existing special exception uses on pre-existing non conforming lot or lots. The Garrett County Planning and Zoning Office has certified that the above land uses are fully consistent with the plans and policies of the County Comprehensive Plan. This Resolution is introduced for the purpose of proceeding forward with the Annexation and the Amendment to the Zoning Map of Loch Lynn Heights, Maryland. The Charter Amendment is being addressed in a separate resolution.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED AS FOLLOWS:

1. That upon the request of Garrett County, Maryland, Community Action Committee, Inc., the owner of the Land, the Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Loch Lynn Heights propose to annex the land into the corporate limits of the Town.

2. The land to be annexed is described as follows:
Beginning at a corner fence post found at the end of the third line of Military Lot 917, and in the northeasterly line of the property owned now or formerly by Charles J. Martin (Liber 32 at folio 96), and at a point described as a concrete post at the original beginning of Military lots 880 and 919 in the description of the corporate boundaries in the Municipal Charter of Loch Lynn Heights; thence, with part of the said third line and part of the first line of Military Lot 919, and the outline of the limits of Loch Lynn Heights (North 27 degrees and 35 minutes East 1650 feet), a municipal corporation, North 23 degrees East, 450.00 feet to a set 5/8th inch by 36 inch iron rebar and plastic cap marked 126, hereinafter called "iron pin"; thence, leaving said Military lot line, and the outline of said municipal corporation, South 67 degrees East, 300 feet to a set iron pin; thence 23 degrees West 450 feet to an iron pin set in the fence line marking the fourth line of Military lot 917, thence with part of said fourth line, North 67 degrees West, 800 feet to the beginning, containing 8.26 acres, more or less.

3. Said land will be annexed by the Town under the zoning classification of Town Residential. Upon annexation the persons residing on the property to be annexed and their property shall be generally subject to the provisions of the Charter of the Town.

4. There is constructed on a portion of the land consisting of 95,173 square feet at the time of this resolution 24 dwelling units, an office and laundry facilities in 6 separate buildings. Under the Town Residential Zoning classification such use would require a Special Exception. In addition the number of single family attached units would require a variance with respect to density. However, since the construction is complete at the time of the annexation these uses and structures are being brought into the town as a pre-existing non-conforming lot and pre-existing use. Future development of the remainder of the land shall be in accordance with the Town Charter and ordinances.

5. All roads in the property will be constructed by Community Action, at its cost, to current Town standards. After annexation they shall be turned over to the Town and shall thereafter be maintained as Town Streets.

6. Upon annexation, the land shall be a part of the Town. All residents on the land annexed and their property shall be subject to the Charter and ordinances of the Town and shall be entitled to the rights and privileges of citizens of the Town in accordance with the provisions of the Town Charter.

7. That the Mayor shall cause to be published a public notice of this resolution in a newspaper of general circulation in the Town of Loch Lynn Heights and in the area proposed to be annexed not less than 4 times, at weekly intervals. This public notice shall briefly and accurately describe the proposed annexation and the conditions circumstances applicable. The publication of this Resolution and a map of the area to be annexed shall be sufficient for such purpose.

8. This public notice shall specify Monday, March 30, 1998 at 7:00 PM as the date and time and the Town Hall of Loch Lynn Heights located at 211 Bonnie Boulevard, Loch Lynn Heights, Maryland, as the place of a public hearing on the annexation of the land by the Town. This date is not less than 15 days after the date of the last publication described above.

9. Immediately upon the first publication of the public notice the Mayor shall cause a copy of the public notice to be sent to the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County, Maryland, to The Garrett County Planning and Zoning Office, to the Tri-County Council for Western Maryland, and to the Maryland Office of Planning.

10. The Mayor shall also cause to be prepared an amended zoning map for the Town which includes the annexed property shown under the classification of Town Residential.

11. The Mayor shall submit a copy of this Resolution and the related Charter Amendment Resolution to the Loch Lynn Planning Commission with a request that The Planning Commission review it and provide its comments to the Mayor and Town Council within 30 days.

12. The effective date of the annexation shall be in accordance with the provisions of Article 23A, Section 19 of the Annotated Code of Maryland.

To All Property Taxpayers of Grantsville, Maryland

Senate Bill No. 93 of the Annotated Code of Maryland requires counties and municipal corporations to notify taxpayers of the availability of the semi-annual property tax payment option for owner-occupied residential property that is the principal residence of a homeowner.

If a taxpayer elects to make semi-annual property tax payments, ½ of the municipal taxes will be deferred until January 1. The second payment, due January 1, will incur a service charge reasonably equivalent to the anticipated lost interest income associated with the delay in the payment of the second installment and covering administrative expenses associated with the semi-annual payment not exceeding 25% of the charge of the lost interest.

To be eligible to make this election of semi-annual payment, all previous years' taxes must be paid in full by June 1. Taxpayers not making thier first semi-annual payment by September 30 are automatically waived out of the semi-annual plan and must pay the full tax bill.

Selection of payment schedule for property taxes may be made upon receipt of tax bill. If taxpayer wishes to pay in full, he must choose the appropriate coupon and return it with the proper payment. If the taxpayer wishes to participate in the semi-annual payment option, the appropriate coupon should be returned with the payment before the September 30 deadline.

It is the responsibility of the taxpayers to notify their mortgage company of their wishes to pay on a semi-annual basis if they have an escrow account. The town is not responsible for any involvement in the semi-annual payment process.

Whatever payment plan the taxpayer elects shall remain in effect until the taxpayer decides to change it.

By authority,
Mayor and Council
Grantsville, Maryland
